Solon Wants Poll Tax Left In Voting Bill

Dirksen Predicts Southerners Will Leave Off Talking

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said Saturday he will move to strip from the voting rights bill a provision to abolish poll taxes in state and local elections.

Dirksen said in a telephone interview that otherwise he regards the measure, on which the Senate is scheduled to begin debate Wednesday, as generally satisfactory. But he said the poll tax provision, written into the bill when liberals took over within the Senate Judiciary Committee, "has got to come out."

"It just isn't constitutional," he said.

FULL DISCUSSION

A recent constitutional amendment banned the poll tax in federal elections but four states — Texas, Mississippi, Alabama and Virginia — still make it a requirement for state and local elections.

Dirksen predicted Southern opponents will not seek to block voting on amendments by lengthy talk.

"I expect the Southerners will have a good many amendments of their own," Dirksen said. "They have indicated they want full discussion of the bill's provisions. But the disposition is not what it was in the past and I doubt that there will be any lengthy filibuster."

Nevertheless, Dirksen said he thinks it will take a month to get final action on the bill because so many amendments will be offered. Previously Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana had said he hoped passage could be obtained by mid-May at the latest.

The length of Senate debate on the voting rights legislation may affect the timing of action on other major items in President Johnson's "Great Society" program.

The Senate Finance Committee has been forced to postpone hearings, scheduled to start next Thursday, on the House-passed measure to provide health care for the elderly because most members don't plan to return from their Easter vacation until the following week.

Stacked up behind this bill are several other important measures which thus far either have not had Senate committee action or have had scant attention.

These include bills for an excise tax reduction, congressional redistricting, foreign aid authorization, controls on dangerous drugs, state right-to-work laws, minumum wage increase, immigration law revisions and creation of an urban affairs department.

10,000 Pilgrims Fill Holy City On Sacred Day

JERUSALEM, Jordan Section (AP) — More than 10,000 pilgrims from all over the world sang hymns Saturday and many attended Mass at the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, where Christ supposedly was buried.

This holy city was jammed for the Easter observance. Pilgrims from Arab and other countries crowded inside the crumbling walls of Jerusalem. Hotels, boarding houses and convent cells were crowded.

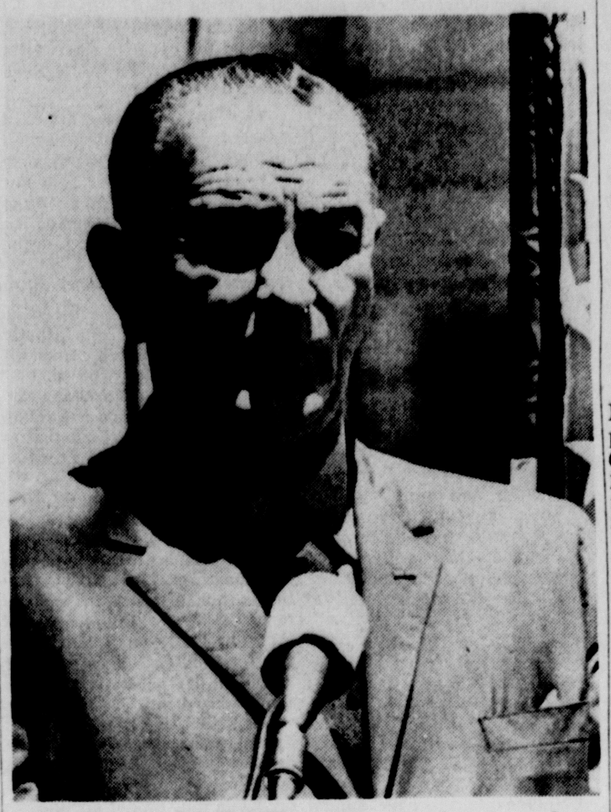

Pilgrims thronged to a Pontifical High Mass in the richly decorated but decaying Church of the Holy Sepulchre. Mass was celebrated by Msgr. Albeto Gori, the Latin patriarch of Jerusalem.

Bishop Fulgencio Pasini began the Mass by striking sparks from a flint and lighting wood shavings in a silver bowl. Priests lighted a tall, white candle — the Paschal candle — from the bowl.

Then Bishop Pasini plunged five nails of crimson wax into the shaft of the candle. The 500-year-old ceremony, accompanied by sighs from the congregation, signified the wounds of Christ on the Cross.

After celebrating Mass, Msgr. Gori led a procession from the chapel to Calvary, to the Stone of Unction where Jesus was annointed before burial, and back to the church.

Low Mass in front of Christ's Tomb was celebrated by Msgr. Linus Capiello, custodian of the Holy Land.

U.S. Stays Ready For Peace Talks

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson said in an Easter time statement Saturday that the window still is open to peace in Viet Nam and "we are ready to begin discussions next week, tomorrow or tonight."

But Johnson said also that the United States will settle for no less than a free, independent South Viet Nam and that this country never will abandon the little Asian nation.

"And let this also be clear," the President said, "Until that independence is guaranteed, there is no human power capable of forcing us from Viet Nam. We will remain as long as necessary, with the might required, whatever the risk and whatever the cost."

AIR RAIDS CONTINUE

In Washington, Secretary of State Dean Rusk ruled out any cessation of air strikes against North Viet Nam at this time — a course suggested by some inside and outside this country.

Such action has been carefully considered, Rusk said in a statement, but to take it "would only encourage the aggressor and dishearten our friends who bear the brunt of battle."

Naming no critics, Rusk noted that some argue and end to bombings might halt aggression from the north "but we have tried publicly and privately to find out if this would be the result and there has been no response."

Rusk's views — obviously approved by the President — were released while students demonstrated in Washington both against and for the U.S. policy in Viet Nam. Police estimated the total at 12,000 to 15,000 demonstrators, and the antis far outnumbered the pros.

Standing in sunlight on a small patio of his ranch house, Johnson read his statement in solemn tones, with solemn visage. At its end, he walked over to Mrs. Johnson.

Easter Hosts

B. A. Tarver, president of the Ouachita Parish School Board, and Mrs. Tarver will host their four sons, Ben, Earl, Jack and Gene, their two daughters, Mrs. Sue King and Mrs. A. E. Faulk, their families and 23 grandchildren today at a family reunion.

Mrs. King, formerly Miss Sue Tarver, and her husband and four children make their home in Webster, N.Y. Mrs. Faulk, formerly Miss Lovina Tarver, and her husband and four children are living in Lafayette. The elder Tarvers' sons all reside in Monroe.

Eggs—Prizes

"Plenty of eggs and plenty of prizes for the best egg finders," was the promise Saturday of Northeast Louisiana Shrine Club President Leslie Hamm.

He was talking, of course, of today's big Easter egg hunt for the children of all area Master Masons. Due to get underway at the Shrine clubhouse on Cheniere Lake at 2:30 p.m., the event will be the third annual.

Armenian Says

Slap 50 Years Ago Made Mikoyan Red

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Anastas I. Mikoyan, president of the Soviet Union, became a Communist because of a slap in the face 50 years ago, according to Simon Vratsian, last prime minister of independent Armenia.

Vratsian headed the committee which commanded Armenian volunteers, allied with the Czarist Russians in World War I. Mikoyan was for a time, his personal aide. Mikoyan in those days was a member of the Armenian Dashnag revolutionary party, a nonleftist nationalist group.

"I remember Mikoyan very well because he worked directly under me for several weeks in 1914 or 1915," Vratsian recounted in an interview. Mikoyan would have been 19 or 20 then and "he did all sorts of odd jobs, even carrying messages for me."

"Mikoyan was a good boy — very bright and intelligent, and very calculating.

"Then I sent him off to the front to fight against the Turks with the Armenian volunteer group led by Ozanian Antranik.

"The Armenians were forced to retreat and during the retreat Mikoyan and Antranik began to argue. Antranik beat him — slapped him in the face.

"Mikoyan quit the Dashnag movement on the spot, left the volunteers and enrolled in a seminary at Etchmiadzin, and then went to Baku where he eventually joined the Bolsheviks.

"The Bolsheviks sent him to Stalin, who saw that he was good material and had him trained as a Communist. I never saw Mikoyan again.

"But I know Mikoyan isn't a good boy any more. Nobody who worked under Stalin for years could emerge as a good man."

Antranik, the partisan leader whose slap changed Mikoyan's political convictions, was a legendary Armenian leader who led the 1st Armenian Battalion in Russia and died in California in 1927.

Vratsian, who told the story, is now 83, a school teacher and principal in Beirut. His memories and historical works are used internationally as text books on the Armenians.

U.S. Aircraft Stage Raids In Red Area

Leaflets Bearing Johnson Message Shower On Town

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—U.S. Air Force planes ranged widely over Communist North Viet Nam Saturday bombing and machine gunning highway traffic. An F105 Thunderchief's pilot was killed while strafing, a U.S. spokesman said.

While the force of 42 Air Force planes were seeking out targets of opportunity, two Vietnamese Skyraiders showered 100,000 leaflets on Dong Hoi, 50 miles north of South Viet Nam's border. The leaflets carried President Johnson's plans for developing Southeast Asia.

GROUND FIRE LIGHT

The spokesman said the Thunderchief crashed into a hill while strafing a road, but he would not say whether the plane was shot down. Ground fire was described as light and no enemy planes were sighted.

Air Force pilots reported they destroyed one truck and a number of military buildings at Mugia Pass near the frontier with Laos. They were working over Route 8, which runs southwest from Vinh, about 150 miles north of the border, to the Laotian frontier.

Other pilots attacked traffic on Route 12, which runs south from Vinh to the border.

In the sorties were 12 Air Force strike planes and 30 planes flying antiaircraft suppression missions.

The leaflets dropped during the day differed from those scattered on Dong Hoi Wednesday which asked the people to overthrow the Communist government.

The new leaflets featured Johnson's address in Baltimore April 7 proposing a $1 billion development program for Southeast Asia, which could include North Viet Nam if its leaders call off support for the guerrillas in the south.

The leaflets included Johnson's words that "we have no desire to devastate that which the people of North Viet Nam have built with toil and sacrifice. We will use our power with restraint and with all the wisdom we can command, but we will use it."

Aground, reports from Vietnamese soldiers indicated that Thursday's biggest air raid of the war on a jungle area 65 miles northwest of Saigon was a flop.

Sunrise Rites Set To Usher Easter Sunday

Easter Sunday will be ushered into the Twin Cities with sunrise services at 5:36 a.m. at Monroe Memorial Park Cemetery, located off Highway 80 East.

The Rev. E. C. McKenzie, minister of the Jackson Street Church of Christ, will be featured speaker at the event, sponsored for the third consecutive year by the Pilot Club of Monroe.

The Choir of West Monroe High School, directed by Mrs. Juanita Kilpatrick, and the Neville High School Brass Band, directed by Joe Caskey, will also participate in the program.

Service chairman for the Pilot Club is Mrs. M. D. Garlington. Club president is Mrs. Evelyn Chilton.

Special Easter services have been planned for the various churches of the Twin Cities; in many cases an early morning service followed by one at the regular church hour. Easter cantatas and other seasonal music will be featured at some of the area churches.

3 Grid Players Injured Fatally

Killed were Maxey Estay, 20, of Larose, a guard on the Louisiana State University football team; Kenneth Vizier, 20, of Larose, an end on the football team of McNeese State at Lake Charles; and Clarence J. Breaux Jr., 22, of Larose, and Melvin Guidry, 18, of Cutoff, both students at the University of Southwestern Louisiana, Lafayette. Guidry was a tackle for USL.

Soviet May Dispatch 'Volunteers' To Asia

PETER MITZUK stands outside his Hastings, Minn., home which he wrapped in plastic to ward off Mississippi River floodwaters. He bought a 400-foot roll of polyethelyne, 16 feet wide, and wrapped it around the house, overlapping the edges to seal them. At ground level he left several feet and placed sandbags on this. Some water that leaked into the basement is being pumped out, but the first floor, below the waterline, is dry. (AP Wirephoto)

LBJ's Offer For Parley Not Heeded

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union, brushing aside President Johnson's offer of "unconditional discussions" on a Viet Nam peace, Saturday announced it would send "volunteers" to fight in Viet Nam under certain conditions.

RAPS PRESIDENT

The communique said the U. S. President's recent Baltimore speech, in which he proposed peace talks with no strings attached, "shows that the United States is still keeping a course for the extension of the acts of aggression" against Communist North Viet Nam.

It charged President Johnson "does not seek to explore avenues leading to a peaceful solution of the Vietnamese problem" and added:

"It is significant that the statement by the United States President on a so-called peaceful settlement has been made at a time when these aggressive actions continue."

The communique was released only hours after Johnson renewed his offer for peace talks, but rejected suggestions that the United States end its air attacks against Communist North Viet Nam.

At the same time the joint communique said the Kremlin would permit volunteers to help North Viet Nam repel U. S. aggression on these conditions:

—If the United States steps up its attacks on North Viet Nam.

—If the North Vietnamese government appeals for such aid.

Soviet Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev said in a speech last month that Soviet authorities have been receiving offers from Russian citizens volunteering to go to Viet Nam if the government asks them to.

Red China also has spoken of the possibility of sending volunteers to Viet Nam but neither Peking nor Moscow has made a firm, unconditional commitment to do so.

Today's communique was the most formal Soviet pronouncement yet on President Johnson offer of peace discussions.

It was issued at the end of a week-long visit to Moscow by North Vietnamese Communist First Secretary Le Suan and Vo Nguyen Giap, member of the Hanoi Politburo.

The communique said the Hanoi Communist leaders had talks with top Soviet officials including Brezhnev and Premier Alexei Kosygin.

"The Soviet Union reaffirmed the readiness to continue rendering all necessary assistance to (North Viet Nam) in repulsing aggression by the United States," the communique said.

"If the United States aggression against the democratic republic of (North) Viet Nam is intensified, in case of necessity, and in the case of an appeal by the government of (North Viet Nam), (the Soviet Union) will consent to the departure for Viet Nam of Soviet citizens who have expressed a desire to fight for the just cause of the Vietnamese people," the communique continued.

Mississippi Swirls On

Flood-Weary Cities Must Hold Steady Eye On River

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Weather Bureau officials said only slight fluctuations were expected at St. Paul, Minn., before the river begins edging downward. If there is little rain over the next two weeks, the bureau said, the waters should be back in its banks by May 1 or 2.

A Weather Bureau official also cautioned the weary flood workers not to "think there is going to be a sudden falloff" in the level of the river.

COLD MOVES IN

"They will have to keep their guard up," he added, "because the river won't get down to its 1952 flood level of 22.1 feet at St. Paul until April 23 or 24."

At Wabasha—turned into an island by the rampaging river—and Winona and La Crosse and other cities downstream the flood fighters watched their dikes and waited for crests next week.

Freezing cold during the night checked the runoff from melting snow and ice. But the wintry chill and snow increased the discomfort of volunteer workers who faced the prospects of spending Easter on duty in shoreline mud.

Snowfall measured three inches in Winona, Minn., and an inch in Minneapolis-St. Paul and La Crosse, Wis.

Overflows have driven an estimated 35,000 persons from their homes and have caused 12 deaths and millions of dollars in property losses.

Temperatures that dipped below the freezing level during the night in Minnesota held back the rush of flood waters from areas north of the Twin Cities. The slackening allowed some of the excess water to drain away. That resulted in a revision of the crest forecast.

Joseph Strub, Weather Bureau flood expert, said the Mississippi will fluctuate within three to five inches of Saturday's levels in the Twin Cities sector for a day or two, and is likely to start to drop Monday. Earlier, The crest had been forecast for Tuesday. The Mississippi was a foot below predicted high marks Saturday in both cities.

The St. Croix River, which empties into the Mississippi below St. Paul, also was expected to pass it peak today at Stillwater, Minn.

Worry there focused on the ice in Lake Pepin, a wide passage in the Mississippi just above the community of 2,500.

His words were welcomed because disintegrating ice will break up easily instead of pounding bridges and dikes when it moves out of the lake.

Forecast Balmy For Egg Hunts

It will be mild weather for the traditional Easter parade in the Twin Cities today.

Partly cloudy skies — with 75 per cent or more sunshine—have been forecast and the weatherman promises rain will not mar the egg hunts.

Today's high will range between 80 and 86; the low tonight will be between 56 and 62.

Saturday, the mercury climbed to 83 in a sunny, balmy atmosphere, following a cool low of 44 early Saturday morning.

MILD

No rain was recorded Saturday by FAA at Selman Field.

Winds today will be southerly eight to 10 miles per hour.

The Resurrection

World Not Peaceful On Easter Morning

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Christians everywhere joyfully celebrate this Sunday the festival of Easter, the glad renewal of the Resurrection's promise of a peace in eternity to a world that still knows no peace.

Bombers fly their missions of war in Viet Nam, and there is restlessness across the lands.

But the words are heard once more as they are written in the Scriptures by the Apostles: "He is risen."

In prayer and song the words are repeated. Quietly they echo in the dawn over the bowed heads on mountaintops, in city parks, in churches at home and abroad, assembled in traditional sunrise services.

To the Midwest, ravaged by tornadoes on Palm Sunday and floods and threats of floods during Holy Week, the words of hope bring a special message of spiritual comfort.

Silently, a band of Quakers stands in Times Square keeping vigil for peace. By the thousands, West Germans march in campaign for nuclear disarmament.

Still other thousands, American college students, parade before the White House, holding aloft their signs demanding an end to war.

From his ranch in Texas — it, too, beset by peace pickets — President Johnson recognizes the longing. But he says if the price of peace is bloodshed, America is willing to pay it.

His Easter message speaks of a Holy Week stamped by tragedy because so many have died in Viet Nam, by disappointment because Communist powers have rejected an offer to negotiate, and by progress because American unity of purpose has been strengthened.

Christian pilgrims by the tens of thousands pack the hotels and highways of Rome, where at noon Pope Paul VI delivers his Easter message to Catholics and to the world at large.

More pilgrims flock to Jerusalem, to walk and feel the Holy Land where Jesus lived and was killed on the cross and arose from the dead two thousand years ago.

Teacher Week Underway

Giving Of Apple Outmoded As Form Of Appreciation

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

The gift of an apple probably is the most traditional expression of appreciation for a teacher. While the idea still is practiced, teachers nowadays consider cooperation the surest sign of appreciation.

At least that's one of the major points revealed in a spot check among the teaching establishment in honor of Teacher Appreciation Week, which begins today.

"Full cooperation from parents is what we appreciate most, I think," said Mrs. Cecile Burkett, principal of Drew Elementary School. "Sometimes that's not what the child wants, but understanding and cooperative parents, interested only in helping their child realize his greatest achievement, are extremely gratifying to a teacher."

Mrs. Elaine Baines, a first grade teacher at Drew, agrees. "I think that working together in a cooperative effort to help the child achieve his full potentiality is the most meaningful form of appreciation a teacher can be shown," she says.

"Of course, our parents are most cooperative and their help always is as near as the telephone," Mrs. Burkett adds.

The apple approach was used recently by students at Sterlington High School. Though it wasn't a part of Teacher Appreciation Week, Sterlington Principal O. K. Bailey doesn't discount the importance of the gesture.

"Actually, I think such spontaneous actions, like members of the school's Beta Club bringing apples to their teachers, are better than having to set aside a special week in order to get any appreciation," Bailey said.

Teacher Appreciation Week is due to run through next Saturday. Nothing special is planned at Sterlington, but in line with the preferred spontaneity, the school's Y-Teens entertained their teachers last Friday with refreshments in the Home Economics Department.

At Dew Elementary, a special P-TA program is planned for 3 p.m. Thursday in the school cafetorium. The school's 14 teachers and Mrs. Burkett will be honored with gifts and a special panel held, besides the election of 1965-66 officers. Mrs. Betty Whittaker is current president and the program chairman is Mrs. Wiley Roach Jr.

Coffees and teas will be held at various other schools in the Ouachita Parish system during the week, with teachers as special guests. In the City of Monroe system, teachers will be honored at several P-TA meetings.

An event of the week at Ouachita Parish High School will be the orientation Friday of students who will be attending the institution for the first time in the fall.

Also at Ouachita Parish High School, the Future Teachers' Club is planning a skit to emphasize the role of the teacher.

Several of the teachers themselves, asked about ways in which they would appreciate being appreciated, mentioned the importance of parents and students learning more about a teacher's role and responsibilities.

"It would be fine if more people learned something about the pressures on a teacher to keep abreast of his field, and about the increasing responsibilities of teachers in recreation and many other areas these days aside from the Three R's," said one.

Another said teachers would be appreciative if "parents showed more interest in their children."

"They should find out what's worthwhile and then guide their children," she said. "So many young people try to join and take part in just about every thing under the sun, without trying to find out what really would be the best use of their time. Parents should take an interest in this."

Still another expressed a variation of the same theme: "I wish that parents would call teachers about their children, instead of waiting for teachers to call them," she said. "a teacher has so many students under her wing and so much other work that it's hard to get around to making such calls herself."

Teacher Appreciation Week got a strong send-off last week when local government agencies, as well as state officials, urged full recognition.

Monroe Mayor W. L. Howard issued a proclamation to that effect, as did Louisiana Gov. John J. McKeithen. Also noting the observance were West Monroe and the Ouachita Parish Police Jury.

They suggested that "all citizens of the community devise appropriate observances and activities which will honor and commend the unselfish teachers of the community and convey to them the understanding, appreciation and support of the citizens."

Displays will be mounted in schools and classrooms throughout the area, while various art classes have prepared posters for display in the Twin City business districts.

English and civic classes will be using units on the importance of the educational establishment in community life and the progress of society in general.

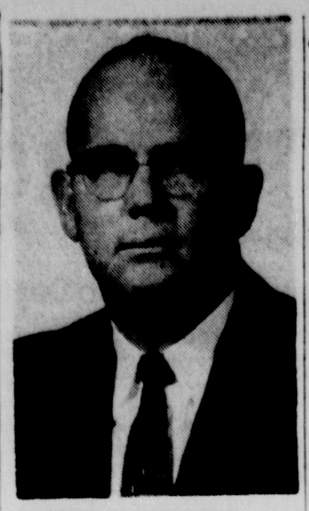

Civic clubs have been contacted and urged to recognize Teacher Appreciation Week and to honor teacher members at their meetings. Minishers also have been contacted and asked to observe the special week from their pulpits and in church bulletins. Teacher congregation members will be recognized.

Radio and television programs and spot announcements are planned throughout the week, and various advertisers will be using brief reminders of the occasion in their space in local newspapers.

Meanwhile, Fifth District members of the Louisiana Teachers' Association will meet at 7 p.m. Monday in the auditorium of Neville High School to hear Education Supt. William Dodd and other dignitaries.

Chairmen for the local observances are Miss Josephine McCranie for the parish system and Neville Principal Sidney Seegers for the City of Monroe.

Other early observances last week included a pre-Easter musical program at Ouachita Parish High School, and, at West Monroe High School, the presentation by students to their teachers of candy rabbits and eggs.

JAMES E. ROGERS, geologist with the Ground Water Branch of the U. S. Geological Survey, will address the noon luncheon meeting Monday at the Paragon Club of the Monroe Area Industrial Management Council. His topic will be "Water Resources in Northeast Louisiana." Officials have invited "everyone interested" in protecting existing water sources and developing new ones.

Brothers Burned Seeking Toys

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Two little brothers died Saturday in a fire which, authorities said, was touched off by one of them searching for Easter toys with a lighted candle in a dark closet.

Dead of smoke inhalation were Michael Dietrich, 5, and Christopher, 4, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dietrich.

The children were trapped on the second floor of their home despite efforts of the father and neighbors to save them when flames blocked the only stairway.

The parents and two other children, Joseph, 6, and Teal, 3, were on the first floor and escaped.

Johnson's News Relations Rated 'Fair Or Poor'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Society of Newspaper Editors has elected as its new president Vermont C. Royster, editor of the Wall Street Journal, and named Montreal, Canada, for its 1966 meeting.

On the closing day Saturday of its annual convention, the 450 editors also:

—In an informal poll, overwhelmingly rated President Johnson's news relations as fair or poor. Fifty-one editors said fair, 30 said poor, and only two said good.

—Heard Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler reported that the United States, far from lagging in the production race with the Soviet Union, "continues to widen the already enormous distance" by which it leads.

—Applauded a suggestion presented by an authority on Soviet affairs, that this country become sponsor of a proposal that the European powers including the Soviet Union join with the United States in forming an all-European economic development plan.

This proposal was made by Prof. Zbigniew Brzezinski, professor of government and director of the Research Institute on Communist Affairs at Columbia University and a State Department consultant.

Brzezinski told the editors that, "the idea of rejoining Europe would generate much popular enthusiasm in East Europe." It would weaken Soviet control over that area if the U.S.S.R. chose not to enter the all-European movement, he said, and might eventually pave the way for solution of security problems and achievement of armaments control.

Neville Alumni Banquet Slated For Early May

All 1964 Neville High School graduates have been invited to attend the school's alumni banquet, set for 7:15 p.m., Tuesday, May 4, at the Paragon Club.

At White House

Students Protest War In Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of students demanding an end to the war in Viet Nam massed in Washington Saturday, picketing, marching, singing and shouting for their cause.

The demonstration, one of the largest ever to take place around the White House, was billed by its sponsors, an organization calling itself Students for a Democratic Society, as the start of a national protest movement against U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

Demonstration leaders said 20,000 students responded to the call they sent to colleges across the nation for support. Police estimated the number at 12,000 to 15,000.

The students packed the sidewalk in front of the White House and nearly encircled the two block-long buildings flanking it — the Treasury and Executive Office buildings. Thousands more milled around in parks near the White House.

As more and more crowded into the picket line, it became so thick it hardly moved. Many of the students had guitars and sang as they shuffled along.

The beautiful spring day at the height of the Easter season also attracted thousands of tourists, some of whom mixed in with the students.

While the demonstrators choked the sidewalk in front of the White House, the tourists stood in long lines stretching around the opposite side waiting to take the regular White House tour.

The huge demonstration attracted two groups of counter-demonstrators — a dozen members of the American Nazi Party, and about 100 persons representing Young Americans for Freedom, a conservative organization. They paraded on the sidewalk across the street from the students.

Police lined both sides of the street and kept each group isolated, but printed and shouted insults were freely exchanged.

"Pink colleges turn out yellow reds," said a placard carried by a Young America for Freedom member. "Don't let red-led defeatniks set U.S. policy," said another. "Peace creeps go home," blazoned a Nazi sign.

The Nazis, with their military uniforms and swastika armbands, touched off an incident near the White House. One of them broke through the police line to stand on a record player a student had set up to play folk songs.

The Nazi sympathizer was hauled away by police after a brief scuffle with the student, but returned to resume picketing when the student declined to press charges.

Dr. Paul Pratt Set For Talk At LARC Meet

Delegates to the 12th annual convention of the Louisiana Association for Retarded Children will hear an address by Dr. Paul Pratt, commissioner of mental health, at the annual convention in Shreveport, April 23-25.

Registration for the convention, to be held at the Shreve Hotel, begins at noon Friday, according to Lillian Walker, state association president.

Also on Friday are tours to the Caddo-Bossier A.R.C. facilities in Shreveport and the Evergreen Presbyterian Vocational Training School at Minden.

A "Festival of Fellowship" will be held and will include retarded children from Shreveport, Pineville, New Orleans and Clarks.

A breakfast honoring the local unit presidents from throughout the state will be held Saturday morning. Plaques will be presented to units of Vernon and Richland parishes, who were newly organized this year.

Four workshops will highlight Saturday afternoon. Directors will be Frank Blackburn, state Division of Mental Retardation; James McDuffie, action director of the Division of Special Education; Judge James Gulotta, juvenile court judge and A. J. Dixon, Division of Vocational Rehabilitation.

Panelists from this area include Frank Bailey, superintendent of the Ruston State School, Ruston, and Mrs. Mary Lou Welch, special education teacher of Jena.

Biracial Group Prays At Church

SANDHILL, Miss. (AP) — About 50 persons in a biracial group Saturday marched a few miles to a burned Negro church here where they held a brief prayer service.

The group left a Negro cafe near Canton, marched around a white neighborhood, and down a dusty road to the Mt. Pisgah Baptist Church.

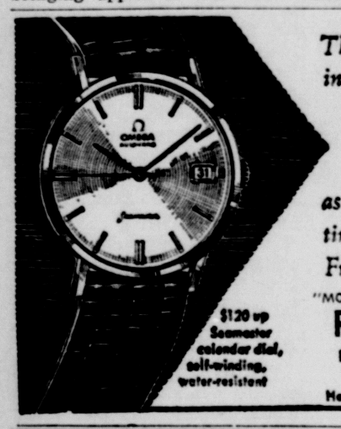

The church was destroyed by flames of unknown origin Monday night a few hours after the small frame building was used for a voter registration class.

A small number of local authorities watched the two and one-half hour march. There were no incidents.

Local, state and FBI officials have been probing the burning of the church.

Meanwhile, in Bogalusa, La., Negro leaders said at a news conference they would picket mid-town stores again Monday to press their demands for equal economic and educational opportunities.

Bogalusa was marked this week by Negro pickets urging a boycott of stores and by white counterpickets urging buyers to go inside to "fight Communism."

Negro Elected To Paper Staff At Dixie School

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The first Negro elected to a major school office at Georgia Tech feels he is just a regular Tech student.

When asked how he is treated as one of 15 Negroes among the 6,100-member student body, Gill said: "I really haven't been treated. Most of the time I feel just like a regular student."

Even living at home with his parents and his 13-year-old brother hasn't caused him to feel alienated from campus life. "I spend so much of my time there that I have had plenty of time to get to know people," he said.

Gill is a member of the Tech band and glee club; a member of the campus Catholic youth organization; a student delegate to the American Chemical Society; and a member of Alpha Phi Omega, a service rather than a social fraternity; in addition to his newspaper duties.

In his spare time, Gill enjoys playing tennis and other intramural sports and he is learning to play the piano.

Gill is majoring in chemistry and hopes to attend the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for a masters degree and then go on for a Ph.D.

Any plans beyond the Ph. D. are not definite now, he said. "I've thought about teaching, becoming a minister, a politician or even an Air Force officer."

"In high school, I was recruited for the paper during my freshman year by the English teacher," he said. He served the high school paper as associate editor in his sophomore year and became editor in chief during his junior year.

"After I had been at Tech for about six months, I thought I ought to go out for the newspaper," he said.

Gill said he selected Tech over M.I.T. because Atlanta is his home and "I thought I should apply to Tech and decided to go there when I was accepted."

THE SENTRIES at Khamba Fort dare not sleep while on duty for fear their act will be discovered by the Gurkha ghost who wanders around the fort at night. Legend has it that the fort withstood an assault until a lone Gurkha sergeant discovered a path leading up to the fort, stole up it and single-handedly took the fort, being fatally wounded in the process. Now he still stands guard over his conquest. (AP Newsfeatures)

Ghost Of Gurkha Hovers Over Fort

(EDITOR'S NOTE—An extra sentry walks the post at night on Khamba Fort. It is the "ghost of the Gurkha havildar," and high in the Kashmir Mountains he keeps the other sentries alert. When they falter, he calls out, and sometimes slaps their face.)

By CONRAD FINK

KHAMBA FORT, Kashmir (AP) — When night comes to the mountains of Kashmir, the men of Khamba Fort are tense. No sentry dares sleep on duty here.

For Indian army men who guard this fort are — or so they believe — watched over by the "ghost of the Gurkha havildar." And he is a harsh taskmaster.

In these mountains, where superstition abounds, the legend of the Gurkha ghost has become famous. It is whispered through the battalions facing Pakistan forces across the cease-fire line that divides this state.

Educated army officers, although disbelieving the legend, are content to let it grow because the Gurkha ghost solves many disciplinary problems in Khamba Fort.

PROWLS

Indian troops swear he prowls the fort at night, slapping the faces of sentries who aren't alert and using his best parade ground langage to berate slovenly soldiers.

The legend springs from fact — a heroic one-man assault on Khamba Fort during the bitter 1948 war between India and Pakistan for Kashmir. The fort, held by Pakistani forces, had fought off Indian troops for weeks.

Then, a Gurkha havildar — sergeant — found a crack in the fort's steep, thick stone walls and one night, armed only with grenades and a knife, crept inside. He killed all the defenders but was fatally wounded himself.

It is the ghost of this Gurkha that is said to roam Khamba Fort.

Lance Naik — corporal — Ram Prakash is among the fort's current defenders who say they have met the Gurkha ghost. It happened one night recently when firing broke out along the cease-fire line.

A terrifying voice rose, he says, from a turret on the fort's wall: "I have given my life for this post. Why are you so slack?"

SLAPPED

Then, says Prakash, came the sound of a face being slapped.

It was learned later, Prakash says, that a sentry in the turret was nodding over his rifle and was accosted by the Gurkha ghost.

The men of Khamba Fort says they know the Gurkha ghost well. Each can describe in detail the clothing worn by the weird figure they say strides the ramparts at night — by all accounts he invariably appears wearing only one shoe. The other apparently was lost in battle 17 years ago.

"The ghost of that man is very alert," says Naik Karam Singh. "He is a very good soldier. And I guess we're really not afraid of him becaue we know he is on our side."

Besides, the men of Khamba Fort are very careful to put out cups of tea and sweets to placate the lonely Gurkha ghost who maintains his vigil throughout the night.

Italian Premier To Visit U.S.

ROME (AP) — After putting props under his shaky center-left coalition government and Italy's wobbly economy, Premier Aldo Moro flies to Washington Monday for talks with President Johnson.

His country's political and economic ills have long delayed the encounter, which Moro's associates believe will bolster his personal prestige and reassure those Italians perplexed by his partnership with the neutralist, anti-NATO Socialist party.

Moro, a Christian Democrat, earlier this month reaffirmed his support for the Western alliance and the United States in the face of Socialist attacks on U.S. policy in Viet Nam. But in an apparent concession to his Socialist allies he and his foreign minister, Amintore Fanfani, pledged to work for the achievement of a negotiated peace in Viet Nam.

Viet Nam will not necessarily be a central topic in the Johnson-Moro talks, however. Italy has no basic interests at stake in Southeast Asia. For the average Italian there is a much more pressing situation at home — the unhealthy state of the Italian economy.

It undoubtedly will figure in the Moro-Johnson talks not because Italy is seeking aid, which it isn't, but because it is probably the major item on Moro's mind.

Mobs Vs. Police

Koreans Decry Japan Relations

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Mobs fought police in street battles Saturday after 10,000 persons poured from a rally where speakers denounced government negotiations with Japan, Korea's old overlord. More than 200 police and demonstrators were injured.

Police announced the arrest of 227 demonstrators, including an opposition party lawmaker. More than 700 persons have been detained since disorders began Tuesday.

Police reported 158 policemen injured, 11 seriously. Among the injured were about 20 opposition lawmakers who bore the brunt of the initial charge of club-swinging police.

Alarmed by the fifth straight day of street rioting, President Chung Hee Park called in his top security officers, presumably to discuss possible martial law.

Later, Home Minister Yang Chan-wood accused opposition-politicians, who called the rally, of starting the riot. He said the politicians had "base political designs to seize power."

In another statement, Information Minister Hong Chong-chul declared the government is "fully prepared to crush any riotous acts."

The demonstrators were egged on by Red China. Peking Radio said 150,000 persons rallied in Pyongyan, capital of Communist North Korea, in support of the South Korean demonstrations.

Peking's People's Daily said the situation "is most favorable for the struggle of the South Korean people. U.S. imperialism is meeting with rebuffs in Asia and other parts of the world."

While Communist agitators may have been in the mobs, the protest rally was called by the opposition Civil Rule party. It is not Communist-influenced.

A government spokesman accused the Civil Rule party and the opposition Democratic party of plotting an uprising by agitation among students. The parties denied the charge.

Most of those who attended the rally in Hyochang football stadium took no part in the disorders. The attack on police was led by about 500 students and other demonstrators.

Before the rally, about 3,500 high school students had fought with police near the Capitol, north of the rally. One group of 700 black-uniformed students tried to march on the Capitol and raided a police booth. The mobs finally were broken up.

Crowds gathered in the stadium heard Prsident Yun Po-sun of the Civil Rule party urge them to "rise up to defend the peace (Rhee) line and break up the Korean-Japan talks."

The line refers to one laid down by former President Synghamn Rhee that prevented Japanese fishermen from fishing in waters well out from South Korea's shores. An agreement to abrogate this line was signed recently by South Korea and Japan.

After the rally, Yun, who is 67, led the marchers out of the stadium escorted by young party members. As the long procession neared the main street, 1,000 yards from the stadium, a human wedge of about 100 helmeted policemen cut off the leading demonstrators.

Near the rally site, mobs attacked another police both, held it for 15 minutes, and threw files, desks and chairs into the street, where they were burned. The crowds were scattered by tear gas.

MAJ. MOCKABEE

Former Monroe Salvation Army Official Dies

Maj. Louis D. Mockabee, 51, former commander of the Monroe Salvation Army, died at Mobile, Ala. Saturday following a lengthy illness.

He directed activities of the local Salvation Army from 1952 to 1960. While a resident of Monroe, he was a member of the North Monroe Lions Club, the Ministerial Alliance and United Givers Fund.

When he left Monroe in 1960, Maj. Mockabee was stationed at Anniston, Ala. as Salvation Army commanding officer. At the time of his death, he was in charge of Salvation Army work at Mobile.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. Monday at the Rock Brown Funeral Home at Mobile. Burial will be Wednesday at 10 a.m. at Atlanta, Ga.

Survivors include his widow, Lois; two sons, Steve and Billy; and a daughter, Libby.

Anti-War Group Will Keep Vigil Near LBJ Ranch

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — A group of demonstrators, many of them of college age, began a 24-hour vigil near President Johnson's ranch Saturday in protest of United States actions in Viet Nam.

Eight of the 41 persons who marched 3½ miles under a hot Texas sun brought blankets and said they intended to remain until this afternoon.

About 10 state highway patrolmen, their arms draped over a wooden barricade, halted the marchers within half a mile of the LBJ Ranch.

The other 33 marchers planned to return to Austin and resume their vigil this morning.

Robert Pardun, 23, of Austin, a University of Colorado graduate who said he is a paid worker for the Students for a Democratic Society, gave newsmen copies of the petition his group hoped to present to Johnson. He wore a badge reading "End War in Viet Nam."

The petition calls for an end to bombing by United States planes, replacement of American troops with soldiers from neutral nations and negotiations with all parties, including the Viet Cong.

Asked if he had seen Johnson's statement made Saturday on the Viet Nam situation, Pardun told newsmen: "If it's the same statement he's made before, we don't feel his stand is adequate."

Representatives of another organization, the Houston Committee for Action on Viet Nam, also were present, as well as several persons who said they were members of no protest organization.

Some demonstrators brought small children. Several of the men had beards, and the dress included sandals and denim jeans.

Revised Opera Staged In Soviet

MOSCOW (AP) — A revised opera by Dmitri Shostakovich, the Soviet Union's best-known composer, has opened in Leningrad and "made a great hit," Tass said Saturday night. The orignal was denounced under Stalin.

Tass said the Shostakovich opera, "Katerina Izmailova," opened at the Little Opera and Ballet House in Leningrad, with Shostakovich attending.

The Soviet news agency said the original production "was staged by the same theater 30 years ago and then taken off the repertoire."

When the revised version opened here in 1963, the Communist party newspaper Pravda admittted that the original opera "was unjustly defamed" during the Stalin era and forgotten.

The original, "Lady Macbeth of Mzensk," also told the tormented story of Katerina Izmailova, who murdered for love and then found herself betrayed.

State Bar Meet

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Lewis F. Powell Jr., president of the American Bar Association, will speak to the 24th annual meeting of the Louisiana State Bar Association here April 21-24.

Others scheduled to speak to the lawyers include Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana and Gov. John McKeithen of Louisiana.

Bandung Conference

Sukarno's Fete Poorly Attended

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — The Bandung celebrations formally opened here Saturday night with a glittering state banquet attended by an array of invited Afro-Asian guests.

They included three Asian princes, an imperial princess and a hard core of Asian Communist leaders.

President Sukarno, resplendent in his grey marshal's uniform, was host for the banquet, held in the plushly modernistic hotel Indonesia. The celebrations mark the 10th anniversary of the first Afro-Asian conference held in the West Java town of Bandung.

The guests were barely half as numerous and less prominent than Sukarno had expected.

According to an unofficial count, 30 Afro-Asian countries sent representatives; invitations had been sent to 60.

Sukarno had said 10 heads of state and 10 prime ministers would come. But only two heads of state, three prime ministers, several foreign ministers and vice presidents, ministers and special envoys and ambassadors came for the celebrations.

The Soviet Union was not invited, since it did not attend the Bandung meetings of 1955.

Among others, the guests included Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-lai, North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung, who is also head of state; Cambodian chief of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the Crown Prince of Nepal, Laotian pro-Communist Pathet Lao chief Prince Souphanouvong; Princess Ashraf, the sister of the Shah or Iran; and Premier Pham Van Dong of North Viet Nam.

There were other meetings not directly connected with the anniversary celebrations. At one, Chou and Foreign Minister Chen Yi of Red China talked with Sukarno and Sihanouk. The subject was presumed to be the war in Viet Nam.

At another, Sukarno met for 2½ hours with Shojiro Kawashima, the Japanese delegate to the celebrations.

PUNCTUALITY IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK (AP) — Nine out of 10 New York City secretaries are never, or almost never, late for work, according to a survey by Bulova Time Center researchers. The pollsters found that only 5 per cent of Manhattan's Gal Fridays are late "frequently" and 5 per cent "almost always."

MODERN SECURITY FOURTH ANNUAL REPORT
THE "ONE IN A MILLION" COMPANY

We are proud to present herewith our fourth annual Financial Statement. Modern Security completed its fourth year of operation on December 31, 1964, with $154,026,131.00 of INSURANCE IN FORCE. This was an increase of 23.5% over 1963.

J. W. "PAT" JONES
President and Chairman of the Board

A GROSS PROFIT OF OVER ONE MILLION DOLLARS

OVER $640,000 RETURNED TO CONTRACT HOLDERS

Contract holders of Modern Security received $24,000.00 as their share of the profits for the year 1961, $81,843.87 for the year 1962, $219,000.00 for the year 1963, with $320,099.68 set aside to be paid as their share of the profits for 1964.

MODERN SECURITY ENTERS REINSURANCE FIELD

In 1964, Modern Security again amazed the life insurance industry by successfully entering the Reinsurance field. Reinsurance agreements with five companies—Great Missouri Life, Executive Security Life, Modern Assurance Life, Modern Investors Life, and Independence Life—make it possible for these companies, we re-insure to follow the J. W. Jones Plan for the insurance corporate development.

ANOTHER STOCK DIVIDEND FROM EARNED SURPLUS

On February 11, 1965, the Board of Directors of Modern Security recommended a 50% stock dividend to be paid on all stock in hand April 1, 1965. A 100% stock dividend was declared in 1964—giving Modern Security the unbelievable record of two true dividends from earnings after only four years of operation. In addition, a 10c per share cash dividend was declared by the Board of Directors in February.

ANOTHER YEAR OF RECORD EXPANSION

1964 was another banner year for Modern Security Life's expansion program. The company began writing business in Louisiana and Mississippi and was licensed to do business in both Nebraska and North Dakota. This brings to seven the number of states now being served by Modern Security. NO NEW COMPANIES WERE ORGANIZED IN THIS EXPANSION PROGRAM. MODERN SECURITY, WITH HOME OFFICES IN SPRINGFIELD, MO., MAINTAINS ONLY BRANCH SALES OFFICES IN EACH OF THE EXPANSION STATES. ALL CORPORATE FUNCTIONS OF THE COMPANY ARE EXERCISED AT THE HOME OFFICES IN SPRINGFIELD, MISSOURI. There is no holding company involved in Modern Security.

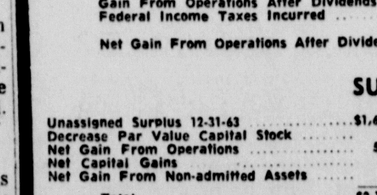

The agency force of Modern Security now numbers over 700 and this number should exceed 1000 by the end of 1965.

Plans were recently announced for a multi-million dollar Home Office building for Modern Security Life. Construction on this project is expected to begin within two years.

Naturally, we are very proud of our Modern Security record and all those who helped make it possible. The Board of Directors, Agency Force, Home Office Staff, our Contract Holders and Stockholders.

It is our conviction that Modern Security Life further demonstrates the sound principles inherent in the free enterprise system. We are looking to the future with pride and with confidence.

Sincerely,
J. W. JONES, President and Chairman of the Board, Modern Security

6 Penetrating African Stories

A SCORPION ON A STONE. By Gwyn Griffin. Holt, Rinehart. $4.95.

Griffin's sharply honed story-telling powers are devoted here to six stories about contemporary Africa. They have literary merit and the topical impact of today's confused ideologies.

The author is dealing with political and sociological dynamite, an explosive substance somewhere between ancient gunpowder and current nuclear devices.

His people include the English, French and Italians of fading colonial influence, the unreconstructed Boers and stubborn Arabs, the Eurasians and other dominators, all mixed in with the half castes and blacks to create a fantastic social amalgam.

Two of his stories are taut, bloody chronicles of mortal combat and treacherous betrayal, and they are real thrillers. But he plays softer notes in other stories of acid irony and comic contrast, and his final narrative is a mood piece set in the isolated hinterlands.

There is a bitterness in some of these stories, in which the author finds the young junior officers of Britain are caught hopelessly between the rising expectations of disgruntled enlisted men and the stupidly archaic, 19th Century habits of the snobbish officer caste.

He offers a contrast between fatuous colonialism, watered down into wavering compromises, and the restless, often aimless, emergence of a striving, determined, native people.

Griffin is an experienced taleteller. He fascinates you with exotic narratives at the very moment he is driving home some hard, gruelling observations of African life.

Adventure Of War In Big Castle

CASTLE KEEP. By William Eastlake. Simon & Schuster. $5.95.

When adventure stories combine comedy and tragedy, adding the piquancy of wit, there is sure to be a catchy experience for the reader. Eastlake's novel, without being literarily profound, offers a pulse-pounding excursion into an adventurous realm.

The scene is an ancient castle in the Ardennes Forest, and the time is late December of the war year 1944.

The place is manned by a detachment of Americans who have invalided out of combat in previous engagements, now under the command of a Maj. Falconer, a "wounded buffalo" who is obsessed — rightly, as it turns out — with the idea that the Germans may attempt a break-through in his sector.

His little crew of defenders is a motley set — a musician, an art historian fascinated by the castle's treasures, a young officer who couldn't quite follow his father's commitment to the ministry, and some odd soldiers — among them, a cowboy, an Indian, a Negro intellectual and an opportunist who sets up a bakery in a neighboring village.

The castle's decadently aristocratic proprietor is a comte with more lineage than scruples, who trades his very young wife for the hope of survival.

The central thread of the story is the strange hold which the castle comes to exert upon the oddly divergent people involved in its fate.

Eastlake's flip dialogue skirts the edges of credibility, yet he handles his whole range of characters with quickly changing, deftly sympathetic feeling. And he shakes you with the pathos of the castle's final defense.

Good story. And the story's the thing.

Famed Cellist Is A Raconteur

CELLIST. By Gregor Piatigorsky. Doubleday. $4.95.

Piatigorsky's charming autobiography is full of anecdotes — jokes played on him, pranks he pulled, times his temper blew up, good musical performances and disasters, remarks and incidents which have nothing to do with music but are memorable, a few scrapes he got himself into.

Piatigorsky has selected and written well. His stories are warm and interesting as much or more for "human interest" as for their musical context.

Of course, his own life is central, but Piatigorsky has not made the telling of it simply serve his own ego. He has remembered much about "characters," acquaintances and friends, and he has not indulged in simple name dropping.

From childhood in Russia, Piatigorsky took a long road to international fame as a virtuoso cellist. There were many inexpensive rooming houses and temporary jobs, in restaurants and occasional concerts. There were four years in the Berlin Philharmonic, which could be hired by anybody and was booked solid by conductors, soloists and composers — showing themselves off. For certain "paying conductors," orchestra members agreed to play "as usual."

There was membership in trios and quartets, some of them famous, including the appearance with Artur Schnabel and Carl Flesch when Flesch put a piece of music the trio was not playing on Piatigorsky's stand. The cellist, straight-faced, rose to the occasion. He played from memory — and turned pages.

Pope Ends Tradition At Easter Services

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI broke with tradition Saturday night to personally preside over a sacred Easter eve service marking the end of lenten mourning.

After lighting a six-foot candle symbolizing the Easter light of Christ, the pontiff celebrated a Mass announcing the joy of Easter in Christ's resurrection from the dead.

It was the first time Pope Paul officiated at the Holy Saturday ritual, which by tradition is not attended by the pontiff.

The dramatic moment of resurrection and pealing of bells normally comes at midnight but the Pope celebrated the service at St. Peter's Basilica early because the Basilica is never open at night.

The ceremony began at 6:20 p.m. (12:20 p.m. EST)

The pontiff was garbed in red, the papal color of mourning, when he left his Vatican apartments for the Chapel of the Sacrament. Then he put on his golden miter and moved in a procession to the porch of the Basilica.

The fire representing Christ reborn was struck there from flint and kindled with charcoal. The Pope lighted the "Lumen Christi" (Light of Christ) candle from the new flame, and the procession entered the Basilica, where thousands of tourists and Easter pilgrims were in the congregation.

The images of the saints at this stage were still covered in respect for the passion and crucifixion of Christ on Good Friday. The Pope sat to the right of the confessional altar on a throne upholstered in red and set against a purple backdrop.

The pontiff celebrated Mass afterwards with Paolo Cardinal Marella, William Theodore Cardinal Heard, Federico Cardinal Callori di Vignale and seven other Vatican prelates.

Ant Fight Planned

MAGNOLIA, Miss. (AP)—Unless there is a protest, the Pike County Board of Supervisors will borrow $45,000 to fight fire ants.

The board Saturday announced plans to borrow the funds, which would be added to $9,880 from the State Plant Board.

CHANCES OF REMARRIAGE

Statistics as a rule are rather boring, but I ran across some the other day on a subject that is a little out of the ordinary and I think they are quite interesting. I suppose they are particularly interesting to me because I am in the life insurance business.

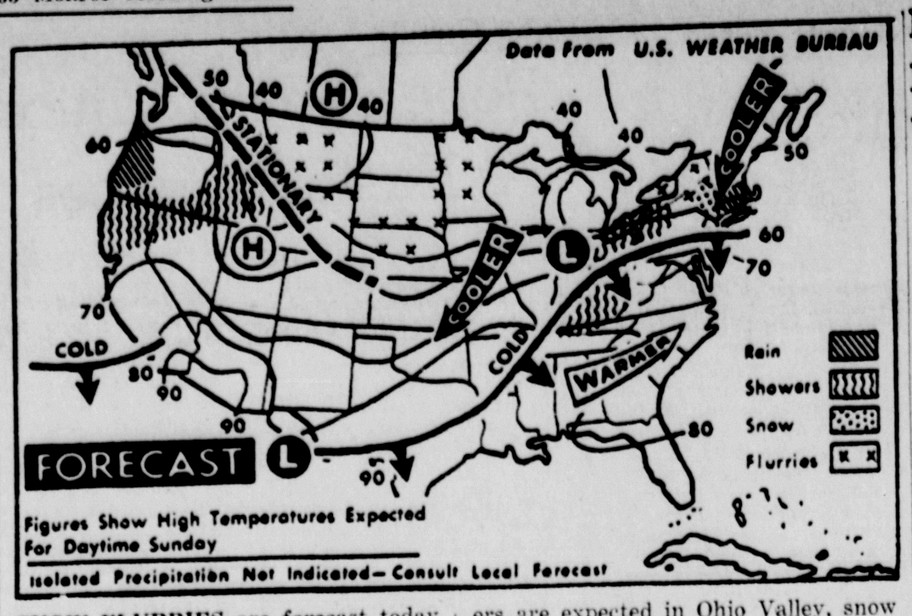

A recent survey shows that three out of every ten widows between the ages of 21 and 25 remarry, only one out of five between 26 and 30, and two out of fifteen in the 31-35 age bracket. The ratio of remarriages from 36 to 40 is only one out of 15. What is it beyond that? No married man has any right to assume that his wife will remarry promptly and happily. Life insurance decisions should never be reached on the assumption that the widow will remarry.

Most of us have seen cases where widows, usually with small children, were more or less forced into a hasty remarriage simply because of financial circumstances. In such a case she can't afford to be too choosey. On the other hand, we have seen cases where the widow was left enough income to afford a comfortable living for herself and the children, and by being financially able to bide her time was fortunate enough to find a real fine person for a husband and it resulted in a happy marriage.

Even though, according to the above statistics, the odds are against remarriage some men will continue to assume that their wives will remarry. And for them, I recommend this philosophy:

Leave your wife enough life insurance so that if she does remarry, it will be because she wants to and not because she has to.

Powell Suggests Reopening Ties With Red Cuba

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., said Saturday the United States should resume diplomatic relations with Cuba.

"We should have the same kind of relations with Cuba that we have with Russia and Yugoslavia," Powell said in a copyright interview with the San Juan Star. "I don't see what makes Cuba any worse than Moscow."

The Harlem congressman, who has a home outside San Juan, first supported Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro after the ouster of the Batista regime but later Powell's enthusiasm for Castro cooled considerably.

"I feel nevertheless that the United States should consider that relations with any government are salvageable and should do everything possible to attain this," Powell said.

Powell said there were many congressmen who want to renew ties with Havana but "they don't come out and say it openly."

"President Johnson has expressed willingness to be with 'If we can negotiate with Viet Nam, which is so far away, there is no reason why we should not negotiate with Cuba, which is much more vital to us.

SPOTLIGHTING THE AREA

Monroe, 1898

With Jimmy Hatten

Monroe, 1898 — what was it like?

This, according to one publication of the day: "Monroe is not the only center of the delta business but much of the capital which is behind enterprises scattered all through the district is controlled there.

"Sitting on the banks of the Ouachita, with boats plying from New Orleans and on into Arkansas for nine months of the year and bringing to her doors the majority of the business of the parishes bordering on the river; with two railroads, the Houston, Central Arkansas & Northern and the Vicksburg, Shreveport & Pacific, the one running north and south and the other east and west, bearing commerce to her; with four saw mills, three shingle mills, three banks, two oil mills, a sash, door and blind factory, an ice factory, a brick factory, two big cotton compresses, waterworks, electric lights, telephones, a gas supply, a volunteer fire department, well equipped, and some of the finest business houses and larges corporations doing business in any of the small cities of the south, she has worked wonder in the past and her future is smiling brightly upon her."

ONE SENTENCE

Quite a comprehensive picture in one sentence, but that was the language of the day. The description is contained in a booklet entitled "The Tensas Delta of Louisiana, published by James D. Lacy & Co. of New Orleans and Chicago.

The booklet noted that Monroe had grown from a population of about 3,000 in 1890 to about 6,000 at the time of publication. (Current population is estimated at near 60,000).

Other facts noted about the town included the fact that the main business street was paved for a distance of seven blocks with vitrified brick and that for the benefit of the population on the west bank of the Ouachita, a steel bridge "has just been completed" at a cost "of something like $100,000."

The town was on the move and there was plenty of land for sale. Price? "Lands are held at from $1 to $30 an acre," the booklet noted.

Collegians Flood Daytona Beach For Wild Holiday

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Thousands of sunburned college students, away from the restraint of home or campus, milled around Daytona's famous white beach Saturday looking for excitement.

Some of them found it at the booking desk. A total of 543 had been arrested on charges ranging from intoxication to indecent behavior, under-age drinking, trespassing, disorderly conduct, profanity and traffic offenses.

In spite of that, Police Chief Folson Jr. said the crowd, smaller than last year's, was generally well-behaved.

"But remember," he said, "we still have two big days to go."

About 35,000 students have poured into this beach city within the past 24 hours, he said, and a total of 60,000 was expected by today.

One hundred city policemen and 30 highway patrol officers are working on shifts of 12, 14 and 16 hours to maintain order.

Heart Campaign By Lions Club Exceeds $700

West Monroe Lions Saturday collected over $700 for the Louisiana Heart Association, which will be used to found a memorial research grant in the club's name.

President Bill Reighney announced the total of a day-long street collection shortly after the drive's conclusion at 6:30 p.m.

The funds were delivered to Heart Association Field Director Pat Mitchell by Reighney and Project Chairman Bobby Wilson.

They will be sent to association headquarters in New Orleans and assigned to finance a study project, under the heading, "West Monroe Lions' Club Memorial Heart Research Grant."

It is the first such grant to be founded by and named after a civic club in the United States, and is in memory of Lions who have succumbed to heart ailments.

Wilson described Mitchell as "thrilled by the response to the drive," while Reighney expressed "sincere appreciation" to the hundreds of residents who contributed."

About 40 Lions were on the street during the 12 hours of the drive.

Refugee Helpers Arrested By Reds In East Berlin

BERLIN (AP) — Six West Germans have been arrested and charged with spying and scheming to spirit East Berliners out of East Germany, the official East German news agency ADN reported Saturday.

It said the five men and one woman were captured "recently."

According to ADN, two of those arrested were to hand their documents to East Berliners who would then flee to the West. The two would try to return to the West faking drunkenness and claiming loss of their documents.

Two others, the report added, were scheming to carry East Berliners to the west in a station wagon, while the remaining pair, a couple, were to "carry out spying" in East Berlin.

ADN said all six had been working with the consent of the West Berlin government, which declined comment.

CURTAIN CALL

By JACQUE BIEGENWALD

Rehersals for "Mary Mary" are progressing well.

Those chosen for the play are: Mary — Alice MaGouirk, a charming young lady with a gamin face; her husband, Bob, played by George Brian, for whom no other comment is needed; Dirk Winston by Garland Moore, and have you seen a better Colonel Pickering? Having seen four productions of L a d y, I haven't seen a better. And, playing the part of Tiffany is Jennie Carroll. Tiffany is one of those people who have been given advice on just about everything and sometimes remembers to follow it. One of the scenes of this show that is "way out" is when she is trying to find out something about Bob. She is so sober and almost prim that you forget that she is also young.

NEEDED

Help! help! help! Won't someone kindly remember where they have seen an Indian head? One is needed, oh so needed. Just a wooden head of almost anyone would do. And in the same line, Chris West needs other help. We need someone to operate the sound system. Also, someone to take care of the props, and the booth must be staffed. Chris needs help, now and during the show, backstage. T h i n g s must be built and then moved. True, there is work, but not the back breaking kind that some people seem to think. However, if you can give an evening to helping, wear clothes that don't mind being spotted with paint.

Things were getting cluttered up in the office and a file cabinet was needed. Someone heard of the need and sent out a nice four drawer cabinet. It was one more of the things that mark the people of Monroe as being something special.

I wonder just how far I.TandT. went in their findings when they decided to open a plant in Monroe? I wonder if they considered our Little Theatre? It would be nice if, in additions to all the other attributes of the area, they had given thought to the fact that we do have one of the finer Little Theatres. We of the Little Theatre are happy to welcome new industries, whether large or small, to the area. Large or small, we all like to feel wanted.

MOVING AWAY

We are losing two of our characters, Cliff Farnum, maybe the best backstage man to ever work this theatre and Hugh Matthews. Due to a shake up in the company for which they work they are being transferred. Cliff is going to Tyler, Texas, just about 90 miles from Big D. However, at this writing Hugh has no idea as to where he will go, but let's hope there is a Little Theatre.

NO SMOKES

MAKARSKA, Yugoslavia (AP) — Smoking tourists who visit the scenic coastal village of Promajna should bring their own cigarettes with them. The village has 100 residents of whom 64 are men, but not one of them smokes, so the village shop does not stock tobacco.

HIGH JINKS on the rooftops of London are performed by Julie Andrews and Dick Van Dyke and a lightfooted corps of chimney sweeps in the choreographical high spot of Walt Disney's "Mary Poppins." The musical fantasy in Technicolor, also starring David Tomlinson and Glynis Johns, is now showing at the Jim Theatre.

CAMERA ANGLES

Built-In Light Meter Advance Achieved

A noteworthy advance in the operation of a built-in light meter system is the oustanding feature of the "Spotmatic," newest addition to the Honeywell Pentax 35mm single lens reflex camera line.

Two sensitive cadmium sulfide cells within the camera's viewfinder housing measure only the brightness of the final image focused on the groundglass, the one which goes to the film plane simultaneously. The cells are coupled directly with the exposure system of the camera through a single needle visible in the viewfinder. To center the needle, you can: 1. change the lens aperture, or 2. change the shutter speed.

The refinement which has taken place in the Spotmatic strives for accuracy in light meter reading with the internal electrical system. A demonstration of the painstaking tests used to check this accuracy was shown to a group of photographic reporters who were getting a first look at the camera. It was very impressive.

GREATER VIEW

Normally, the handling of any external light meter requires judgment on the part of the operator. The meter views a far greater area than is photographed and can be tilted too high or too low. And meters are often misled or influenced by surrounding illumination when it is radically different from the brightness of the area being photographed.

The tests, therefore, were made in difficult or problem lighting situations involving backlight, sidelight and cross-lighting. They also involved using filters, extension tubes and extreme magnification where exposure corrections must be figured in as well.

The results of the tests showed that the internal exposure measurement system, which calibrates only the final picture image, is exceedingly reliable and accurate despite the complex lighting situations. The photographer making the tests centered the needle for proper exposure in each case and did not bracket the exposures. The resulting color slides were right on the button.

Electric power for the Spotmatic's through-the-lens meter system is supplied by a tiny mercury battery in the base of the camera. The power is turned on by a small switch on the side of the lens mount and is automatically turned off when the picture is taken. The battery, good for one year normally, may be checked at any time with a simple test.

BASIC ELEMENT

The new camera has a basic eight-element 50mm f-1.4 lens with fully automatic diaphragm. It can also be used with any other Pentax lens and with a series of new lenses.

Among them: a macro-lens (50mm, f-4) which focuses from infinity down to life-size, four inches away; a zoom lens which ranges from 70 to 150mm, and a 35mm f-2 lens, the fastest Japanese wide-angle lens for any single-lens reflex.

The ability to compose, focus and meter a picture without taking one's eye from the viewfinder is a practical advantage. Another point: the photographer can deliberately underexpose or overexpose for a specific effect by moving the needle below or above the center point. This is good for a photographer's ego and better than a fully automatic camera because he retains control and makes the final exposure decision.

Arthur Godfrey Broadway Role

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Enter Arthur Godfrey, character actor.

"I've had this hankering for a long time," rumbles the famous voice of the airwaves. "Just always too bloody busy — still am.

"But we're getting alone, it says in the book, so if we're going to do it, we just better get at it."

Encouraged by a couple of out-of-town test runs, Godfrey is installed now on Broadway in a show which couldn't be more aptly titled — "Never Too Late." The engagement is limited, but at 61 he's got his sights set on musical comedy and movies.

He regards his part in "Never Too Late" — a play about tardy parenthood that's been beguiling audiences for 2½ years at the Playhouse — as his ideal acting challenge.

BECOMES CHARACTER

"It requires me to become a character," he expounds with the solemnity of a Stanislavski student. "It takes me pretty far out of myself to be this pompous, hot-tempered guy who really means well.

"If you go on and think you can get those laughs just being yourself nothing happens. I know. You only get the laughs if you create that character and sustain it. I've got a constant barometer. I know I'm doing all right as an actor when the laughs are coming steady. Besides, there are a couple of lines I don't like, but when I put them over, I know I'm really acting.

"The nicest thing that happened to me when we tried out in Florida (setting house records at both Palm Beach and Cocoanut Grove) was the way people told me that when the curtain was up 10 minutes they forgot it was me and just saw the man I was playing."

He pauses to sip a glass of milk with the contentment of a man who has solved a tricky riddle. For Mr. Godfrey, if you listen closely, wants people to know he's treading the boards, but doesn't want people to come merely to see Godfrey.

"I don't want to trade on my

name to bring people in. When you're surrounded by people like Maureen O'Sullivan and House Jameson — he's been in it all the way — you feel a lot stronger," he says.

The Broadway assignment is one of several years given to network radio.

Godfrey has also done a number of guest appearances on TV shows and a Lucille Ball special.

In his 7th floor CBS sanctuary, Godfrey sits surrounded with tiger rugs, a stuffed jungle cat, framed citations of sundry accomplishments and a press agent who murmurs "that's off the record of course" when a slight indiscretion slips past the boss' lips.

"Before I quit this business there are a lot of things I still want to do," Godfrey says. "I feel young, creative and full of energy."

Back in 1946 Godfrey made his only previous Broadway appearance in "Three To Make Ready," a revue that also included Ray Bolger and Gordon MacRae. He dropped out after a couple of months because of what he looks back upon as a fine case of medical misinformation.

"Between 'Talent Scouts' and radio I was on the air then about four hours a day. One morning at rehearsal I lay down on the floor to rest. An engineer came in and thought I was dead and called a doctor. The staff physician was off, so this gynecologist comes in and says 'Hmmm, a classic coronary.'

"He scared the hell out of me and made me into a neurotic for six years. Then a doctor friend put me through a series of tests to prove I'd never had a heart attack. Since then I've never even had a stomach pain."

APPEARS WELL

There has been no symptom of recurrence and Godfrey appears to be in peak condition. But once in a while he pauses in broadcasts to tell listeners of the desirability of semiannual physical checkups as the best guard against cancer.

While secretly wishing to be an actor, Godfrey made preliminary preparations through the years by dropping in on shows "maybe a dozen times each to study some of my idols like Preston, Drake, Mostel and a lot of others." There have been no formal acting lessons.

Last summer his agent persuaded him to slip down to the Bucks County Theater at New Hope, Pa., and be the narrator in a vevival of "Our Town."

WEST OF HUDSON

"I'm a New York City boy that never made good with the hometown audience," he asserts. "Get me west of the river, and I pack them in. But none of the regular Broadway or Madison Avenue crowd will come to see me." He isn't letting that fret him.

Long Scheduled For Keynoting By U.S. Chamber

U. S. Sen. Russell B. Long will deliver the keynote address at the opening session of the 53rd annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in Washington on M o n d a y, April 26, G. Allen Kimball, president of the Louisiana State Chamber of Commerce said Saturday.

Kimball expressed gratification that the largest delegation of businessmen from Louisiana ever attending the U. S. Chamber's annual meeting is scheduled to be present this year.

On the evening of April 26, Sens. Allen J. Ellender and Long, U. S. Reps. F. Edward Hebert, Hale Boggs, Edwin E. Willis, Joe D. Waggonner, Jr., James H. Morrison, T. Ashton Thompson and Speedy O. Long, their wives and key staff members, are invited to be guests of Louisiana businessmen and wives in Washington at an informal reception and dinner in the Statler Hilton Hotel, arranged by the State Chamber and local chambers of Commerce throughout Louisiana.

President Johnson will deliver the principal address at the luncheon Wednesday noon concluding the annual meeting of the U. S. Chamber.

Stamp News

Eight Added In Current Reich Series

The Federal Republic of Germany has added eight new stamps to its current series of definitives, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency. The series depicts gates, palaces and castles built during the last 700 years. Half of the set is inscribed for use in West Berlin and the other half for the rest of the Republic. The denominations are 10, 15, 20 and 40 pfennigs. Depicted are: the Zwingers "Wallpavilion" in Dresden, Tegel Castle in Berlin, Foyer in Lorsch, Trifels Castle in Pfalz.

The Second 1965 US-BNA Catalog by H. E. Harris is now on the market. Over 2,800 price changes are noted in its 160 illustrations in the enlarged "Americana" section. Also included are United Nations complete plus a U. S. stamp identifier. Virtually all U. S. issues are included — postage, airmails, postage dues, special delivery, revenues, envelopes, postal cards. Confederate States, etc. British North America and U. S. possessions also appear. It is available for 50 cents from H. E. Harris & Co., Box A, Boston, Mass. 02117 and is postage free.

The Robert Fulton 5-cent commemorative will be issued Aug. 19 with first-day ceremonies in Albany, N. Y. On that day in 1807 Fulton's steamship, Clermont, arrived in Albany after an eventful voyage up the Hudson River. The new stamp will mark the 200th anniversary of the birth of Robert Fulton. He also built the first steam warship in 1815 — the year of his death.

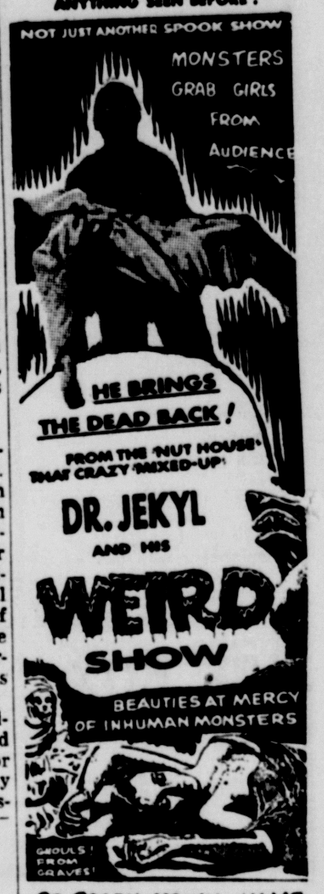

Although it is rather in advance, collectors are reminded that first-day cancellations for the Fulton commemorative may by obtained by sending addressed envelopes, together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, Albany, N.Y. 12201. The envelope to the Postmaster should be endorsed "First Day Covers 5 cent Robert Fulton." Requests must be postmarked not later than Aug. 19, 1965.

From Great Britian comes word of various forthcoming issues. There will be a stamp honoring Sir Winston Churchill, although design and dates have not yet been announced. A stamp will honor the International Tele-communications Union. Another will be for the 700th anniversary of the first Parliament.

$40 Million Set For Mississippi In HEW Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) has alloted $40 million for Mississippi in the new budget.

HEW said Saturday that 31 Mississippi public schools and 27 colleges and junior colleges have complied with the 1965 Civil Rights Act.

The act provided a pledge which, if signed, allowed schools promising not to operate a segregated school system to continue receiving federal funds.

In a report, HEW said it received assurances of compliance from three school districts, copies of court orders requiring desegregation from two others and voluntary desegregation plans from 26 schools.

Schools under court order to desegregate do not have to sign the pledge of compliance.

The report said statements of compliance have been received and are under review from the Mississippi Board of Education and the Mississippi Library Commission.

The report said estimated federal obligations for various education programs in the state for the fiscal year beginning July 1 will total $40,689,405.

A total of $2,800,500 will go into existing programs direct to school districts; $6,983,750 will be in direct payments to the state and $30,905,150 will be channeled into a new elementary and seondary school program.

THIS IS THE OLD Sugar Theatre in Monroe which was built in Monroe about 1915-16 by the late Barney, Sam and Isador Sugar, and was one of the most advanced for that time. The building was the second theatre constructed in the city by the three men. The first was located at the corner of Jefferson and Walnut, former location of Passman Equipment Co., presently occupied by Southern Hardware. The theatre building shown above was later sold to the Saenger Theatre chain and was located at DeSiard and Third in downtown Monroe. Saenger sold it to the Paramount-Gulf Theatres, present operators of the Paramount. The building had been remodeled, but much of the original materials and design can be seen today in the present Paramount theatre and the location is the same. If you have and old Twin Cities scenes bring the pictures in to us, along with all the available information.

Castro Calls Cubans To Fields

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — This Easter weekend, coinciding with the fourth anniversary of the Bay of Pigs invasion and with reports of mass arrests in Cuba, found exiles from the Caribbean Island thronging to churches in prayer for their Communist-controlled homeland.

Havana Radio meanwhile broadcast a steady flow of reports about success of a mass movement to cut sugar cane in celebration of the Bay of Pigs victory. Monitors heard no religious mention in the broadcasts. Dance music contrasted with exclusively sacred songs broadcast in past years during this period.

Some exile leaders expressed belief that Fidel Castro's call to Cubans to head for cane fields this week was in effect a move to divert them from thoughts of impending unrest.

The prime minister, who headed the cane volunteers, said in an interview broadcast by Havana Radio that Cuba has increased its sugar output 50 per cent since 1963 and that "the victory we are achieving now is a painful reality for American imperialists."

The broadcast said Castro added in a Camaguey cane field where he had whacked away with President Osvaldo Dorticos and his cabinet ministers for five days: "Before the revolution, Cuba was a collector of dollars to the exclusive benefit of American imperialist monopolies on our island. Cane is our gold now."

Refugees arriving from Cuba this week have reported arrests of hundreds, including military personnel and officers, throughout the island. The arrests, although smaller in number, were reminiscent of wholesale roundups immediately after the 1,500 Cuban invaders struck at the Bay of Pigs April 17, 1961, in an unsuccessful attempt to overthrow Castro.

The Gesu and Saint John Bosco Roman Catholic churches, with large Cuban memberships, prepared for overflow attendances during midnight Easter vigil services. Maundy Thursday and Good Friday services were jammed with expatriate worshippers.

Tijuana Holiday

Students Pass Up Bars For Project

TIJUANA, Mexico, (AP) — Three hundred California youths who spent their Easter vacation in Tijuana bypassed the downtown honkytonks to labor among the poor in the papershack slums of this border city.

They pounded, painted and dug, and left a new, 16-crib hospital that will provide a measure of medical care for the ailing infants of a poverty-stricken neighborhood.

The hospital, sponsored by Project Amigos, is only part of the 10-building complex that has grown up during the past four years as a result of volunteer effort on both sides of the border.

"We like to call it a free wheeling, nondenominational, people-to-people project supported mostly by faith," says Elmer Ellis of Alhambra, Calif.

Ellis was in Tijuana this week supervising the work gangs of students from several California colleges and church groups.

He explained that the Juarez-Lincoln Social Center is devoted primarily to health care for the poor of the area.

"The clinic charges 25 cents a visit, and is self supporting," Ellis said. "we have a lot of drugs donated and Tijuana doctors contribute their time. The clinic has an average of about 100 patients a day."

In addition to the medical facilities, the center provides classes in nursing and English, and has a school for beauticians.

"We graduate 15 nurses every three months and they are in great demand in Tijuana," Ellis said.

Project Amigos was founded by Mrs. Mabel Danalis of San Diego. She got 10 World War II barracks moved across the border from San Diego and the project has been expanding since.

Funds for the work come from churches and many other sources. Volunteers working on the project contribute money and materials.

There are now smaller centers in seven other Tijuana neighborhoods.

The hospital was dedicated Friday following Easter Communion services attended by students who had worked on the project during the week.

They stood in the dust on the windy hillside as Dr. Roberto Escalante, the hospital's chief of staff, expressed the neighborhood's appreciation.

"I thank you on behalf of my people," Escalante said. "I only wish you could be here to see the faces of the mothers when they bring their sick children here."

Jim Bigelow, 20, a junior at the University of the Pacific, has spent two Easter vacations working at the project.

Bigelow, of Amarillo, Tex., put it this way:

"Something has been added to my life, something you cannot know until you've worked on a project of this type.

"It's like a friend of mine told me. He said he learned more in one week in Tijuana than he learned in a year at college.

KILLED IN MUTINY

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI)—A former Chinese naval officer making his maiden voyage as the captain of a freighter was killed in a mutiny aboard the vessel, it was reported here Saturday.

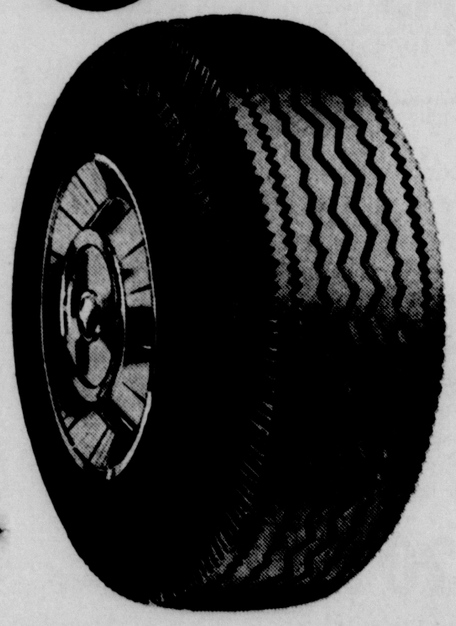

Nationalist security sources said Shen Feng-chiao, captain of the 10,000-ton S.S. Changshen, was killed by a crewman identified only as Lo last Tuesday when the ship was docked in Mangalore, India.

AEC Detonates Nuclear Device At Nevada Site

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission said Saturday it had set off an underground nuclear explosion at its Nevada test site three days ago as part of its program to develop peaceful uses for nuclear explosives.

The explosive of four kilotons, equivalent to about 4,000 tons of TNT, had been buried in hard volcanic rock at a depth of about 280 feet.

The explosion created a crater of about 350 feet in diameter and 100 feet deep, with a lip of about 60 feet, the commission said.

"Data significant to the nuclear excavation program were obtained," the ADC said in a statement, adding: "Most of the radioactivity from the experiment remained underground. Some radioactivity was released. This was only a small fraction of the radioactivity which was produced, and most of it was deposited in the vicinity of the experiment. The very small amount of radioactivity released offsite does not constitute a health hazard."

First Music Scholarship Concert Set

The first annual Music Scholarship Concert has been set for May 7 by the Department of Music at Northeast Louisiana State College.

Proceeds from the concerts will be used to establish scholarships for deserving and qualified music and music education students at Northeast, according to Joe Barry Mullins, acting chairman of the department. Future scholarship awards will be made to instrumentalists, pianists, vocalists and students in all ares of music.

The concert, to be held in Neville High School Auditorium beginning at 8:15 p.m., will feature the Northeast Concert Choir and Concert Band.

Tickets for the concert will go on sale Wednesday, April 21, in Room 113 of Biedenharn Hall on the Northeast campus. Admission prices will be $1 for high school and college students and $2 for adults.

The concert band, directed by Mullins, and the choir, directed by Davis Bingham, will perform several numbers separately and then perform together in two major works.

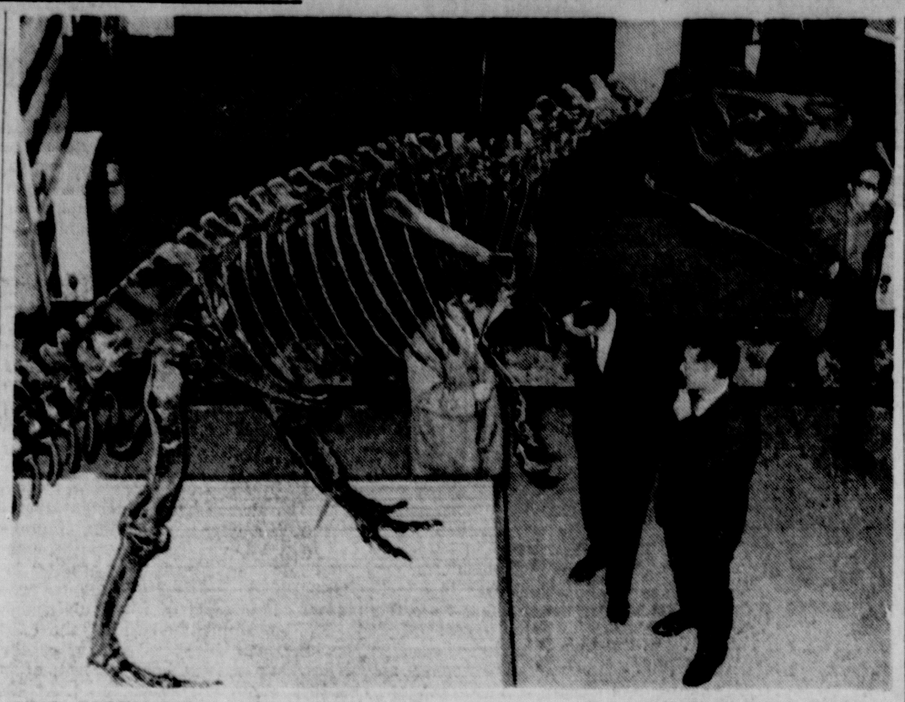

They will jointly present a performance of the "Grand Symphony for Band," by French composer Hector Berlioz. This work, one of the most notable ceremonial compositions in music, has received only a few performances in this country and should be of unusual interest, both locally and nationally, according to Mullins.

In addition to the Berlioz symphony, the choir and band will also perform jointly "Battle Hymn of the Republic," arranged by Peter Wilhousky.

Dinosaurs Make Comeback As New Attention Getters

By ROBERT MYERS

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP) — The dinosaur, that ugly and stupid and clumsy and terrifying — and fascinating — beast of so many yesterdays ago, is making a comeback.

The dinosaur, pretty well shunted aside as a study specimen in the early 1930s, refused to remain a scientific oddity. Paleontologists and geologists are back at work on the whys and wherefores of the great creatures.

ATTENTION

The giant reptiles are getting renewed attention in museums, in a shale and limestone quarry in east central Utah and in a World War II Army barracks on the University of Utah campus above Salt Lake City.

The source for the new fossil remains is the Cleveland-Lloyd quarry. It is named for the nearby hamlet of Cleveland and for the late Malcolm Lloyd Jr., Princeton alumnus and Philadelphia lawyer. Lloyd wondered why the Princeton Museum of Natural History contained no dinosaur skeleton. Then he financed the 1940-41 Princeton University expedition, which found the pit in the high desert country.

There are indications hundreds of dinosaurs died in or near Cleveland-Lloyd, over a span of 10 to 20 million years.

The region was once a swampy lake — flat and wet and oozy. That was before the Rocky Mountains rose from the Plains.

Cleveland-Lloyd came to scientific attention in 1927 when it was pointed out to Golden York, then curator of the University of Utah's Museum of Earth Sciences. The pit had been known for years to Cleveland area residents, among them a youngster named William L. Stokes.

Stokes grew up and while studying for his doctorate in geology at Princeton, stimulated interest in the quarry. The Princeton fossil hunt resulted.

Except for occasional sorties to Cleveland, and despite Stokes' efforts to attract more scientists, the quarry drew little further attention until 1960.

TWO SLIVOVITZS

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — In this country where the most popular drink is slivovitz, a distilation of plums, two towns are named Slivovitz, one of them in Bosnia and the other in Servia.

CHAIRMAN

That year Stokes, chairman of the University of Utah's Geology Department, had his way, spearheading establishment of the "Cooperative Dinosaur Dig." The project is just what the name specifies — museums and universities working together to restore dinosaur remains.

Stokes described the dig as an effort to "furnish specimens to institutions which cannot afford to get out and find their own. Participants make a financial contribution and that gives them a knocked-down dinosaur. The recipient is responsible for mounting the specimen."

The dig came up with its first fossils in 1960 when five museums and colleges banded with Utah. They were the Exhibit Museum, Ann Arbor, Mich.; Yale Peabody Museum, New Haven, Conn.; Buffalo Museum of Science; California Academy of Science, San Francisco; and Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah.

Since then, other schools and museums have joined the project. Twenty-five skeletons have been sent or are being readied for shipment to Tokyo, Los Angeles, Seattle, Fort Worth, Nebraska, Indiana, Utah, Toronto, Ottawa, Glasgow and Modena and Milan, Italy.

The great dinosaurs have become a part of the life of James H. Madsen Jr., a 32-year-old petroleum geologist who signed on as curator of the Utah museum while awaiting a permanent job in his field. He has been curator nearly six years and has all but forgotten his original specialty. Madsen now calls himself a bone mechanic.

The quarry so far has produced remains of more than 60 dinosaurs and there are indications of many more. "But really," Madsen said, "there is no end in sight."

The Army barracks at the university is the restoration center. Formally the Dinosaur Preparation Laboratory, it's known by those who work inside as the "dinosaur department store" or the "bone barn."

Here fossils are unpacked, prepared, catalogued and made ready for shipment. Long tables on the second floor contain thousands of remains — vertebrae, tails, feet, jawbones and claws.

At one end of the barracks is the fabricating room where plaster bones are cast. Most dinosaur skeletons contain only 50 per cent original material. The millions of years have taken their toll.

The dinosaur department store spends a good deal of time filling in missing bones. With metal-backed latex rubber molds made from actual parts, Madsen and his student helpers can fabricate any part of a skelcton, and any size. It takes a careful study to tell the difference.

The department store prepares skeletons for on-the-spot assembly by numbering bones. Using a block and tackle, dinosaurs are put together in the bone barn and a chart is made of the assembly. Then the skeleton is pulled apart, packed in boxes and shipped. If all bones and plaster parts are on hand, the specimen can be packed half a day.

How did Cleveland-Lloyd come to be a dinosaur graveyard? Madsen cites conflicting theories.

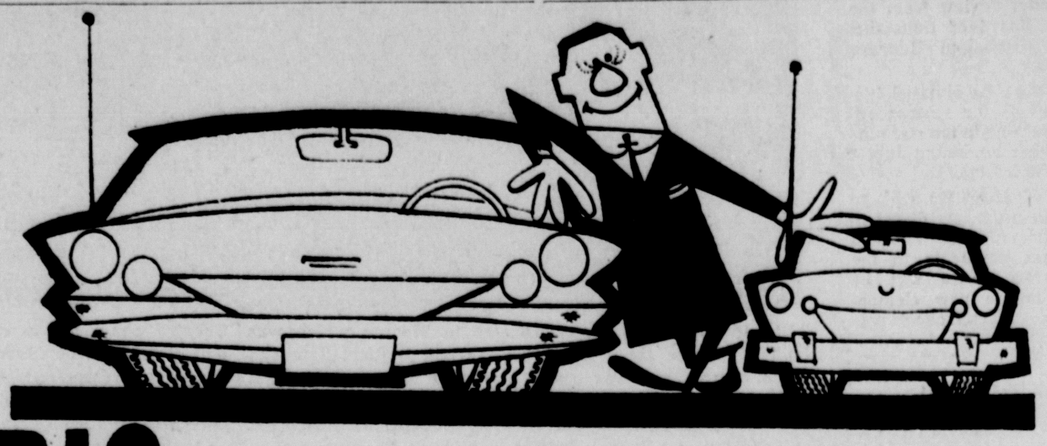

"Some believe it was the last waterhole as the swamps and lakes dried up," he said. "This would have attracted the monsters and as the spot dried they died.

"Equally possible, however, is the last-island theory. Heavy flooding could have brought the dinosaurs to the region as a refuge."

Legends of The Cross

Now upon the first day of the week, very early in the morning, they came unto the sepulchre, bringing the spices which they had prepared, and certain others with them.
And they found the stone rolled away from the sepulchre.
And they entered in, and found not the body of the Lord Jesus.
And it came to pass, as they were much perplexed thereabout, behold, two men stood by them in shining garments:
And as they were afraid, and bowed down their faces to the earth, they said unto them, Why seek ye the living among the dead?
He is not here, but is risen: remember how He spake unto you when He was yet in Galilee,
Saying, The Son of Man must be delivered into the hands of sinful men, and be crucified, and the third day rise again.
And they remembered His words,
And returned from the sepulchre, and told all these things unto the eleven, and to all the rest. — Luke 24: 1-9

". . . And when they were come unto a place called Golgotha — they crucified Him."

Upon a cross, hewn by a stormy mob, the son of God sacrificed His life for the salvation of mankind. Today, the Christian world over, Easter, the greatest day in the Christian church, is celebrated to remind us of our humble nature before Christ.

Historically, we know little about this place called Golgotha or Calvary.

Of the cross on which Jesus died, we know even less. At the time of death, the knowledge of craftsmanship, or the lack thereof, offers little solace.

STORY INCOMPLETE

In detail, the story of Christ's 33 years on earth is incomplete. His birth in a stable and His death on a cross are widely known, but even the scholars of Biblical history find spans of years unaccounted for. But where the Bible and later interpretations have failed to enlighten us, legends have been most generous. In early history's dawn, myths and legends were attempts to help solve these puzzling and mysterious aspects of life.

Nature offers us a storehouse of legends, many of which concern themselves with the crucifixion of Christ. For almost every tree of the forest there is a legend saying that particular tree gave of its wood to make the cross on which Christ was crucified.

One such story is that of the aspen. In Poland, where it is popular belief that the tree was used, it is told that of all the trees available, only the aspen would allow itself to be cut down. But when it realized what it had done, when the nails were driven into the wood, it began shuddering and has been trembling in fear of God's wrath ever since.

LEGEND OF THE PEAR

In parts of Germany, it is believed that the pear tree was used. The story goes that the wood of the cross took root after Christ's death and produced blood red fruits and flowers and even the leaves were red-veined.

And still another account has it that a pine tree native to Pomerania was chosen. Since the crucifixion that particular tree has produced branches in cross - like whorls. It is interesting to note that relics of the Cross, held sacred in churches across the world, reveal, to no proven extent, that the cross was made from a pine tree.

In England the belief is held that mistletoe was a tree at the time of Christ's death, and its wood was used. As a punishment, the tree was condemned to be a parasite to the end of time.

And in Italy, we are told, clematis, native to that particular country, furnished the wood for the cross. It, too, was condemned to be a low growing vine, crouching close to the ground.

In other parts of Europe, it is believed the alder, a shrub of the birch family, was the chosen tree. To this day it "turns red" when cut.

And still another tale involves other Biblical figures. It seems that when Adam was dying he sent his son, Seth, to the Garden of Eden to get some of the juice of the Tree of Life. Instead, Seth was given three seeds which he planted. In years to come, they produced cypress, a cedar, and an olive tree. And from these three the cross was formed . . . the cedar the upright beam, the cypress for the cross arm, and the olive for the inscription over the cross.

DOGWOOD LEGEND

But probably the most widely recited legend is that of the dogwood. The perfection of the starry blossoms demands that a legend be spun about it.

It seems that at the time of the Crucifixion the dogwood was as large as the oak and other trees of the forest. And its wood was firm and so strong that it was chosen as timber for the Cross.

Trees of the forest felt greatly distressed that wood should be used for such a cruel purpose, and Jesus nailed there on the Cross in His pity for all sorrow and suffering said: "Because of your regret and pity for My suffering, never again shall the dogwood tree grow large enough to be used for a cross. Henceforth it shall be slender and bent and twisted and its blossoms shall be in the form of a cross — two long and two short petals. And in the center of the outer edge of each petal there will be nail prints, brown with rust and stained with red. And, in the center of the flower will be a crown of thorns, so that all who see it will remember. And this tree shall not be mutilated or destroyed, but cherished and protected as a reminder of My agony upon the Cross."

LEGEND HAS it that Christ promised the dogwood tree whose wood was used for the Cross on which He was nailed, ". . And this tree shall not be mutilated or destroyed, but cherished and protected as a reminder of My agony upon the Cross." — A branch from a dogwood in Monroe, an area which is made more beautiful in the spring by its abundance of the trees, was used for this year's Easter color. (Staff photo by John Fogleman)

GREATER LIMITS

And today our imagination, often the author of legends, carries the dogwood story to even greater limits.

The pink variety of the flowering dogwood, so the story goes, is blushing with shame because of the purpose it served in the crucifixion. And according to legend, the red dogwood, called the Cherokee, blooms to remind us of the blood shed by our Saviour.

And the accounts continue. But, whatever the tales, be they fact or fiction, our feeling for nature is enriched by their very existence.

River Jordan Flows Through Land Of Political Strife

By DAVID LANCASHIRE

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Glorified since the days of the Bible, the River Jordan is a brackish, narrow stream less than 100 miles long, but it carries the strongest political current in the Middle East.

The Jordan flows into the Sea of Galilee, now called Lake Tiberias, and winds southward to drain into the heat shimmering Dead Sea. Fishermen on Tiberias still cast their nets in Old Testament fashion, but now Syrian guns range over the lake. On the opposite shore, the muffled thud of machinery reveals Israel is pumping from an underground station.

The Arab world charges Israel is stealing Arab water to irrigate the Negev Desert so it can house another four million immigrants. Israel says it will use the water to develop already settled areas, and not to colonize the Negev.

To combat Israel the Arabs have an ambitious — and perhaps impractical— scheme to cut off three headwaters that feed Lake Tiberias.

The Israeli diversion and the Arab counterdiversion could mean war but outside experts doubt that the Arab scheme will progress far enough to start a war.

MIDDLE EAST JITTERY

United Nations officers who supervise the armistice lines between Syria, Jordan and Israel say war seems no more likely now than it has for the past few years.

Nevertheless, the Middle East is jittery.

Cairo is swept by rumors that the army is calling up reserves. House windows in Port Said have been blacked out with blue air raid paint. Lebanon has called for army conscripts amid talk of plans to evacuate villages near the Israel frontier.

By night, Arab commandoes slip across the frontier into Israel on bombing raids. Gun battles — with tanks and artillery — have erupted between Syria and Israel.

Israel has warned it would fight if the Arabs tamper with the river's flow, and on March 17 two Syrian bulldozers on the diversion project were blown up by shellfire.

CRUCIAL YEAR

Egypt's President Gamal Abdel Nasser has publicly admitted the Arabs are not ready for war but he has declared 1965 is the do or die year against Israel

The Arab diversion scheme demands that the Arab nations stick together, but bickering has foiled many joint Arab plans. A unified Arab army to defend the project has not gotten much beyond the paper stage.

The Arab diversion centers on four water sources:

The Hasbani River, dry in summer, flows 15 miles through Lebanon and crosses the Israeli frontier through a gorge. Lebanon is to dig a 2½ mile tunnel at Souk el Khan — nine miles from Israel— to divert the Hasbani into the Litani River.

The Banias River rises in Syria and almost immediately drops into Israel. Syria is to dig a 53 mile canal to carry Banias waters around Israel to Jordan. In places, the canal would be 500 yards from Israeli border forces.

The Yarmouk River in Jordan flows into the Jordan proper below Lake Tiberias. With U.S. aid, Jordan has harnessed the Yarmouk to a significant extent, and Yugoslav engineers are at work on a dam at Mukheibeh. The General Electric Co. of France has offered a $17 million loan to finance it, and Jordan has called in French experts as consultants.

Although the Mukheibeh Dam is listed as part of the new anti-Israel project, Jordan has planned it for years.

The Wazzani Springs, which bubble up in south Lebanon, are the fourth diversion site. Lebanon is to pump out the springs and divide the water with Syria. The Wazzani is a mile and a half from Israel gun positions.

Lake Tiberias itself lies inside Israel, flanked on the Syrian shore by a demilitarized armistice strip only 10 yards wide in places.

In Jordan, the least crucial point, the Mukheibeh Dam is under way.

PRELIMINARY WORK

In Syria, bulldozers have begun preliminary work under army orders. But the Syrian project is an immense, difficult and dangerous one, leading to speculation whether the Syrian government can finish it. The canal promises few benefits to Syria, except the satisfaction of hurting Israel.

In Lebanon, reluctant key nation in the Arab project, the government says it is awaiting the go ahead signal from the Arab unified military command. Nasser has accused Lebanon of dragging its feet.

The over all diversion project is wrapped in red tape and secrecy. Unofficial reports from the first Arab summit conference last year—when the diversion idea was adopted as an alternative to going to war — estimated the cost at $17.5 million, plus almost $30 million for the dam in Jordan.

Private estimates contend the total actually may be $200 million for the cost of depriving Israel, not the cost of irrigation works to use detoured water.

Experts say the diversion channel would hold only about two thirds of the rivers' flow—so Israel would still get some 30 per cent.

MERGER AGREEMENT

To defend the projects, the Arab nations have agreed to merge their armies in a unified military command.

Military chiefs have selected a general staff of 90 officers from 13 countries under Egypt's Gen. Aly Aly Amer. Pledges to assign 15,000 troops as a nucleus have not materialized, and one official says "The possibility of unified military action seems as remote as it was a year ago."

Two of the strongest Arab armies have their hands full. Some 50,000 Egyptian troops are in Yemen, and Iraq has massed soldiers to fight Kurdish tribes.

Civilian sources claim that Syria, whose army professes itself ready to launch a holy war against Israel, has only enough ammunition to make an all out stand for three days.

Lebanon has reservations about a unified force. Its leaders are aware that the Syrian and Egyptian armies are political forces whose presence here might endanger stability.

Private and diplomatic sources who have studied the Jordan waters issue contend the Arab diversion scheme would by no means cripple Israel's plans.

The Israeli pumps lift 130 million cubic meters of water a year from Lake Tiberias. When giant pipelines are completed four years from now, they will take 320 million cubic meters.

Steaming in the desert heat, the lake loses almost that much — 300 million cubic meters a year—by evaporation alone.

Boiling down the complicated calculations, experts figure the Arab counterdivision scheme would drain off 180 million cubic meters. Since the lake could be dammed to provide 500 million cubic meters, this would leave the Israelis the amount they want.

DESALTING EXPERIMENTS

The Arab sources concede Israel may find a way to beat the salt problem. It is experimenting on nuclear ways of desalting water.

Both Nasser and the Israelis know that the United States, which keeps its 6th Fleet on guard in the Mediterranean, might intervene in case of war.

In 1953, when the Israelis started to divert the Jordan, war with the Arabs almost exploded.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower sent Eric Johnston to work out a unified development plan for Jordan waters.

Johnston asked Lebanon, Syria and Jordan how much water they needed from the whole Jordan Valley, and ruled that the excess — 40 per cent of the total — should go to Israel. The plan was finally vetoed by the Arab League.

Israel claims the amount it plans to pump from Tiberias will not exceed the grant under the Johnston plan. One Arab official says "The figures we gave Johnston were a huge mistake."

The United States still supports the Johnston plan and any project that fits in with it.

THIS MAP SHOWS THE NARROW, brackish River Jordan along its 100-mile length from the Sea of Galilee (now called Lake Tiberias) southward to the Dead Sea. The river is a point of contention between Israel and the Arab World as one seeks to use its waters for irrigation and the other plans to cut if off at its headwaters. (AP Map)

Good Samaritan Law

"Am I my brother's keeper?"

The law does not make it so, and yet there are cases in which the callousness of onlookers is inconceivably shocking and revolting.

A young man lolled on a boat dock, soaking up the sun, casually puffing on a cigarette. He was a strong swimmer but at this moment he was relaxing—and watching a man die. The man had fallen out of a boat and was struggling desperately to stay above water. The young man watched, without moving, until the other sank to his death in the water.

Was this an indication that people in the last half of the 20th century have become so heartless that they care nothing for their fellow man? It might have been, but it wasn't. The sordid incident occurred in 1928 in Massachusetts, illustrating that there have been in all ages those who are utterly without compassion. A lawsuit followed and it was held that the man on the dock had no responsibility whatever to try to save the other's life.

That was the law then and it is the law now. On March 13, 1964, 38 men and women in the Kew Gardens of New York City watched from their apartment windows while 28-year-old Kitty Genovese was stabbed to death by an attacker who had time to leave and return to finish his murderous assault — and they had no legal responsibility.

A judge once said: "They must answer to a Higher Court." But that would not relieve their earthly responsibility nor wipe out their base display of a lack of human compassion.

There once was a case much nearer home than either of those mentioned above in which four persons were trapped inside a partly submerged car. Police and others gathered around and eventually drank coffee while waiting for the arrival of an ambulance. Someone had remarked, "Oh, well, they must all be dead." After the ambulance arrived, it was found that one of the four apparently had been killed instantly and that one apparently had drowned some time later. Two were still alive but one later died of the lengthy exposure.

Recently a group of lawyers, professors and newsmen gathered at the University of Chicago to talk about law and morality in a seminar entitled, "The Good Samaritan and the Bad." Their judgment on the point was unanimous: Of course, there is a moral responsibility to act within reason to save the life of a fellow man.

Aware of the absence of legal responsibility, they pondered the possibility of how the law could be changed so that it, at least, would encourage the Good Samaritan.

The gist of their conclusions was thus summarized by Professor Charles O. Gregory of the University of Virginia law school:

"I suppose there is much to be said for the old Anglo-American attitude of minding your own business — except that, as the world changes, other people's business in more and more ways is becoming yours. I do not see how we can legislate charity, altruism and courage — both physical and moral.

"But, some things we can do:

"We can widen the immunity of rescuers from tort (civil) liability.

"We may even compensate them for harm they incur themselves.

"And we can punish people for failing to do something about situations with which their acts casually connect them, innocently or otherwise."

We must enact laws to protect good Samaritans. Nevertheless, a Good Samaritan who will willingly risk his life to save some one else will not, in a moment of gravest emergency, spend much time thinking of legal technicalities.

East Germany Outrage

Although it is generally recognized that the Berlin Wall erected by Russia and East Germany stands out as the world's most prominent and notorious disgrace and most wanton flouting of human liberty, that fact is emphasized on the occasions when gates in the wall are opened and West Berliners are allowed to flock through for a day to visit their relatives.

It is particularly stressed by the fact that no East Berliners are permitted to cross the line. They are as effectively stockaded and imprisoned as were the captured American allies in World War II during the rule of the late German dictator Adolf Hitler. But this is a time of peace and a time when all people are supposed to be free.

Beginning on the Monday before Easter and lasting until April 25, residents of West Berlin are being permitted to make one one day visits to relatives or friends living in East Berlin. Up to 16,000 a day crossed over during the first few days of special permission and it was expected this number would be greatly increased as time went on. Most of the 800,000 West Berliners were said to have saved their passes to make the entry without difficulty.

On at least one occasion, an East Berliner who tried to reach the western side of the city was captured. West Berlin police said they heard four shots from a submachine gun not far from the Brandenburg gate. Shouting between the guards made it clear a refugee had been captured.

If anyone doubts the sinister purposes of Communist Russia and the East German puppet government, he has only to think of the virtual enslavement of the East German people, and the outrage thus involved to be convinced that the Soviet Union is against freedom of the people.

Blind Leading Blind?

Jokes about women drivers are not the oldest jokes in the world but they are about as old as automobiles. Now a driving school operator says she is going to put an end to the myth that women are poor drivers.

In reply to statistics showing women to be safer drivers than men, the men usually come up with this one: "Do you know why men have more accidents than women? They run into each other trying to get out of the way of women drivers."

The optimistic head of the largest driving school in England says the old music-hall joke about women drivers is dead and that she is going to bury it.

Denise McCann, the driving school head, plans to hire 15 women driving instructors because she says a survey she conducted showed many women and some men prefer to be taught by a woman.

If men can't joke about women drivers, how else can they explain why there is an insurance penalty on male drivers between the ages of 15 and 25 but that no such penalty exists for the female drivers?

No physical marker can long remain at the North Pole, because the face of the earth's northern axis frequently changes as the Arctic Ocean's pack ice drifts across it.

Composer of the sentimentally southern "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" — James A. Bland — was of African descent and was born in Flushing, N.Y.

To Improve On Mother Nature

Views Of Our Readers

Urges Letters To Johnson

Bastrop, La.

To the Editor:

I would like to take this means of urging the public to write, as citizens and tax payers, to Mr. Johnson, the Senators, Representatives, and any other person or persons whom they see fit, and demand an unbiased and complete investigation of all organizations, including the N.A.A.C.P., CORE, Black Moslems, A.D.A., and especially Martin Luther King, and demand that their findings be made public for all to see. This is one of the few freedoms that we have left. Every good American citizen should exercise this freedom as long as we can.

As of now, there is no way a man can be prosecuted for demanding action, protesting, or stating his views, but how long will this last if we do not stand up and be counted? Are you going to stand up and be counted, or will you be like the people in New York City? Will you stand by and see your neighbors assulted, raped, and murdered, and never turn a hand to help? A person that refuses to write their government officials and help turn the tide of Socialism, is no better than a spineless man that would watch his neighbor get beat to death and not try to help him. Mr. Johnson considers us to be in favor with what he is doing, if we do not protest. Every person that I have talked to is very much in opposition to the way the President and Federal Government is handling things, but do the officials know that? Not unless you write and tell them.

I would like to try a plan, which I believe will be very effective. On or around the first day of May 1965, every citizen that wants to protest, write a letter or post card to The President of the United States, demanding a complete and unbiased investigation of Martin Luther King, N.A.A.C.P., CORE, The Black Moslems, A.D.A., and all the other organizations that have Communists affiliations. Also demand that the truth be published for all to see and read. I honestly believe this is our only chance to have these organizations ever investigated. I earnestly urge all good citizens to write their State and National Senators and Representatives, and let their feelings be known. Just remember, if you do not protest, you are considered to be in favor of what the Federal Government is doing to us.

C. V. FLOWERS

Dollar A Loaf

New Orleans, La.

To the Editor:

Our federal government has too much money. War time taxes are being collected during peacetime. This would be understandable if our national debt were being reduced. It isn't. It's increasing. Federal handouts everywhere are responsible.

Our state government is loaded with over $500 million in bond issues. More are contemplated. Over $200 million does not buy one brick, sack of mortar or lime. It's paid out as interest into the pockets of the bond buyers. A tax reduction is virtually impossible under these conditions.

Gold stocks are depleting. Silver is nearly gone, but the green back printing presses roll on and on. A dollar for a loaf of bread? Not as far away as we think.

RANDALL TRUDEAU

King Is Defended

To the Editor:

I enjoy reading the editorials in the Morning World even though I sometimes disagree with the viewpoints taken. I would like to comment on "Unethical 'Evidence'" (April 6) and "Delusions of Grandeur" (April 8).

You say there is no secret "about the fact that Chief Justice Earl Warren was committed in advance to do everything in his power for the advancement of integration, even if he has to rule unconstitutional some sections of the Constitution of the United States?" What evidence do you have that Warren is willing to rule sections of our Constitution unconstitutional?

You seem to be unsure that the titles "Reverend" and "Doctor" are justifiable with reference to Martin Luther King Jr. I call to your attention the fact that he has a Bachelor of Divinity degree from Crozier Theological Seminary and a Ph.D. degree in philosophical theology from Boston University, which quite adequately qualifies him for both titles.

You say King has been quoted as saying he is really a king—that he has been appointed or annointed by God as king. You fail to name who quoted him as having said this. I doubt very much that Dr. King actually made such a statement.

You charge that Dr. King "instigates riots and killings by purposely arousing feelings of people to such a great extent that they are unable to restrain themselves from some sort of violent action." You appear to be blaming Dr. King for the evil deeds of his opponents — those who murdered the Rev. James Reeb and Mrs. Viola Liuzzo, for example. To me this is very strange thinking.

The only kind of law violation which Dr. King endorses is when someone purposely violates that which he is convinced is an unjust law, and he does so openly and willingly accepts the consequences of breaking the law. In willingly going to jail they are able to call attention to the law which they feel is unjust. Christians in Communist countries often have to do the same thing. Rather than denying their faith by submitting to laws prohibiting their worship, they break the laws and willingly go to jail. The early Christians, of course, did the same thing in regard to certain laws of the Roman empire. Dr. King therefore is doing what has been done by other Christians whom we revere.

What's War About?

Chatham, La.

To the Editor:

I know you have tried to write the truth in your editorials, but I believe you are on your way to becoming a Johnson convert. I still wish you or Mr. Johnson or somebody would tell me in clear terms just why we are fighting the type of war we are in South Viet Nam, and just what group of people or natives in said country actually want us to fight for them in order that they may be self-governing. Personally, I believe we are to blame for a large part of the mess there and we are not fighting for the people there but to carry out a program of our own.

I am becoming disgusted at the number of articles in your paper and other papers trying to show that China and Russia are about to tear at each others throat. Our so-called Intelligence reports seem to bear this fact out and then the President or some state department member shows how we must go easy with Russia, because we might need her friendship against China. I am just a country nobody, but I say that only fools would fall for such tripe.

I notice you haven't been very friendly to the Ku Klux Klan, but I say had it not been for this organization and others similar you would not have freedom of the press in the South today. Now go ahead and say, "Poor boob". I was raised in one of the nicest towns in Louisiana and the clan was an active force. I remember going out to some of their meetings, and watching some of their ceremonies and I also enjoyed some of their outings. What impressed me as a child was the strong stand they took, and the results they got regarding law and order. I also noticed that most of them were members of some Christian church, Methodist church, or Baptist church. Perhaps others were represented, but these three I noticed. Doesn't it seem strange to you that a group of Northern Liberals, or really Leftist Pinks, decided that the Un-American Activities Committee shouldn't investigate the Klan after all. They are the very group that started demanding it in the first place. Maybe they did realize if the Klan is brought under congressional investigation it will cause some people to realize that most civil rights groups should also be investigated, since they are the chief opponents of the Klan.

Many religionists, moralists, socialist, one-worldist are so wrapped up in peace at any price and save the world from self - destruction that they are convinced we can use Communist tactics and apparatus and even Communist leaders to gain the objective of world peace and brotherhood. The Bible teaches there is no way for right to compromise with evil and win the victory. The name of Jesus and the cause of Christ is now appearing in so many places dressed in Red. Can it be the great woman in scarlet, which John shows in Revelation, is getting ready to ride out before the world? Most teachers say this woman is the false church or false religion but I say this woman is the United States of America who is the mystery Babylon and we are going to be destroyed because of our great betrayal. The beast which we ally ourselves with, Russia and Red China, shall also be destroyed.

Voting Rights Bill

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

(The following letter was addressed to Sen. Allen J. Ellender and a copy sent to this newspaper for publication.)

Dear Sen. Ellender:

I wish to express my sentiments concerning the President's so called "Voting Rights Bill" proposal. In my mind, and I am sure that I am speaking for many other individuals, this proposal is the most notorious and infamous infringement on the Rights of Americans that I have ever seen or read with the exception of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. I contend that any member of Congress who would vote for such an Act or Bill is guilty of gross negligence of office and as such he would also be guilty of perjury since he would have sworn an oath to uphold the United States Constitution and I can tell you that the Constitution has been violated in principle to such an extent that it would be correct to say that wholesale perversion has resulted in its interpretation.

To propose such a monstrosity in order to capture votes is to reach the lowest level of immoral neglect of office and self corruption. I must contend however that the American People can place much of the blame on their shoulders since it is they who decide on the type of government and how it operates. No one can deny the fact that the people are responsible for the government be it a Communist Dictatorship or a Free Republic.

In regards to the Boston Minister and the Detroit Housewife who were slain in Alabama during a so called "Civil Rights Demonstration," I can only say that it was indeed unfortunate. The minister, however, should have been in Boston attending to the affairs of his congregation and the housewife should have been in Detroit with her husband and children. No matter what miserable excuse would be given in defense of their presence in Alabama the fact remains that they had no business there whatsoever in relation to the situation. The citizens and residents of Alabama did not issue any invitations to any outsiders, including the leaders of the various Civil Rights groups, to come to their state and create civil disobedience and discord among the citizens.

For the most part, these outsiders are professional agitators dedicated to making a mockery of the laws and violating the principles of society or either rank amateurs being used by the professionals for an evil purpose and looking for an adventure in order to glorify their ego. These are the individuals who in essence control the White House and Congress through threats of violence and gross intimidation. The President can say what he wants, but the minority of this nation is ruling the majority. That dedicated agitator and promoter of domestic violence and discord, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., is, in my personal opinion, nothing more than a radical rabble rouser who possesses an excellent talent in creating hate between two particular races. His objectives are repulsive and revolting, his ambitions are obvious and terrifying, his followers are ignorant and slaves to a cause dedicated to the perversion of civilization.

For my ideas and opinions I will be labeled as a racist, extremist, radical right-winger and I might even rank being called a fascist. I am only one thing however and that is an American. I am an American in the ideas of Jefferson, Washington, and Goldwater. The propaganda and hate machine owned by the Democratic Party and its left-wing relatives is very effective as it was one of the chief determinants in the defeat of Barry Goldwater. Never in my life have I witnessed such a persecution and ridicule of one individual as was done to Mr. Goldwater by the forces of his opposition. These same elements preach brotherhood and love and promote in direct opposition hate and discord to any one who might not agree with them. This is indeed typical of the Communists who are so dedicated to the enslavement of this world, that reasoning is impossible.

In closing let me say now that I believe the Voting Rights Bill will pass without modification. When it does, then you and I can wave good-by to Free America and greet Police State America. I can probably expect to be arrested before long for making statements criticizing The Great Society. One thing about it, there will be a day when We Will All have to account for our lives on Earth and at least I will be able to say that I did not support those elements that worked toward the enslavement of mankind.

Emotions Direct Integrationists

SEN. J. WILLIAM Fulbright and I have never agreed on any matter of foreign policy, as far as I can recall. But on domestic matters we have sometimes been on the same side of the fence, probably to each other's embarrassment.

Our votes on the 1964 Civil Rights Act were identical, and for many of the same reasons. Sen. Fulbright — from an outstandingly liberal position — and myself — from a conservative one — both seriously questioned the constitutionality of federal intervention in local affairs.

We did not question the goals of knocking down discrimination: we questioned the means. (Many liberals and even many Republicans who felt that no "enlightened" legislator could vote against the act conveniently seem to forget the vote of Sen. Fulbright, whose enlightenment is virtually an article of liberal faith.)

At any rate, the Arkansas senator has had something else to say on the matter, and once again I find myself agreement with him, and, to make the case even stronger, in disagreement with a member of my own party.

THE POINT INVOLVED is simply this: we are all too prone to let emotion rather than facts sway us in discussing civil rights. No good can come from this, least of all for the minority groups whose long-range interests in the community are at stake.

Sen. Fulbright has chosen the tool of high humor to make his point. He has done it classically. It deserves some attention. Unfortunately, a majority of the press and TV commentators have ignored it. Usually when Sen. Fulbright speaks they break their necks covering him.

Fulbright's target is the New York Republican congressman John Lindsay. Lindsay was quoted in a New York Times Editorial as having said that "in Newton County, Ark., for example, 78 per cent of the whites are registered and not one Negro." This startling statistic was used as justification for making the proposed new voting rights law more sweeping.

HERE IS SEN. Fulbright's reply on the floor of the Senate: ". . . it matters not to the Times and Mr. Lindsay that no more than two non-whites of voting age reside in Newton County out of a total non-white population of eight and that there is some question, even in the collective mind of the Census Bureau, as to whether either of them is a Negro. Many among us would lay the failure of these two poor disenfranchised souls to register to apathy or accident, but not such stalwarts of justice as the Times and Mr. Lindsay . . .

"Some of us might even wonder how successful federal registrars would be in signing up even 50 per cent of the nonwhite population of voting age inasmuch as the hills and gullies of Newton County, which lies deep in the Ozark Mountains, have often shielded residents of the area from federal officers who in the past have sought to aid the local populace in computing their excise tax liabilities . . .

"I fear the national reaction will be so strong that indignant citizens from across the country, and particularly from Manhattan, will rise up as one to demand the enactment of whatever legislation the Times and Mr. Lindsay feel must be passed to eradicate once and for all this insidious evil in Newton County, Ark., (where) . . . the total registration of the county would be increased from 2,680 to 2,682."

Behind all the humor, the point is absolutely serious. We do not serve even the best cause well by twisting the truth.

Liberty Amendment

Clayton, La.

To the Editor:

The great social program is beginning to shape up but you ain't seen nothing yet. The Great Society will produce a vast hord of off beat racenicks. We have many among us now who feel the world owes them a living but before this race mixing great society is through with our national treasure, our national anthem will have been trodden into the dust with our national flag. I have been on this earth for half a century and the only thing ever given me was the food and clothing my parents gave me when I was a child. I have never expected anything and would refuse any gift bought with indebted shrinking dollars of our taxpayers money.

We do not owe it to ourselves nor do we owe it to anybody to keep raising the national debt to start new spending programs nor even to keep the old ones going.

We say and think we send the brains of our country to Washington to legislate our laws and represent us in government, but are they doing that? You can bet your muddy boots they aren't. They are going with the tide. They don't want to be laughed at and said they are backward and from a backward state so they are coerced into voting with the administration on these wild spending sprees. Starting new bureaus, creating new divisions of spending helping create a head so big on the monster that he will devour himself. (We have some good men in Washington like Williams, Passman and Stennis but far too few.)

I have lost all faith in Washington. They are squandering riches that will hasten our downfall. You my friend — you and I will live to see the fall of the United States if we do not put a stop to it now.

Our last bastion, the vote is gone.

Our only hope is The Liberty Amendment. If 37 states would hurry and adopt the Liberty Amendment and we could get congress to ratify it we might be saved.

Easter Thought

Today, of course, is Easter Sunday — the day that believers everywhere hold dear. Occasionally, we run across a thought that expresses what we want to say better than any other. Such is the following one by Phillips Brooks, which says:

"The great Easter truth is not that we are to live newly after death — that is not the great thing — but that we are to be new here and now by the power of the resurrection; not so much that we are to live forever as that we are to, and may, live nobly now because we are to live forever."

Sunday Poem

Because Easter is the day observed by Christians to commemorate Christ's resurrection, it is something special to them. One of our favorite poems which has a lot of truth all of us could apply, is the one called "Indifference," written by G. A. Studdert Kennedy dealing with his crucifixion and too often the attitude of the world today. It goes like this:

When Jesus came to Golgotha they hanged Him on a tree,
They drove great nails through his hands and feet, and made a calvary.
They crowned Him with a crown of thorns, red were His wounds and deep,
For those were crude and cruel days, and human flesh was cheap,
When Jesus came to our town, they simply passed him by,
They never hurt a hair of Him, they only let Him die;
For men had grown more tender, and they would not give Him pain,
Still Jesus cried, 'Forgive them, for they know not what they do,'
And still it rained the wintry rain that drenched Him through and through.
The crowds went home and left the streets without a soul to see,

Wife's Viewpoint

Often this column pokes fun at wives and the ladies in general, but we still like them. And to prove it we're going to give their viewpoint here today. In fact, if a husband hasn't found out yet what irritates his wife, maybe this will help him — and he can either mend his ways if he wants marital peace or employ some of them in case he's contemplating drastic action.

Anyway we asked a number of married women what remarks by husbands are most irritating to their wives. Amazingly all jumped at the idea of expressing themselves, including the boss at our house.

It appears from the answers that most husbands might have happier home lives if they would simply keep their mouths shut, or at least refrain from putting their feet into them. But, still, on the other hand silence isn't always golden — only when the wife doesn't want you to answer her.

But be that as it may, the survey that these five husbandly remarks — or variants of them — are the most common causes of wifely ire:

1. You don't know how lucky you are.
2. I don't see why we have so much trouble getting along on my salary. A lot of wives manage on a lot less.
3. That isn't the way my mother used to do it.
4. Is that what we're having for dinner? That's what I had for lunch.
5. Can't you ever get ready on time. We'll be late again.

How about some runner-up quips from the "head" of the house that is almost equally sure to start a breakfast royal:

1. Don't tell me your troubles. I got troubles of my own you never heard of.
2. I'd feel like staying up for the late show, too, — If I didn't have anything to do all day but sit around and rest.
3. Is that another new dress?
4. Why can't you make your children behave.
5. Dry them — the dishes — yourself. I had a hard day.
6. Take it out — the garbage — yourself. I'm tired.
7. When I'm gone, honey, why don't you marry for money the next time.

A husband also can usually get a good living room war going by firing off any of the following observations:

If that's what you're going to wear, I'm staying home.

I don't know why I'm batting my brains out trying to save up for retirement when I'm not going to make it anyway.

What do you know about anything anyway.

For Pete's sake, look at the road. The guy who gave you a driver's license must have been blind.

Or I'd trade you in for a new model — but I don't think they'd give me much.

One wife said that after 35 years of marriage it still upset her to have her husband wake up at 7 a.m. and ask her to make coffee.

The prize, however, should go to the young woman married to an ex-sailor who tells her to "Shape up or ship out."

The Funny Side

A wife told this one on her husband the other day. It seems the son was kept in after school and when he came home the father wanted to know why.

"I didn't know where the Azores were," replied the boy.

"In the future," said the father, "just remember where you put your things."

Interesting Facts

DO YOU KNOW how much groceries cost you last year? The average U. S. family spent $1,500. And it is estimated that you can save up to 10 per cent of your bills if you put blinders on your wife before sending her to the supermarket . . .

LONG BEFORE the crucifixion of Jesus, the cross was a symbol of protection and guidance. The swastika, adopted by Adolf Hitler as the Nazi emblem, is thought to be the most ancient form of the cross. Both the Hebrews and Egyptians used the cross as a symbol to guard them from harm.

The Poverty Program

Maybe the American people ought to stop and figure out just who is going to get the money under the anti-poverty program, because there's no doubt about it any longer: the money this year is in the poverty program.

Take for instance, New York City's anti-poverty program, which has a $22,500-a-year woman director. It has just put on a woman consultant at $500 a week. Two others also serve at $65 a day and $60 a day. One is the wife of a judge.

Furthermore, Mrs. Mary Conway Kohler, who draws the $500 a week, is practically giving her time. She says "The $100 a day I receive from the poverty program is really one of my cheapest fees."

Oh, well . . .

Twin Cities Week In Review

Firm's Location Favors Growth

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

We predict that in the coming year the Twin Cities will add at least: 718 more residents in 200 additional households, 182 more school children, $1.4 million more personal income, $458,000 in bank deposits, 194 more passenger car registrations, 130 more employees in the service industries, six new retail establishments and $662,000 more in retail sales volume.

TYLER

Actually, what's been itemized here has somewhat more substance than a mere Drew p Pearsonian prediction. The figures represent legitimate expectations of growth resulting from the injection into local economy of an industry employing 200 persons.

It was announced last Tuesday from Washington by U.S. Senator Russell Long that Monroe would get such an injection. Long confirmed the decision of the International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation (ITT) to locate its major Louisiana plant at the Convention City.

Expected to situate in the Monroe industrial park at Selman Field, the firm will manufacture air conditioners and a crop spray called Econo-Mist. The 200 employees cited earlier should be on the job by the end of the first year's operation, while a full 500 persons may be employed by the end of the third year.

And if that's not enough of a transfusion, officials dropped the hint that it may be only a beginning of ITT plans for the area and state.

Fifth District Rep. Otto Passman praised Long for his influence in bringing the company to Monroe, and Passman in turn was praised for plugging when ITT had shown little interest in the town as the site of its major plant.

The junior senator also called attention to the industry inducement plans and personal interest of Gov. John McKeithen and to the efforts of local citizens who helped inspire the selection of Monroe, among them State Sen. Jamar Adcock, Jack Campbell, James A. Noe, Lee Vanderpool, Max Riley and C. C. Whittelsey.

ITT's arrival will mark a major step in the fulfillment of Monroe Mayor W. L. Howard's plans for developing an industrial park at Selman Field, ideal hub as it is for rail, air and overland transport.

Makes Connection

Monroe School Board President J. H. Scogin was quick Tuesday to make a valid connection between the new industry, with its sure influx of additional residents, and the passage that day of a $6 million school bond issue. He said, and rightly so, that the system's expansion — three new schools among other additions — couldn't have been better timed.

In sharp contrast to the defeat the prior Tuesday of the Ouachita Parish Police Jury's ill-starred plan for rural fire protection, the city school bonds drew a resounding chorus of "yeas." The measure, in fact, moved to a plurality of more than three-to-one in Monroe's 18 precincts, in both popular and assessment counts.

The turnout at the polls, unfortunately, was small at — 27 per cent of the 7,669 persons who could have voted, even less than the fraction that bothered to ballot in the fire referendum — but the decision was of a mandate ratio. In ward 10, the comparison was well above three-to-one, in ward three, about two-to-one.

The final tally: 1,600 popular votes for the issue (to be retired by a maximum six mills) with an assessment total of $6,164,424.48; and, 512 popular votes in opposition, with an assessment total of $2,067,087.

The bond issue will finance construction of a south Monroe high school costing about $2,250,000, addition of 86 classrooms at six present schools with an estimated cost of $1,125,000, two new elementary schools — $700,000, expansion of physical education and stadium facilities at present high schools — 565,000, equipment and furnishings for all projects — $450,000, air conditioning of present high school auditoriums — $140,000, air conditioning of other present facilities — $750,000, and legal expenses resulting from the issue itself — $20,000.

Scogin said the new high school should meet needs for about 15 years, with other features of the plan expected to accommodate growth for from five to seven years.

Bond issues were the topic of considerable comment last week — possible bond issues, that is.

The parish grand jury, just empaneled, inspected the Ouachita courthouse and cited needs for essentially the expansion and improvements being planned by a special police jury committee. Rapid movement is expected soon out of that courthouse study group in formulating a growth plan to put to John Public in a bond issue totalling around $1 million.

In West Monroe, though there was a little talk, aldermen apparently were still undecided on whether to call a vote on a $548,000 issue to finance a sewage oxidation pond. A $1,000 option on land near Brownville, taken for the site of the pond, is due to expire this week, April 20, and Alderman A. L. DeLoach Jr. said the board probably will gather to discuss alternatives.

The aldermen's meeting Tuesday night included in its business action on rural fire protection, very much an item last week, as it has been for many successive weeks.

The West Monroe Fire Department, which has been answering rural alarms west of the Ouachita River since January, was directed to discontinue the "accommodation." The aldermen, of course, had volunteered to help out for six months (a period which would end in June) or until the police jury had a chance to cope with the fire protection problem. Apparently the aldermen considered the jury's defeated bond-tax proposal to have been that chance.

Naturally, the sad effect of the discontinuance is that the entire parish now, barring the municipalities of Monroe, West Monroe and Sterlington, is without protection. Volunteer firefighting by parish road employees came to a halt the preceding week, soon after the voters spoke.

Fire protection was discussed at each of two regular police jury meetings last week, and it appeared to be still rather a bone of contention. It took a 10-6 vote, for example, to pass a simple motion for appointment of a citizens' advisory committee to study the problem. And this came only after a move to table all consideration of fire protection had been stalled 8-8.

The committee, to which each juror will name one person, it is hoped will recommend an acceptable and a feasible plan, then support it in an election, if another such is required, as seems logical.

However, juror Bernie Van announced Wednesday a public meeting in his ward three will be held April 27 to look at the problem. He invited all jurors to the 7:30 p.m. program at Shady Grove School. Van it was who made a motion Tuesday to allow use of the parish's one fire truck, in storage since the previous Thursday, by volunteers in wards three and four. The 10-6 move cited above was offered as a substitute, however, and Van's motion wasn't polled.

The police jury, as a body, probably produced more news copy last week than any other single group. Their two meetings resulted in the re-election of T. W. Humphries, ward 10, as president, passage of a policy stance favoring two-term (consecutive) Louisiana governorships, unanimous backing for a subdivision ordinance, and a call for legislation creating the position of third assistant district attorney.

Monroe officials held forth Thursday at groundbreaking ceremonies at the site of the new city hall complex, part of an $11½ million capital improvement program. Located at Sixth and Wood, where it will stand proudly for the inspection of motorists swishing by on I-20, the structure will include administrative offices, a police headquarters, a jail and a city courtroom. Bids will be opened, by the way, on April 27 on yet another feature of Monroe's great leap forward — a civic center complex.

Fred P. Cannon of Beaumont, Tex., was named executive director of the parish United Givers' Fund, replacing Robert S. Langhart who resigned in February.

The Monroe City Council delayed a parking ban on DeSiard Street, originally scheduled to go into effect June 1, until August 1. The postponement is to allow business people between Ninth and 26th Streets time to make adjustments.

Visitors to the Twin Cities last week included Champ Baber, state director of the Office of Economic Opportunity (the President's War on Poverty) and Louis Michot, gubernatorial candidate in the last run for the state house.

The World In Focus

Floods, Tornadoes Strike

By John Cale

THE NATION'S tornado belt moved northward and eastward early last week to add to death and destruction in the same general area wrought by spring floods.

At the beginning of the final week of the Lenton season, the twisters struck hard in Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin. Closer to the portion of the nation where tornadoes are a more familiar sight were those that struck Coway, Arkansas, and Cleveland, Tennessee, at different times over the same period.

While President Johnson made an inspection tour of twister damage and the havoc brought about by the spring floods in the Midwest, the Red Cross announced that at least 31,000 persons were affected by flood waters in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, North Dakota and Illinois.

BY TUESDAY, six persons were listed dead in the wake of the Conway, Arkansas, twister and two dead, 200 homeless in Thursday night's Tennessee storm. But the states farther to the north bore the brunt of the twisters' death-dealing fury with 237 persons dead in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana Illinois and Wisconsin.

Predictions, Analysis

ONE WIRE SERVICE weather report followed the series of disasters with the claim that most of the week's tornado damage occurred in those areas where warnings were posted. Such a claim really says in effect that a tornado alert — even where it is accurate — can do little toward saving lives and virtually nothing toward saving property.

The twisters develop and strike so suddenly that it's a matter of the victims actually hearing and seeing the storm before emergency protective measurers are set in motion.

WHAT IS a tornado?

How is it recognized?

How destructive is it?

On a local scale, it is the most destructive of all storms, with rotating winds estimated to exceed 200 miles an hour.

Do tornado paths vary greatly in length?

Do all tornadoes cause ground damage.

Were last Sunday's Midwest tornadoes related?

Yes. They were all part of the same frontal system. a cold front extending from Wisconsin to Texas.

Is there a "tornado season?"

Yes. They are more frequent in the spring.

Are they nationwide?

Tornadoes have struck every state. They are more prevalent in an area called "Tornado Alley" — Northern Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri.

Do tornadoes take many lives?

The average annual U. S. death toll from tornadoes has been 197 over the past 48 years.

What is the worst tornado in America history from the stand point of lives lost?

Of Man's Making

ANOTHER CALAMITY of the past week, the deadline for filing federal income tax forms to the Internal Revenue Service, is an annual event of man's own making. It came on the scene back in 1913 as a result of the 16th Amendment to the Constitution, so we've had nearly two generations of the federal income tax.

But this doesn't mean we're accustomed to the process of figuring and paying. The laws related to the tax on incomes as well as those dealing with Social Security — calculated and paid at the same time — are changed with new Congresses, a fact that keeps the public and thousands of accountants over the nation on their toes.

IT'S EVEN AN international affair. For example, there's Italian actress Gina Lollabrigidia, who might add a little glitter to the occasion. It seems she owed the State of California some $14,200 in back taxes dating to 1959 when she made a movie in Hollywood. Somehow Miss Lollabrigidia's ring and necklace shown here, and other jewels, were held up by authorities. Last week, she arranged a transfer of funds from a Swiss bank to settle the obligation to the state and have her jewelry returned.

'RECLAIMED'

One account said President Johnson found it necessary to borrow money to meet tax obligations. The Italian actress' stashing away of earnings in a Swiss bank appears to be another route to meeting the tax deadline — if you make movies and want to keep your jewelry.

Salty Comment

FORMER PRESIDENT Harry S. Truman offered a terse roundup of the civil rights movement for newsmen who greeted him in New York early in the week. Mr. Truman arrived in the city to receive the Freedom Award at the 25th anniversary dinner of Freedom House at the Waldorf Astoria.

One of the newsmen hearing the comment noted that King, head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, had received a Nobel Peace Prize.

HST

"I DIDN'T GIVE it to him," Mr. Truman said. He continued by saying that the civil rights movement had its share of "publicity seekers" as well as good leaders. But he did not qualify his statement regarding King.

The bronze plaque from Freedom House to the former President was presented by Chief Justice Earl Warren. In the audience were several of the Cabinet members who served during the Truman administration, including former Secretary of State Dean Acheson, Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder, Attorney General J. Howard McGrath and Secretary of Defense Robert A. Lovett.

Aftermath

THOUGH NOT AS widely discussed as the visit of Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Great Britain, the 10-day round of talks scheduled in this country by West Berlin's Mayor Willy Brandt were believed to be of significance.

BRANDT MET Tuesday with Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara for a 30-minute review of "European security problems."

Brandt told reporters after the meeting that harrassment of air and road routes by Russians and East Germans had not developed into a "crisis."

But he said the actions, which he discussed with McNamara, were unpleasant.

Opening the Washington phase of his 10-day U.S. visit, Brandt met with Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y. and visited the grave of President John F. Kennedy.

IN ADDITION TO meeting with top State Department officials, Brandt has scheduled discussions with labor leaders, including Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers.

Names Conditions

IF PRESIDENT Johnson's overture of the previous week calling for "unconditional discussions" over the Vietnamese war could be termed a peace feeler, this was turned down by President Ho Chi Minh of North Viet Nam in a speech to a country's National Assembly early last week.

The North Vietnamese communist leader formally dismissed Mr. Johnson's offer of peace talks and said there can be no peace as long as American troops are in Viet Nam and U.S. air strikes against North Viet Nam are continued.

'NO TALKS'

There may be some question as to how much weight the Red leader of a divided, underdeveloped nation in Southeast Asia could carry in major decisions of the greater powers of the Soviet bloc.

OUR BELIEF IS that Ho Chi Minh would not have opened his mouth in his own National Assembly had he not first cleared his stated position with both Moscow and Peking.

But back in Washington, British Prime Minister Harold Wilson voiced strong moral support for President Johnson's policy of peace and redevelopment for Southeast Asia. But Wilson added:

"I think everybody understands we are now heavily committed with 50,000 troops in Malaysia and in an important peacekeeping role in the Middle East."

Mayor Willy Brandt also touched on the Viet Nam issue when he told newsmen West Germany is giving moral support to the U.S. policy. But he expressed doubts of West German ability to do much in a military way outside the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

BRANDT IS A Social Democrat, hence not concerned with the majority in the Bonn government But he gave the unofficial opinion that West Germany would help financially in President Johnson's plan for the economic development of Southeast Asia.

Apparently the greatest stumbling blocks in the path of the U.S plan for peace in Asia are the Viet Cong rebels, Ho Chi Minh and the North Vietnamese communist regime, Red China and Russia.

"PATRICK GORDON WALKER, Britain's special peacekeeping envoy, left for the Far East last week, still expressing hope that Communist leaders in Peking and Hanoi would change their minds and see him.

HE SAID HE WAS leaving time in his itinerary to visit both capitals and "I hope they will change their minds while I am there."

Communist China and North Viet Nam vetoed his visit.

The British are trying to promote what they call "the Cambodia formula," a conference on Cambodian neutrality at which the United States, Red China and other nations could discuss Viet Nam on the sidelines.

MEANWHILE, U.S. AIR FORCE planes dumped three million leaflets over North Viet Nam, telling the population that American air strikes against Communist military targets "are aimed at stopping the aggression of Red China."

A U.S. military spokesman indicated that the leaflet drop was the first of a series. The leaflets were scattered over four highly populated areas in the southern part of North Viet Nam.

THE LEAFLETS in effect call on the North Vietnamese people to overthrow their government. The wordage is similar to that contained in Communist pamphlets aimed at U.S. involvement in South Viet Nam.

Steel Negotiations

THE UNITED STEELWORKERS Union, with its election of a president still in doubt, rejected as completely inadequate last week an industry offer of limited contract improvements in exchange of a May 1 strike deadline.

Steelworkers offered five cents an hour in bargaining for a limited contract that would provide 60 days' extension or could run for six months.

Union President David J. McDonald, who isn't sure he will be president of the USW when the February election is finally settled, announced rejection of the steel management offer at a news conference on Thursday.

McDONALD

At a later conference, R. Conrad Cooper, chief company negotiator, said the companies offered to grant wage or fringe benefit increases, but did not give a specific amount.

Cooper said the union's internal troubles have hampered negotiations between union and company officials. He referred to the union's presidential election in which McDonald reportedly was defeated by I. W. Abel, USW secretary-treasurer.

The official results of this balloting have not been announced.

TFX Rush Order

REMEMBER THE controversy over the TFX fighter plane several years ago?

The Texas industry that bid high on the airplane flew a test model several months ago. But with additional tests still in progress, the Defense Department has placed an order for 431 production models. And Great Britain is considering a purchase order also to replace cancellation on a British design that had to be scrapped because of a general belt-tightening program.

THE U. S. CONTRACT for the plane — now known as the F111— is expected to total more than $1.5 billion. Details are still being worked out with the Fort Worth, Texas, division of General Dynamics Corp. But $45 million is being alloted to get production rolling.

The Defense Department announced Monday night that the initial order would include 407 planes for the Air Force and 24 for the Navy. Eventually, more than 1,000 planes are expected to be purchased for the Air Force and 200 for the Navy.

The production order is in addition to a contract calling for 23 test models at a research and development cost of $1.1 billion. Two of the test models are known to have been flown.

TOTAL COST OF THE planes, including engines and armament, may approach $5 million each. Purchase of the jet engines is to be negotiated separately with the Pratt & Whitney division of the United Aircraft Co.

Life Out There

DURING THE WEEK, the Soviet news agency Tass quoted a Russian scientist as saying certain radio signals picked up in Moscow indicated "a new supercivilization had been discovered."

Later, however, another Russian scientist, Josef S. Shlovsky, made the more cautious statement that it would be premature to speak about the artificial origin of the signals at this time.

Several U. S. scientists were also inclined to be cautious. Dr. Frank D. Drake of Cornell University said flatly he doubted the Russians had proved the existence of intelligent beings on another planet.

Background On International Telephone And Telegraph Corporation

Company's Growth Among Top In World

By ROBERT SIMONTON
World Staff Writer

International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation, the firm that will build a major plant in Monroe in the near future, is the world's largest international manufacturer and supplier of electronic and telecommunication equipment and services.

The corporation, the world's 10th largest industrial employer, will become a vital part of this community when its new plant at the Industrial Park at Selman Field starts operations.

The corporation has 185,000 employes in 51 countries operating 200 factories, laboratories and service units, and 11 telephone and telegraph operating companies.

The new facility to be built at Monroe will compare favorably with other plants of the corporation throughout the nation.

To start with, the corporation will use 120,000 square feet on 40 acres of land. It has been reported it has or will take option on an additional 60 adjoining acres for possible expansion later on.

The plant here is expected to add 200 persons to the employment picture by the end of the first year of operation, and 500 by the end of the third year.

There seems to be little doubt, but what Monroe has obtained an excellent economic benefit as well as an association with a continually growing corporation.

Electronic Age

We now live in an electronic age and as the world's largest international supplier of electronic and telecommunication equipment, ITT is uniquely qualified by personnel, experience, organization, and technology to meet the challenge of world demand for such material.

ITT was incorporated June 16, 1920 as a U. S. company holding controlling interest in two telephone operating utilities and a 50 per cent interest in one telephone and telegraph operating utility.

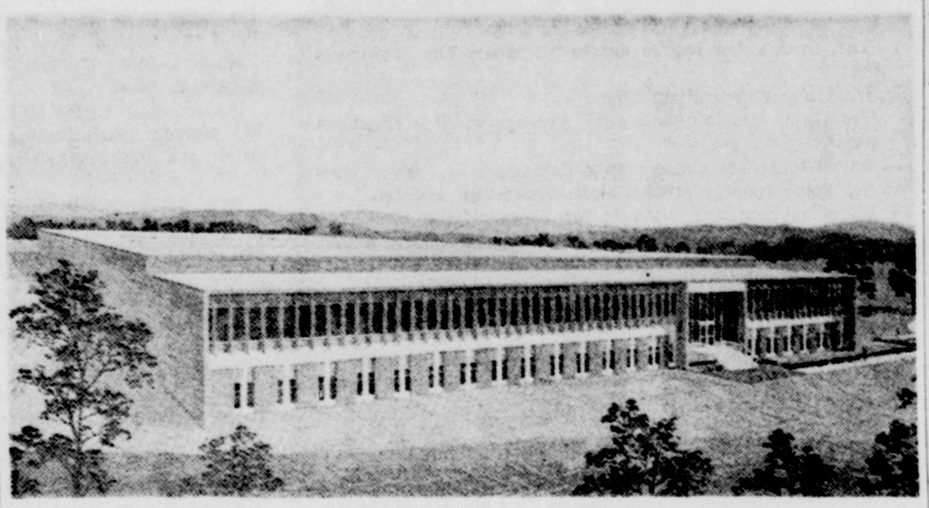

At the time of its founding, ITT had a total of 1400 employees and in 1921, its first full year of operation, reported total revenues of $3,881,000.

Today, ITT is a system of more than 100 associated companies and divisions located throughout the world, with more than a hundred times as many employees as in the beginning. In 1964, it reported total sales and revenues of $1,542,079,000, an increase of eight per cent over 1963.

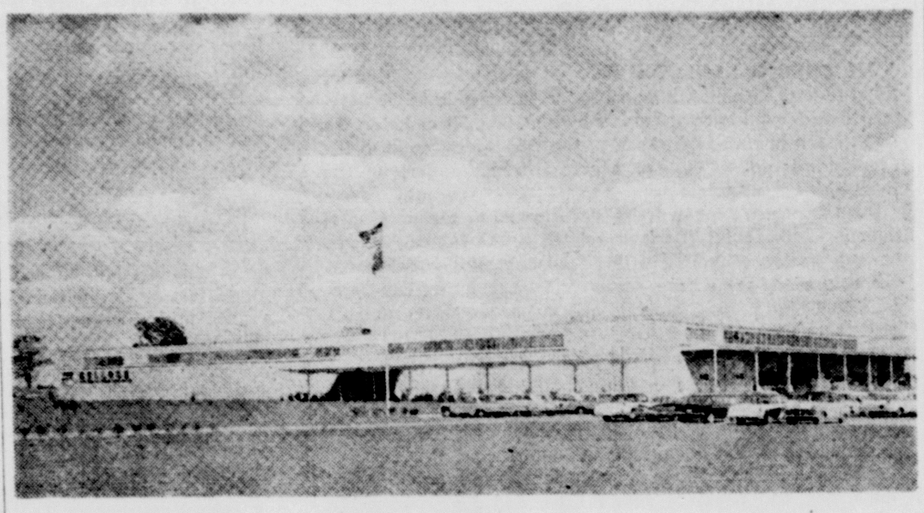

Starting in 1959, under the dynamic leadership of President and Chairman of the Board Harold S. Geneen, ITT embarked upon the most comprehensive program of growth and management reorganization in its history.

Purpose of the program was to provide basic support for planned earning growth on a continued basis, by expanding the System's productive capacity to meet the steadily increasing world demand for electronic and telecommunication equipment systems.

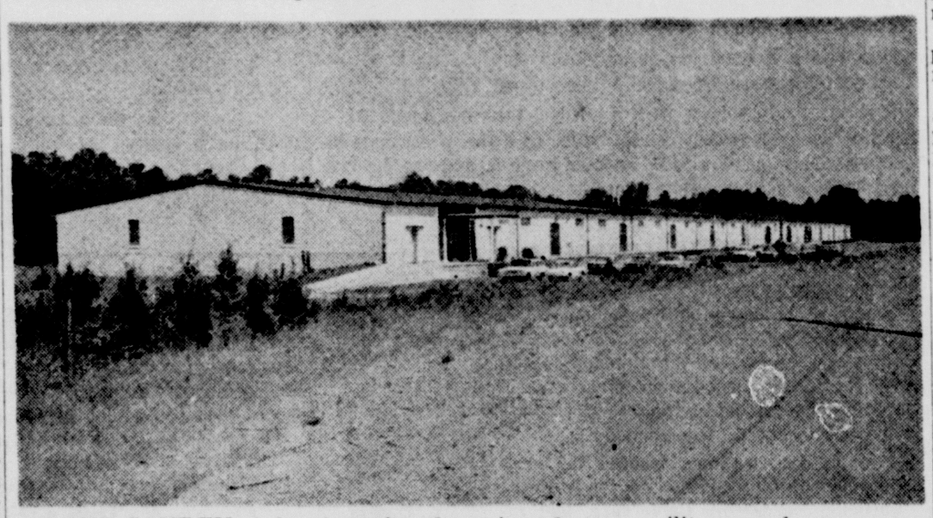

Monroe became a part of ITT's present growth program and plans for the furure when U. S. Senator Russell B. Long and President Geneen jointly announced Tuesday that a major new plant would locate here.

A VIEW OF the firm's plant at Corinth, Mississippi —

AT THE CAMDEN, Ark., plant, founded in 1962, ITT manufactures various electronic and telecommunication devices having military and space application. It contains 35,000 square feet.

Select Group

International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation first joined the select group of U. S. industrial giants with annual revenues of more than $1 billion in 1962. But, in only two years, that amount has climbed to the $1.5 billion mark and is continuing steadily.

In the 44 years of its existence, ITT has (1) established itself as the world leader in electronics and telecommunications, (2) a leading accredited supplier to the communication systems of every major government in Western Europe and Latin America, (3) the 31st largest industrial corporation in the United States, and the 41st largest in the world. It advanced its ranking by 10 places in the single year of 1963.

In August of 1963, the U. S. Defense Communications Agency awarded the American Cable and Radio Corporation (AC&R), a wholly owned subsidiary of ITT, the contract to install the Washington to Moscow "hotline" cable agreed to by delegates of the United States and Russia at Geneva on June 20 of that year. The line became operative on August 30.

AC&R provides the U. S. terminal with a full - time duplex telegraph landline and submarine cable circuit from Washington to Moscow through London, Copenhagen, Stockholm, and Helsinki. Complete privacy of transmission, one of the most important points on which negotiators were able to secure Soviet approval, is achieved through special equipment.

Underlying ITT's strength and growth is the System's long - established and continuing record in research. A staff of more than 25,000 scientists, engineers, laboratory technicians, draftsmen, and other specialists are constantly at work for ITT.

The corporation has made major contributions in the development of high - frequency direction finders, radar, air navigation, marine navigation, television and telecommunications.

Founded solely as a company operating telephone and telegraph facilities, ITT today derives only a small portion of its annual gross from the operation of telecommunications systems. By far the greater portion comes from the sale of electronic and telecommunication equipment and systems manufactured by ITT companies throughout the world.

Included in the vast scope of ITT's products, in the immediate field of telecommunications, are those in switching systems, audio and record communications, radio communications, microwave and television.

Automation systems and equipment ranging from drive-in banking devices to international air reservation systems have become leading products of the ITT System and are already at work for customers as varied as banks, railroads, airlines, post offices and libraries, and the air forces of the NATO governments.

Many Nations

Consumer products manufactured in many countries of the world include television, radio, high - fidelity and stereo phonograph equipment, hearing aids, room heaters, electric fans, refrigerators, window air conditioners and commercial freezers.

In the latter category, the ITT plant in Monroe will initially assemble and later manufacture a crop sprayer for cotton and other row crops and components for automatic temperature controls and industrial controls.

In North America — in Europe, the Middle East, Africa — in Latin America and the Far East and Pacific — ITT is well-known and well respected. Now, that reputation and respect will also be a part of the industrial development of Monroe, Louisiana.

ITT not only has thousands of employees and a far-reaching and influential affect upon millions of consumers, it also directly concerns 104,000 other persons — stockholders in the corporation.

In the missile and space fields, of utmost importance in the world in which we live, ITT operates and maintains instrumentation, communication, and ground support for the U. S. Navy of the Pacific Missile Range facility at Point Arguello, Calif., and aboard tracking vessles based on the West Coast. It activated a Titan missile complex in the Pacific Northwest and participated in the Eglin Gulf Test Range project in Florida. For Project Mercury, the ITT service organization assisted NASA in checkout and engineering studies of capsule telemetry systems.

It is the second largest owner of stock in Communications Satellite Corporation (COMSAT) with 1,050,000 shares.

Prime Job

One of the company's U. S. divisions is currently prime contractor for the design, manufacture, and installation of the complex communications system supplying ground support for missile bases. Another division, as principal contractor for SPACECOM, played a major role in the world wide communication network for the U. S. Air Force.

A series of ITT silicon rectifiers for use in missiles has been produced under a U. S. Army Signal Corps contract. The selenium rectifier, an ITT System development introduced into the United States in 1939, has proved its value in many fields, especially in television.

Nine units of the ITT System produce a vacuum and gas tubes, and its principal subsidiary in the United Kingdom was the first in the world to manufacture traveling - wave tubes commercially and employ them in microwave television links.

A vital area of ITT System activity consists of project, field, support and commercial services performed by individual service companies and service teams drawn from several ITT units.

Personnel engaged in ITT service number well over 5,000, with engineers and technicians at work on projects in more than 30 countries. One of the major projects included such huge defense systems as the 4,500 - mile Distant Early Warning (DEW) Line — NORAD's chain of more than 60 radar and communication sites stretching across Alaska, Canada, Greenland, and Iceland.

In carrying out its varied operations, ITT has built a staff of experts uniquely experienced in solving electronic problems of every kind in many lands and under all conditions. Most of ITT's overseas units are manned 100 per cent by nationals of the countries in which they are located. Area headquarters (Europe, Middle East, Africa; North America; Latin America; Far East and Pacific) bring specialized knowledge to the problems of those regions. A function of the System headquarters in New York is to see that the strength of all is made available to the needs of each.

Retail consumer products are significant manufacturing items for ITT companies in Europe and South America, and their markets in those areas and elsewhere.

Television, radio, and phonograph instruments, as well as hearing aids produced by ITT companies in the United Kingdom. Other comsumer products include record players, room heaters, and electric fans.

In Belgium, ITT companies manufacture consumer goods for both the domestic and export markets. Products include television and radio receivers, home refrigerators, self - service freezer cabinets, window air - conditioners, convectors, air blenders, and commercial freezers. In Portugal, ITT produces television receivers, and in France both television and radio receivers.

In Latin America, ITT companies produce television and radio receivers, record players, radiophonograph combinations, and refrigerators. ITT companies operate most of the telephones in Peru, Puerto Rico, Chili and Virgin Islands.

A growing percentage of the Company's consumer products manufactured in Europe are now reaching export markets. Refrigerators and freezers are marketed under the ITT- Standard brand in Austria, Finland, Norway, Portugal, and Sweden, while radio and television receivers are also marketed under that brand in Finland.

Leading Part

ITT companies have long taken a leading part in the development and manufacture of all types of cable and wire products, and today ITT - manufactured cable and wire literally lace the world in a constantly expanding communications network.

Cable and wire manufacturing plants of the ITT System produce every variety of telecommunication cable, including coaxial and submarine. A subsidiary in the United States is one of the world's largest producers of high - test plastic-insulated cable and wire products. ITT companies in Argentina, Canada, England, Germany, Norway, and Spain have provided much of the equipment for long - distance networks in Europe and other parts of the world. ITT factories in England and Norway also produce cable for the transmission of power, and the Norwegian plant has provided the Oslo Electricity Works with one of the world's largest installations of oil - filled power cable.

The ITT System is a major and materials, the basic units on which performance of all electronic and electromechanical equipment depends.

Products of ITT System companies cover every category of telephone, telegraph, radio, and television equipment and systems — from subscriber handsets to international tropospheric — scatter for communication networks.

The progress of telephone communication has been marked by the steadily widening use of automatic switching equipment. ITT's principal manufacturing units, long familiar with the telephone and telegraph requirements of many nations, supply the different types of central - office switching equipment in use throughout a great part of the world. More than ten million lines of ITT System automatic switching and signaling equipment serve the world's common carriers, while a full range of private automatic exchanges (PAX's) meets the needs of private users.

For research and development, the corporation has laboratories of two main types. Separately organized central research units are located in the U. S. and England. Product development sections are maintained by all major factories.

In the field of long - distance subscriber dialing, relatively new to the U. S., it is an old story to ITT, officials said. As early as 1932, engineers of the ITT system established direct subscriber - to - subscriber dialing between Casablanca and Rabat, Morocco. Later an ITT system of automatic toll - ticketing, which permits users to make long - distance calls without the aid of an operator and have tolls automatically recorded, was placed in public service in Belgium.

ITT System equipment has has also made possible the world's first international subscriber - to - subscriber dialing, between Brussels and Paris.

The corporation's subsidaries have built some of the largest AM and FM radio broadcasting stations now operating on medium and short waves in America, Australia and Europe. ITT also pioneered radiotelegraphy from the U. S. to points overseas, and from shore to ships at sea before World War 1.

Nearby Plants

Many ITT plants included in the corporation's vast network are located not too distant from Monroe.

Camden, Ark. is the scene of a plant manufacturing various electronic and telecommunication devices having military and space application. The ITT Arkansas Division plant has 35,000 square feet of space and employs 59 persons.

An integral part of the program is the ITT Kellogg Telecommunications with plants at Corinth, Miss. and Milan, Tenn. The total floor space of this system is 556,000 square feet with 1,849 employees. The plant at Corinth produces several types of telephone subsets including the new lightweight "Cinderella" model. Switching equipment and the first automatic toll ticketing system for handling person - to - person and collect calls are manufactured at Milan.

Other plants in the Kellogg Communications systems are located at Raleigh, N. C. and Kansas City, Mo.

Part of the ITT Electron Tube division, with 156,000 square feet of space and 474 employees, is a plant located at Roanoke, Va. which develops and manufactures all phases of special - purpose tubes for ITT, including high - power transmitting tubes, special vacuum tubes, and rare - gas tubes.

Another plant in Virginia is located at Falls Church, headquarters of the ITT Intelcom, Inc. There is a total of 22,600 square feet and 125 employees at this facility, which performs systems engineering, technical services, and systems management in connection with communication satellite systems.

In his annual report of 1964, President Geneen made the following observations:

"In 1964 International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation reached the highest levels of earnings and sales in its 44-year history. It was the fifth successive year under the present management that ITT has set new records for sales, net income and per share earnings.

"Our progress during these five years was made possible by the efforts and loyalty of ITT's customers, suppliers and employees."

In future years, these words will apply not only to the employees of the local ITT plant, but to the entire community, which will have become an integral part of the wonderful world of this dynamic corporation.

Seeking Doctor

ST. JOSEPH (Special) — This town is seeking a doctor and a medical clinic. A public meeting on the project will be held 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Community House here, with Norman H. Davis scheduled to speak.

Davis, southern executive director of the Sears Roebuck Medical - Economic Foundation, will report on findings of a survey conducted here on the matter by his organization and the St. Joseph Rotary Club.

HAROLD S. GENEEN
. . . Tremendous Responsibility

ITT Leader Goes To Source

Harold S. Geneen, chairman, president and chief executive officer of International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation, believes in going to the source, wherever it may be, to get the facts for a business decision.

His responsibilities embrace the largest international enterprise of its kind in the world, including 185,000 employees of more than 100 companies and divisions in 51 countries, and there is scarcely an area which he has not visited for a personal, on-the-scene conference with his officers and managers.

His intimate knowledge of the vast corporation and hard work are the keys to the Geneen formula for effective management, and the increasing profits reported in the corporation's regular statements attest to its soundness.

Now 55, Geneen obtained his first major position with a large corporation at the age of 32, when he was named chief accountant for an American Can Company subsidiary. He subsequently held key executive posts with Bell & Howell, as vice president, controller and director, and with the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation as vice president and controller. He was executive vice president and director of the Raytheon Company for three years before joining ITT as president and chief executive officer in June 1959. In 1964 he was elected to the additional post of chairman of the board.

A graduate of the Advanced Management Course of Harvard Business School, he keeps abreast of latest business theory but relies primarily on common sense.

"You don't talk about the future without worrying about this morning," he once told an interviewer who asked about long-range goals. He disputes the popular premise that a clean desk is the sign of an efficient executive. "If you have a clean desk, that means you have solved all your problems and you should be busy working on new ones."

The Geneen program for good management is characteristically down to earth. "It's a thousand little things you have to know and do. You have to work. You have to get information before you can solve the problem. You can't delegate anything if you don't understand it. You can't meet objectives if you don't understand them."

Fishing, hunting, boating and golf are the favorite Geneen pastimes, when he has the opportunity. Cape Cod, Massachusetts, where he frequently spends weekends, is his favorite retreat. His golf scores, as he puts it, "maintain the businessman's average."

The ITT president shies away from many outside projects, but he has in recent years devoted a great deal of time to helping promote the sale of U. S. Savings Bonds among his fellow industrialists. In January 1963, at the request of then Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon, Geneen agreed to serve as chairman of the newly formed U. S. Industrial Payroll Savings Committee. Under his leadership, the Payroll Savings Program attained its highest national participation in history.

As ITT stockholders who attend the company's annual meetings can attest, Geneen has great personal charm and is an excellent man on his feet. He fields questions from the floor with relish and good humor and obviously enjoys himself.

Since he took over the reins at ITT, Geneen has concentrated on strengthening the company's U. S. operations through consol- and acquisition of new ones. For example, ITT entered three new fields in the years 1963-64 alone: heating and ventilating equipment, consumer finance, and insurance.

The programmed growth initiated by Geneen has radically transformed the nature of the ITT System's management and control — from the original holding - company type to that of an aggressive management team operating directly in all areas of the world.

The dynamic changes are the result of a team effort and Geneen feels that one of his major accomplishments has been in assembling that team. ITT acquired 34 companies and more than doubled its annual sales and revenues to a present total of well above $1,500,000,000. Its total worldwide plant capacity devoted to manufacturing and research has reached 33 million square feet, an increase of 92 per cent over the 1959 capacity.

Born January 22, 1910, in Bournemouth, England and brought to this country by his parents a year later, Geneen revealed his interest in finance while still a youngster. Following eight years at Suffield Preparatory School, in Connecticut, he obtained employment at the age of 16 as a page boy on the New York Stock Exchange. Later, while employed at various investment houses on Wall Street, he attended night courses at New York University, where he received the degree of bachelor of science in accounting and finance.

Geneen is married to the former June Elizabeth Hjelm of Berlin, New Hampshire.

Carolina Solon Better In Bout With Pneumonia

The 68-year-old senator suffered a relapse Friday night after pneumonia set in Wednesday following his second abdominal operation within three months. His family joined two doctors in a bedside watch.

Providence Hospital bulletins said the senator remained seriously ill but showed some improvement during the day.

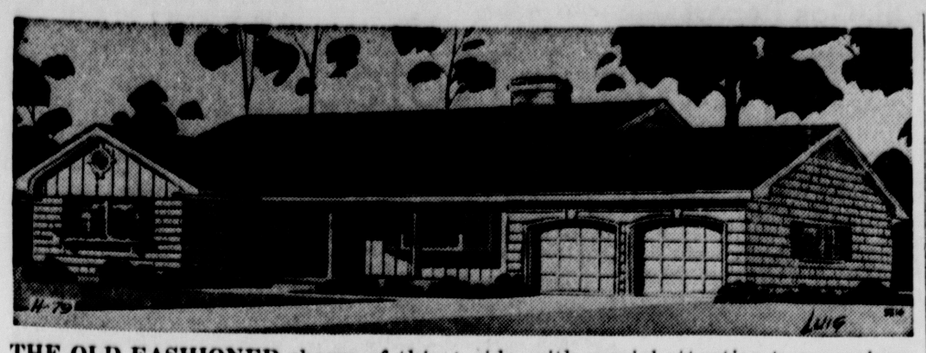

"He's resting comfortably for the first time in several days," his brother, William Johnston, said. He quoted doctors as saying they were hopeful improvement would continue.

An aneurysm blister was removed last week from Johnston's aorta, the main artery leading from the heart. Viral pneumonia set in six days after surgery.

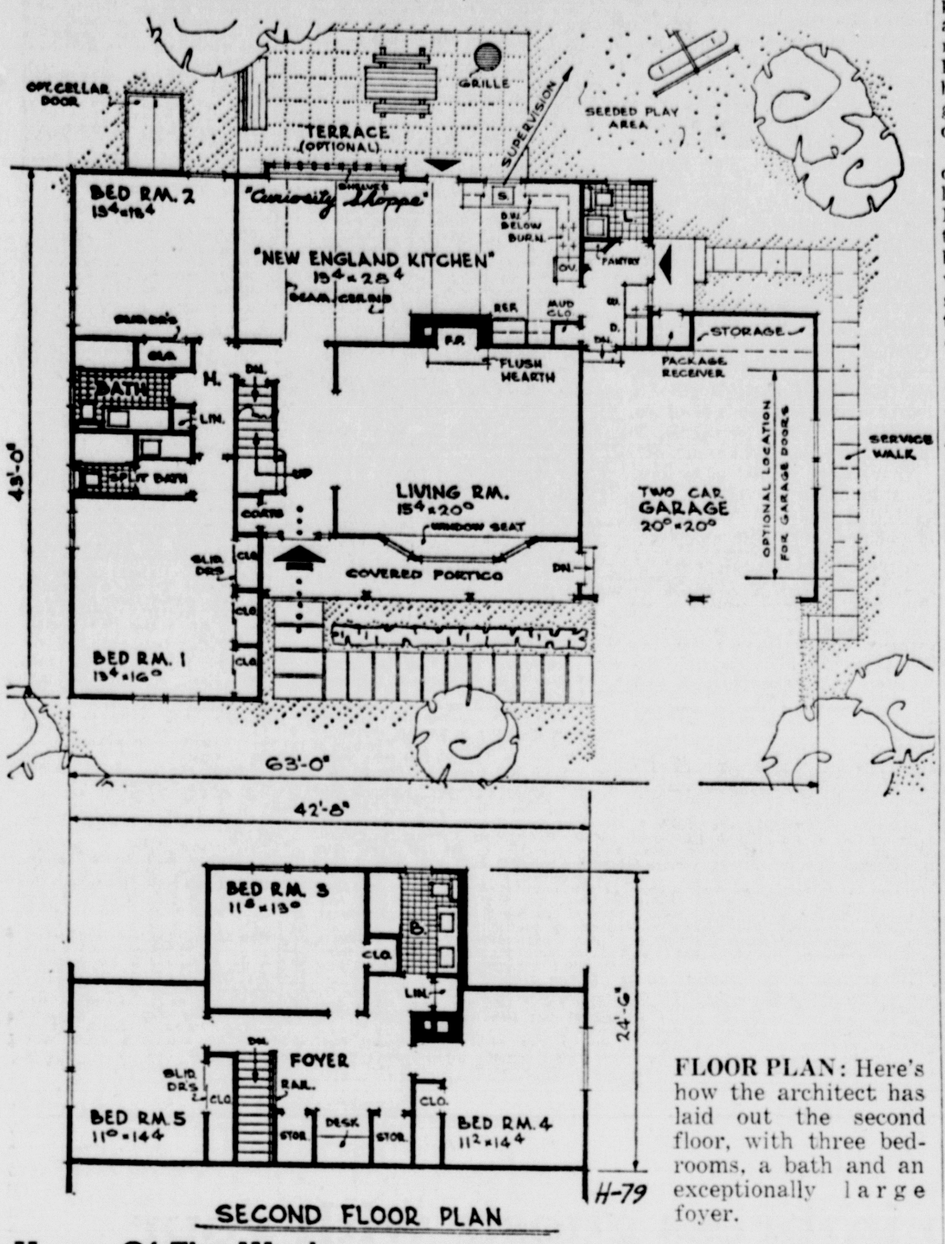

Last Jan. 22, Johnston had a carcinoid tumor of the malignancy removed from his colon. He recovered rapidly and was able to return to Washington.

LaSalle Rodeo

JENA (Special) — The annual rodeo of the LaSalle Riding Club will be held at the Jena fairgrounds April 30 - May 1. A parade will be held 4 p.m. April 30.

THE OLD FASHIONED charm of this shingled house, with vertical boards on the portico, is duplicated on the inside, with special attention to a spacious New England kitchen, set in the rear and adjoining a complete service area.

House Of The Week

Big Kitchen Feature Of Expansion House

By ANDY LANG

There's more than just a touch of early America in the newest House of the Week.

For the control center of this house is a huge New England kitchen, with three entrances, a delightful shelved display area and a beamed ceiling. It has all the charm and spaciousness of the old-fashioned family gathering place, plus the modern conveniences that ease a homemaker's chores. That display area consists of rows of shelves at the horizontal muntin lines of a large, multi - paneled window looking out on a rear terrace. Architect Herman H. York has used the term Curiosity Shoppe to designate this arrangement, since it is similar to the type of display featured by old - time establishments dealing in china, pottery and other eye-catching items.

ACCESSIBLE

The kitchen is accessible from the center hall and so can be reached from the front door without going through any other rooms. It has an entrance to the rear terrace and another at one end. This latter entrance covers a service area with a mud closet, laundry room and lavatory. And you can go into the garage from there without going into the street. Note, too, the rather insignificant but interesting package received designed into this portion of the house. It enables a delivery man to leave packages in a place protected from the weather and with some degree of security.

Before anyone gets the idea that this is a one-room house, let's move on to the rest of it. There's a fireplaced living room directly to the right of the center hall and two bedrooms to the left of it. The living room has a bow-type front window extending onto a covered portico. There are two baths between the two bedrooms, with plenty of closet space.

This is a house with vertical expansion. That is, additional rooms are made possible by building the roof high enough to enable the finishing of areas which otherwise might be used chiefly for storage. Besides the high ridge for the main roof, there is a domer to permit extra headroom at the rear.

For those who need extra bedrooms, architect York has designed a second-floor plan calling for three bedrooms, a bathroom and a foyer large enough to be used as a study. The open rail of the main stair adds to the spacious appearance of this floor.

DETAILED CAREFULLY

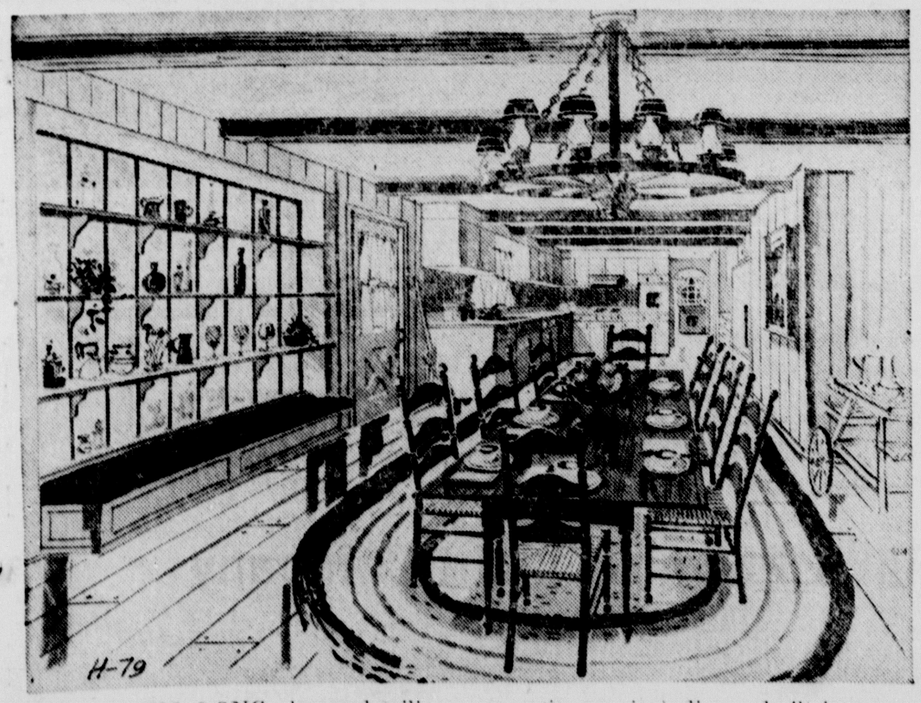

In keeping with the early American flavor of the house, the conspicuous parts of the front exterior have been detailed carefully. A decorative moulding serves as an important addition to the cornice over the portico. The absence of brick allows complete freedom for the choice of exterior paint color or stain. Wood shingles and vertical boards are used in a restrained pattern. The architect suggests that the shingles be left in their natural color and that the vertical boards of the portico be painted white. The garage doors and trim throughout can also be painted white, with accent only on such features as shutters, flower box and front door. Incidentally, note how the arched heads over the garage doors add a little extra elegance to the exterior.

There are 1589 square feet of habitable area on the first floor of Design H-79. Add 844 square if the second floor is utilized.

FROG EGGS IN POUCH

LONDON (AP) — The London Zoo now has six rare "marsupial" frogs which carry their eggs on a pouch on their backs. The zoo also has new snakes with pike heads and half as thick as a pencil.

The new animals came from Trinidad.

WHILE THIS LONG, beamed-ceiling kitchen patterned after those of the Colonial days, it has all the modern conveniences, including a built-in oven and a dishwasher.

Garden Center Notes

Small Buds Show Well

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

The Small Buds Garden Club, junior club of Monroe, sponsored by the Monroe Garden Club, presented the Fifth District Garden Center Program last Wednesday. When a junior performs everyone is filled with pride — especially when they are as talented as these. The members, 32 in all, attend the Lexington School. Three are boys. They are Fifth and Sixth graders. The president of the club is Sarah McSherry.

Luckily for them — they are counselled by someone who really has their interest at heart, Mrs. Ben F. Davis. Mrs. Davis, teacher at Lexington and member of Monroe Garden Club, has worked with this club since it started several years ago. Patiently she has worked and helped them get a strong start.

She and six of the members attended a special luncheon in Alexandria during the State Garden Club Convention where they received a special award. Just recently two of the members received blue ribbon awards on their designs entered in the Twin City Garden Club Council Show.

SHOW JUDGE

The top award, blue ribbon, was won by Cindy Ellett. Iris foliage placed in a tiered, spiraling line in a low, round white bowl formed the primary line. Pink azalea blooms filled this line, massed at the basic part of the design. Euonymous foliage was used low for contrast. The flowers swirled around to the back side of the design making this freestanding. It would be lovely for a coffee table or to be used before a mirror.

Cindy made a second design for the show using equisedium for the line material. White flowering almond was intermingled with the equisedium and massed in the lower section of the design. A low burnt orange bowl with a black base was used as a container. Honorable mention was awarded this design.

IRIS FOLIAGE

Lorie Roberts won second place on her design, asymmetrical in balance using iris foliage for the line in a low, round green bowl. The holder was placed off center for the balance by placement. Iris blooms at different levels were placed around the foliage making this a freestanding design. Small loquat leaves were placed around the holder at the base. This resembled the naturalistic art of the Orientals.

Sue Burkhalter won third place (yellow ribbon) or her design, fan shaped, using iris foliage for the outline in a low green bowl. The central part of the design contained ranunculus in shades of cerese into lavender. Large ivy leaves were placed low in the front to break the edge of the container. A round, black base was used for balance.

Ann Shelton won a third place, also, on her design using ligustrum for the curving S line (Hogarth) in a white milk glass candy jar. Snow azaleas filled in the line as the main flowers, massed in the central part of the design. The white azaleas tied in the white container harmoniously.

Kathy Baylor won honorable mention on her design. The lovely red leafed photinia was used for the overall line, triangle, in a low brown bowl. The pink azaleas were massed within this line as the main flower. Lovely color combination and suitable for the small hall console table.

Nancy Pipes used azaleas in colors of pink and white for her main flowers in a swirling line of pedalanthus. Rhythm was stressed in this line picking up the pattern from the indented lines on the white milk glass vase. Cleverly the white of the vase was harmonized with the white azaleas in the design. This design won honorable mention in the flower show.

Most of my nickels and all my spare hours
I've spent in bettering my flowers.
I've hoed the soil and sprayed the bugs,
Pulled the weeds, and killed the slugs,
Chased the cats and dogs and hens
When they strayed from neighbors' pens.
I've worked from dawn 'til late at night
To make each blossom a delight;
And it's been worth it all, I know,
For I've just won a prize at the flower show.

Southern Gardener

Fine, Small Evergreen

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Along with the cans of old-fashioned lavender appearing in Southern nurseries and plant stands these days, you will find also old-fashioned rosemary, a much easier plant to grow than the lavender.

Rosemary makes a beautiful evergreen bush in the garden. In the North, it does not withstand the winters because it cannot take more than a temperature of about 15 degrees Fahrenheit for any length of time. For the corners of perennial beds and for almost any place in a garden where one wants a fine small evergreen shrub, rosemary is just the thing. It can be kept to almost any size desirable by pruning it only once or twice a year.

TRADITION

Rosemary is just as much a tradition of the herb garden as lavender is. Pliny named this sweet scented shrub of the French and Spanish shores. He called it Rosmarinus, the Latin name for the mists of the sea because of the grey-green foliage of the plant. There was a tradition later that the blue cloak of the Virgin had given the flowers of rosemary their color, and thus it got the name Rose Mary. Because of the delightful scent of both the leaves and the flowers, it was a major plant in the early medicines.

Perhaps we moderns do not realize it, accustomed as we are to synthetics, but rosemary is still the source of the scent of eau de cologne! In Europe, a great deal of rosemary oil is still extracted for the perfumers.

GROW WITH EASE

Our Northern gardening friends are jealous of the big bushes of rosemary which grow with the greatest of ease down here in the South. Especially where the soil is sandy, rosemary will grow up to six feet tall and more in the milder areas like the Gulf Coast. Even in the hill and mountain country in the South, however, it gets to be a sizeable shrub. In extreme winters, it may be killed to the ground in the coldest areas, but it will usually come right back u pin a short time to shrub proportions.

Southern gardeners are really missing a chance to have one of the most beautiful as well as traditional plants if they do not grow rosemary. The gray-green foliage is beautiful in winter and summer, and the spikes of bright blue flowers are a real feature in a garden when they bloom in summer.

In California, a low-growing form of rosemary is used as a ground-cover. It grows only about two feet tall even if you do not prune it, but it is extremely handsome when kept pruned and well fed. This plant is Rosmarinus officinalis prostratus, and there is an excellent variety with extra blue flowers called "Lockwood de Forest." Look for this on plant stands or ask your nurseryman to get it for you.

Erhard Praises U.S. Firm Stand On Viet Situation

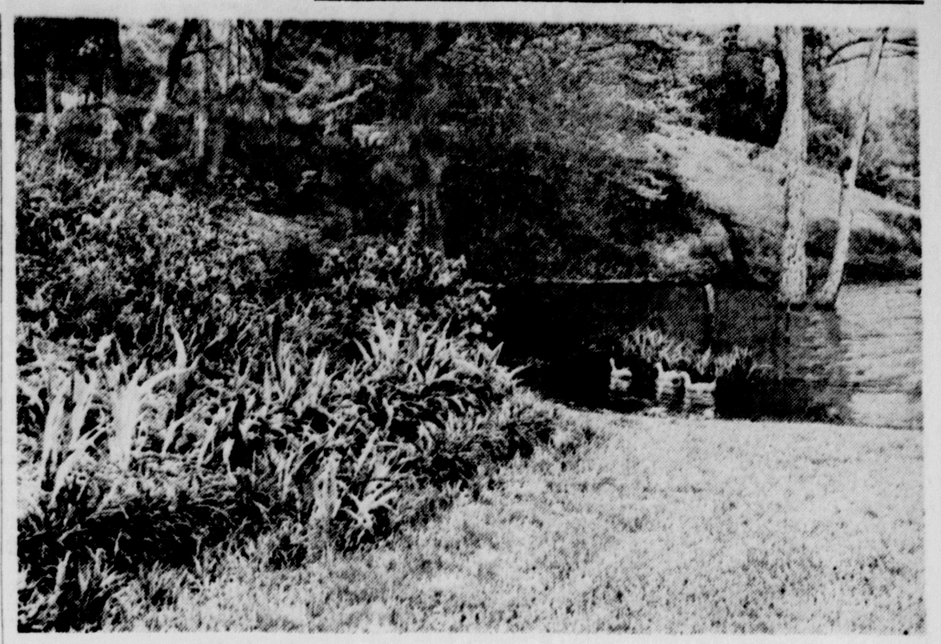

BONN, West Germany (UPI) —West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard Saturday praised U.S. firmness in Viet Nam as a warning to Moscow that America will stand by its allies.

Erhard, interviewed by the Rhein-Zeitung newspaper of Coblentz, rejected a suggestion that deepening U.S. involvement in Asia might tempt the Soviet Union to make new moves against Western Europe.

"I believe the firmness with which the United States has acted in Southeast Asia serves Europe as well. Here the American presence is emphatically demanded by all. Moscow must note how seriously the leading power of the free world regards its commitments," Erhard was quoted.

Erhard also rejected the idea of West Germany seeking close contact with Communist China as a means of pressuring the Soviets to permit German reunification.

"I doubt if closer ties with Red China would bring us closer to our goals . . . no one should forget that Peking seeks the Communist world revolution even harder than Moscow and Red China confronts our strongest ally, the United States, as an open foe in Asia," Erhard said.

Spring Work May Dent The Piggy Bank

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

In our eagerness to get home projects off to a good start in spring, we are likely to dent the piggy bank. Or choose the other alternative and decide to postpone a project again because of the cost.

The materials are not likely to get cheaper as one may observe by noting how prices creep up, so a postponed project becomes more costly as time goes on, and you do not have the pleasure of the finished work, whether it is a necessary convenience or a luxury.

Sooner done, the better, should be our perspective as we consider HOW to get done what needs to be done.

Here are some ideas.

Bricks for a new terrace? Investigate the cost of used bricks. There may be an investment in time — you may want to select bricks that aren't too chipped. These will need to be placed carefully, best side up, but if there is a substantial saving, it is worth the effort. Anyone lucky enough to latch on to real old bricks from an old home will find they'll pay off with beauty.

PLANTING ADVICE

Landscaping? Visit a local nurseryman early, and see if you can get advice about plantings. This is cheaper for amateur gardeners in the long run than buying plants willy-nilly on sale. Mistakes are made not only in planting trees and bushes where they can't possibly thrive, but in planting them in areas where they are unnecessary and don't do anything for the house and grounds. A mistaken notion is that any open space should have a tree or bush stuck in it. Some nurseries will work on a budget plan that will make proper landscaping a financially painless project.

Painting shutters? A slap-dash job will just reflect it. Shutters should be removed from the house and painted on a flat surface. A good plan is to set shutters across two wooden horses outdoors. It is always a good investment too, to remove chipped and blistered spots before going on to a new paint job. If this job is farmed out, labor costs may seem high. In the long run, it pays to get the shutters done properly.

BUILDING HOUSE

Building a House? It is a good investment to discuss it with an architect before you put the house up on that site. Even if you are sold on a house design suggested by the builder, an architect can make suggestions about materials, colors and so on, and how the house should be placed on the site for best appearance, comfort, convenience. This is a long-range investment that sould pay off when you sell the house.

Adding an outdoor lounge area for adults? Consider one with low upkeep. An open redwood deck built off a room of the house gives great satisfaction and is economical to maintain. At ground level if more privacy is sought, a mission-style tall cinderblock enclosure with concrete, brick or slate flooring offers great satisfaction. If large enough, one half can be grass, and tree or blue chips or something softer than the hard surface. Materials should be chosen to go with the house.

SCREENS

Need screens or storm windows for next year? If you've postponed this purchase because of cost, consider the advantages: Storm windows cut down fuel costs. If the outlay is too great, say the number required for a large house, consider visiting depots where used house articles are sold. Screens and storm windows for standard size windows may be picked up for a song. Windows should be tested for fit, though, if you doubt your measurements. Some places are considerate enough to let one return articles that do not fit.

Second-hand yards often have other items for sale — bathroom fixtures, cabinets and so on. These can help cut the cost of a room addition.

Special Day For Milady

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

This is the day for milady, young and old. They will all be beautiful in their fashions of garden colors. The colors this year promise to be the most beautiful because they are chosen from our gardens of flowers. Perhaps the newest or most popular of all worn today are the coral shades with flower colors.

Pinks seem to live on forever so we will see the palest baby pink to strong peony shades on Milday today, and yellows of course are bright as a canary flitting happily through this garden of colors.

PARISH DRESS REVUE

Speaking of Easter fashions, the Home Demonstration Club women of Ouachita Parish really did themselves proud in their annual dress revue last week. The 59 club women who made and modeled their dresses are really in the Easter parade today fashionably dressed.

The winners in the adult division were:

1. Mrs. Van Westbrook, McGuire Club; 2. Mrs. Floyd Kent, Thrifty Homemaker Club; 3. Mrs. Leon Sims, Modern Homemaker Club; 4. Mrs. Frank Buce, Better Homemaker; 5. Mrs. L. M. Bayne, Claiborne; 6. Mrs. David Bryan, Claiborne; 7. Mrs. Evelyn Martin, Modern Homemaker; 8. Mrs. Huey Ellis, Lenwil; 9. Mrs. Glen Gates, McClendon; 10. Mrs. Betty Ardito, Lakeview Club

The winners in the Girls 1-5 were:

1. Kim Magee — made by Mrs. P. M. Jeter, Bosco Club; Melannie Walters — Made by Mrs. L. E. Walters, Liberty; Kellie Clark — made by Mrs. Gail Webb, Cadeville and Kay Nixon — made by Mrs. F. Nixon, Liberty Club.

Winners of the 6-9 age group were:

Julie Lovett — made by Mrs. Jerry Lovett, Liberty; 2. Cheryl Morehead — made by Mrs. Gerald Morehead, Modern Homemaker; 3. Renee Ford — made by Mrs. T. Ford, Cadeville and 4. Pamela Morehead made by Mrs. Gerald Morehead, Modern Homemaker.

The 117 garments were entered in the parish wide dress contest this year. A great big thanks to each of you who helped make the 1965 parish Home Demonstration Dress Revue the best yet.

Thirty five of our business firms in Monroe and West Monroe furnished a gift for the winners in the Home Demonstration and 4-H clothing contest.

Again I say as your Home Demonstration Agent, no where in these United States could there be better people to work with than here in Ouachita. Each day I am thankful that I have the opportunity to work with homemakers and all the business people in this parish. It's truly a great place to live and work.

NATIONAL LIBRARY WEEK

Next Sunday will be the beginning of our National Library Week celebration. Every homemaker must make her own schedule which fits her own family and its needs. A visit to your library next week — April 25, May — will open a world of new ideas and information which you may fit into your family life and its design for living. Busy house wives may learn from reading how to save time, money and energy. Five minutes a day saved on just one household task becomes 30 hours a year, which may be devoted to learning about family and household management. The parish library is continually getting up-to-date books, magazines and information that will assist in providing a home and raising a family.

A THOUGHT

When you feel like giving up, give up something for somebody else. Christ gave all for you.

On The House

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Even the smallest tear makes a window screen useless. Insects have an uncanny way of finding the tiniest break in a large area of screening material. You have one of four choices: close the opening, replace the entire mesh work, buy a new screen or let the insects have a field day.

If the break is very small—a broken strand or two — spreading clear cement across the opening will often provide a temporary patch. For a larger hole, a piece of screeing cut from a discarded screen will do nicely if you take time to wind some of the strands together when making the repair. But you're probably better off by buying one of the small ready-made patches available in hardware and novelty stores.

MATERIALS

When the entire meshwork must be replaced, you can purchase any of several kinds of material — galvanized, aluminum, fiber glass, plastic, copper and bronze. Galvanized is the cheapest, but requires the most maintenance. The chances are you'll want to match the screening material already in the other screens in your house.

If the screen has a wooden frame, remove the narrow strips of molding along the inside frame, taking out all tacks, nails or whatever held the

FORECASTING BY FISH

WAUKEGAN, Ill. (AP)— Waukegan's interpreter of the weather, by signs the fish in Lake Michigan reflect, says the area is in for a long, hot summer.

Mathon Kyritsis has been communing with the fish for more than 25 years. He said he must know their whereabouts because his livelihood depends on catching them.

He observes that the smelt schooled earlier than usual this year in preparation for their yearly swim to shallow waters to spawn.

Steel Strike Deadline Extension Hopes Fade

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Hopes for extension of the May 1 steel strike deadline suffered a jolt during the week.

With time fast running out, there was a glimmer of hope for a while that the United Steel workers Union of America and the 11 major steel companies would get together on an extension.

The union told the industry that it was willing to extend the strike deadline for 45 days in return for a 16-cent hourly boost in wages or benefits.

Industry negotiators came back with an offer of five cents an hour and a request for a longer extension.

R. Conrad Cooper, chief bargainer for the companies, told the union: "We are willing to make a small down payment May 1 but we are willing to go no higher than 2 per cent."

David J. McDonald, president of the USW, announced that the offer had been rejected. He called it "completely inadequate."

Talks were recessed until Monday.

Meanwhile, steel production picked up again during the week, making up some of the decline of the previous week. Output was estimated at 2,776,000 tons, a gain from 2,771,000 a week earlier.

The economy, spurred by a tremendous surge of automobile buying, climbed to an unexpected peak in the first three months of this year. The Commerce Department reported that expansion was the greatest in five years.

The gross national product or GNP — total of all goods and services — rose to an annual rate of $649 billion, a gain of $14.5 billion over the 1964 last quarter.

A GNP of $660 million has been forecast for the year by the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

The increase might have been $1 billion higher had it not been for the dock strike on the East and Gulf coasts.

Residential construction advanced to an annual rate of $26.3 billion from $25.1 billion, businesses' expenditures for fixed investment added $2 billion, purchases of durable goods increased to $61.7 billion from $56.3 billion, purchases of nondurable goods rose to $184 billion from $181.3 billion, and expenditures for services went up to $171.6 billion from $169 billion.

Personal income rose in March to a record annual rate of $513.5 billion, a gain of $2.5 billion over February, the Commerce Department reported.

The key manufacturing payroll component increased to an annual rate of $109.8 billion, up $1 billion.

Retail sales in March declined 1 per cent from February. However, a gain was expected for the Easter month of April.

The Labor Department reported that nonfarm employment gained 360,000 from February. This was 225,000 greater than usual. The nonfarm employment total of 58,756,000 was up 1,973,000 from a year earlier. The department said all major industries except mining and the federal government contributed to the better than seasonal rise.

Reflecting the economy's vigor, good reports of first-quarter sales and earnings began to flow from corporate meetings. For example, International Business Machines Corp. and Radio Corp. of America reported record sales and profits for the period.

These reports were heartening to the stock market, which drove to new all-time peaks on three successive days.

General Dynamics Corp. received a Defense Department contract expected ultimately to total $1.5 billion for the production of 431 F111 fighter-bombers. The F111 originally was called the TFX.

Automobile production declined during the week for a change because all plants were closed for Good Friday and Holy Saturday. Output was estimated at 155,800 passenger cars, compared with 213,366 the previous week and 182,573 a year ago.

For the year production topped the 3-million-mark. At the comparable time last year the total was 2,608,486.

Bay Springs Boom Going; Well Flowing

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The Bay Springs boom was on Saturday with the second well in the new field flowing 591 barrels of oil per day from a perforation in the Cotton Valley sand at 14,548-64 feet.

The new oiler is Shell and Pan American No. 1, Fender sec. 27-2n-10e, west of the discovery well in Jasper County.

A rapid development program is shaping up with three drilling rigs running in the field and a fourth expected to move in soon. Skelly Oil Co. drilled below 6,900 feet in its Alexander No. 1, sec. 27-2n-10e, and below 4,900 feet in the Evans No. 2, sec. 27-2n-10e. Shell and Pan American rigged up at the Hall unit No. 1, sec. 27-2n-10e, an offset to the Fender well with the field area spreading near the corporate limits of Bay Springs.

Near Paulding, also in Jasper County, L. A. Wyatt is rigging up at his wildcat, the Read No. 1, sec. 3-2n-12e, a 15,100 foot test.

Northwest of Bay Springs in Smith County, Shell Oil drilled below 10,900 feet in its important wildcat, the Brown No. 1, sec. 24-9n-9e, a scheduled 17,250 foot venture testing both the Cotton Valley and Smackover zones.

Also in Smith County near Lorena, Pan American completed its Sorey No. 1, sec. 27-4n-8e, pumping 95 barrels of oil per day from perforations in the Cotton Valley zone at 13,808-18 feet. While the well has a low producing rate for that depth, it is expected to bring about further drilling in the area in search of better sand development.

A new oil field find in Franklin County appeared near at Daniel and Phillips No. 1, Zumbro sec. 25-7n-3e, with shows of oil logged in the Tuscaloosa sand at 10,702-38 feet. Operators are reported to be running electrical log on the wildcat at total depth of 11,500 feet and will run casing for completion tests. The venture is north of Meadville.

Phillips Petroleum Co. cored below 19,200 feet in its deep wildcat, the Josephine No. A-1, sec. 35-1s-10w, northeast of Wiggis. The wildcat has contract depth of 20,500 feet and is in the top of the Smackover lime formation.

Another scheduled deep wildcat in south Mississippi is drilling below 11,500 feet and is to be drilled to 18,950 feet. The to be drilled to 18,950 feet. The well is Shell Oil and Placid Oil Co.'s No. 1, Barnes sec. 26-3n-6w, in Greene County north of Leakesville.

In the Levees Creek field of Adams County, Pan American finaled its U.S.A. No. 9, sec. 20-5n-1w, pumping 193 barrels of oil per day from perforations in the Wilcox sand at 6,692-93 feet.

Union Producing Co. drilled below 7,800 feet in its Madison County wildcat, the Vanarsdale Unit No. 1, sec. 30-12n-5e, east of Pickens. Contract depth is 11,500 feet.

High Court Sets Hearing In Gas Case

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)— The Supreme Court late this month is to hear arguments in a case that could determine whether many trillions of cubic feet of natural gas ever will be sold in interstate commerce.

The case, in effect, will determine whether producers can avoid the regulatory authority of the Federal Power Commission (FPC) by selling their leases outright to interstate gas pipeline companies.

Under terms of the lease or "in-place" sales, the pipeliner takes over a lease, produces the gas and pipes it to the other states for resale.

The producers who sell the leases receive a down payment and additional payments spread over a 15 to 30-year period.

Such transactions were becoming quite popular in early 1963 when the FPC reversed a 1959 ruling and asserted jurisdiction over lease sales.

The 1963 ruling clouded the status of a number of lease purchases involving nearly $1 billion and trillions of cubic feet of gas.

It prompted the Humble Oil & Refining Co. to cancel its plans to make its vast gas reserves in the King Ranch area of south Texas available for interstate resale.

Less than two months after the 1963 FPC ruling, Humble canceled plans to sell to a new firm, Monterey Gas Transmission Co., some 6.2 trillion cubic feet of gas from the King Ranch.

Monterey was to have made the purchase on a lease basis and transport more than 700 million cubic feet a day over a 30 year period for resale to the Columbia Gas System. Columbia and non - affiliated companies were to have delivered the gas to customers in Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia, Kentucky, New York, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

The case now before the Supreme Court involves a $134.5 million deal in which Texas Eastern Transmission Corp. obtained gas leases in Louisiana's Rayne field.

Rayne gas was involved in the 1959 FPC ruling and the 1963 reversal. The FPC appealed to the Supreme Court after the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled last August in favor of the producers, the Continental Oil Co., Sun Oil Co., M. H. Marr and General Crude Oil Co. The Fifth Court held no FPC jurisdiction was involved in the 1959 contract in that it involved only production and gathering of gas.

The five producers filed their briefs in Washington this week. Arguments will be heard the week of April 26.

Two weeks after the Fifth Court's ruling last year in the Rayne case, and FPC examiner dismissed a show cause hearing involving a $97 million lease purchase Tennessee Gas Transmission Co. obtained from four Louisiana offshore producers—Continental, Atlantic Refining, Tidewater and Cities Service.

Prior to the FPC reversal, Tennessee made Louisiana lease purchases in excess of $325 million and 2 trillion cubic feet of gas.

Harold Burrow, Tennessee president, said that in early 1961 leasehold transactions offer several advantages to producers.

"First, the producer may get a substantial cash down payment," he said. "Second, operation of the field is no longer the obligation and responsibility of the seller. Third, it is true, the producer escapes regulation, but in order to escape it he has had to sell out . . .

"The buyer gets the gas. It may be the only way he can get it."

Market Hits Highs, Notes Spring Rally

By ED MORSE

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market last week rose to a series of historic highs, ending a couple of months of "consolidation" of the previous peaks made early in February.

It looked like a "traditional spring rally" to Wall Streeters. In the short pre-Easter trading week of four days, all the popular market averages climbed to records Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. They declined slightly on Thursday when profits were taken prior to the market holiday for Good Friday and the three-day Easter weekend.

The market was buoyed by an increasing parade of earnings reports from leading corporations, most of them showing sharp increases over a year ago. Such corporate giants as Du Pont, Radio Corp. and International Business Machines reported quarterly records.

Another factor—a very strong one, said analysts — was the end of stock selling to raise cash for April 15 income tax payments. Most of this was taken care of by Friday of the prevous week because of the "regular way" delivery system on the New York Stock Exchange, which provides for delivery within four business days.

By Wednesday's close, the market had completed six straight session of advance, the latter three putting the list at record highs.

The Dow Jones industrial average last week rose 10.6 at 911.91. It posted a record high of 912.82 at Wednesday's close. The previous record closing peak of 906.30 was established Feb. 3.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks last week rose 2.4 to 339.3 after making its record closing high of 339.5 on Wednesday. This topped the previous record closing of 337.6 made Feb. 4.

Analysts saw these new highs by the averages as made in convincing fashion — that is, on heavy volume and by sufficient margin to make it look like an emphatic penetration. A spirit of optimism prevailed in the street for the intermediate term.

Volume for the holiday-shortened week was a husky 25,195,680 shares — not much less than the turnover of 26,351,970 shares in the previous trading week of a full five days.

Of 1,520 issues traded last week on the New York Stock Exchange, gainers bettered losers by the wide margin of 812 to 542.

General Motors, the "biggest" stock on the exchange, inspired its fellow blue chips by rising to a string of historic highs, the last one 108½. It ended the week's trading a little below this at 107⅞, a net gain of 2⅜.

Bond prices advanced during the past week and traders attributed the tone of the market to the underlying strength of the U.S. economy.

U.S. Treasury securities dealers went up despite an adverse report on British trade during March. Corporate bond prices generally reflected the advance of the stock market.

On the New York Stock Exchange bond volume for the week totaled a par value of $44.18 million, compared to $47.67 million the previous week.

Flurry Over Reds

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A brief flurry over Communist activities in Mexico has died out and the country was calm and peacefully celebrating the Easter holidays Saturday.

Thirty persons were arrested Monday in a police raid on Communist headquarters and other leftist centers. Nine were released Thursday.

It had been expected the other 21 would be freed or charged when a 72-hour legal deadline was reached late Friday, but latest information said they were being detained for study.

How Mississippi Voted Recently

SENATE

On passage, 73-18, of $1.3 billion school aid bill: Against—Eastland, Stennis.

HOUSE

On motion, rejected 191-236, to substitute Republican bill for the administration's health care for elderly measures: For the motion — Abernethy, Colmer, Walker, Whitten, Williams.

On passage, 313-315, of bill to provide health care for elderly program and increase other benefits under social security system: Against — Abernethy, Colmer, Walker, Whitten, Williams.

On passage, 315-65, of compromise bill extending Arms Control and Disarmament Act for two years: Against—Abernethy, Walker, Whitten, Williams. Not voting — Colmer. (Colmer was paired against passage).

On adoption, 367-29, of resolution proposing constitutional amendment providing procedure for filing vacancies in office of vice president and for dealing with presidential disability: For —Abernethy. Against — Walker, Whitten, Williams. Not voting—Colmer.

On resolution, adopted 312-43, providing $50,000 for investigation of Ku Klux Klan by House Committee on Un-American Activities: For Abernethy. Against—Walker, Whitten. Not voting—Colmer, Williams.

Attends Meeting

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — A Soviet delegation led by the chairman of the Council of Nationalities of the Supreme Soviet, arrived Saturday to attend a meeting of the Interparliamentary Union.

The leader said the Soviet delegation would speak against U.S. action in Viet Nam at the union's debate opening next week. The Council of Nationalities is one of the two Houses of the Soviet parliament.

Fowler Cautions Solons To Watch Trimming Taxes

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler cautioned Congress Saturday against going hog wild in cutting excise taxes at President Johnson's request this session.

He told the American Society of Newspaper Editors (ASNE) that any cut too much in excess of the $1.7 billion to be recommended by Johnson would increase the federal deficit and possibly bring on inflation.

"The reduction must be a prudent," he added.

The President is expected to submit his tax cut proposals in mid-day. There are about 75 different levies on items ranging from automobiles to cigarettes—many of them imposed during the Korean War.

They net the government about $15 billion a year.

The administration has kept its proposed cuts a carefully guarded secret until the President sends up his recommendations.

But heavy lobbying pressures are building up by various industry groups which want the imposts lifted from their products. In addition, senators and House members are expected to try to expand the list for sectional reasons.

Most observers believe the administration will be hard put to hold the line. Fowler said in his speech:

"The Prudent amount of reduction we have scheduled for the last half of this year, while improving our tax structure, will also help sustain our economic momentum by expanding private purchasing power. At the same time, it will offer new incentives for price reductions.

"But the reduction must be a prudent amount—not an excessive one that will interrupt the movement of the last two years from large budget deficit towards balance as the economy moves forward to the objective of full employment with balanced budgets or surpluses.

Oil, Gas Report

High Mark Noted In Area Drilling

Twenty-six new locations were recorded in the Monroe Oil and Gas District this week, according to a report issued by Duncan S. Cook, director.

This was the largest number of applications for permits to drill thus far this year.

The Monroe Gas Field of Union Parish had the largest number of new locations, with seven. Cheniere Field of Ouachita Parish was next with five. (See listings below.)

Only four completions were recorded. These were Avoyelles Parish, Wildcat — Pan American Petroleum Corporation's Roy O. Martin Lumber Comber Company Inc. No. 35, 150 BOPD; Concordia Parish Wildcat — George H. Jett Drilling Company's R. T. Harris — H. G., No. 1, 47 BOPD; Ouachita Parish, Wildcat — S. W. Gas Product. Company's J. M. Ray et al, gas well, 1965 MCF, gas; and Rapides Parish, North Big Island — David Crow's Paul No. 2, SU 340, Ryder, 26 BOPD, 26 MCF, gas. (See listings below.)

There were a total of 64 locations listed in the report, with 28 active wells, 54 inactive, 13 abandoned and two expired.

Houston Topples Northeast For Third Straight Time, 9-7

Tribe Impressive Only On Offense

By KEITH PRINCE
World Sports Editor

HOUSTON—Northeast State made its most impressive offensive showing of the series Saturday afternoon, but still looked like anything but league contenders on defense—committing seven errors—as it bowed to the University of Houston Cougars, 9-7 in a contest which resembled a three-ring circus more than a ball game.

The loss wound up a three game set in which a total of 44 runs were scored and the Indians committed a total of 15 errors. Northeast played like Dr. Jeckel and Mr. Hyde the entire series as it looked good on some occassions and pitiful on others. Obviously, Hyde won the battle of the split personality and Northeast returned home late Saturday night hoping that things will quickly get back to normal.

The Tribe, now 9-7, takes on the University of Arkansas in Monroe Tuesday then goes back to league warfare Thursday with a twinbill against Southeastern in Hammond. Northeast will carry a 6-3 mark into GSC play, good enough for halfgame lead.

In Saturday's loss, despite the big error total, Northeast still played well enough to win except in the second and third innings when UH scored all nine of its runs.

The Cougars collected five runs in the second frame on five hits off tribe starter Dean Bounds plus a couple of NLSC errors, two walks, and two sacrifice flies.

Then in the third, with Mike Vining pitching, the Indians accomodated Houston with three more errors and the Cougars put these together with two hits for four runs. And that was that for the UH scoring department. But it proved to be enough.

Northeast banged out 14 hits, including three each by outfielders Billy McCullar and Red Hall and three more by utility man Gary Fields who hit safety in all three trips to the plate.

Second baseman Joe Canal, shortstop David Worthington added two hits each to the cause — but it wasn't enough to pull out a win.

As had been the case in the previous two games of the series, Northeast jumped off to an early lead but couldn't hold on. Alton Thomas helped give the Indians a 4-0 lead in the second inning when he doubled home three runs and then scored on McCullar's first hit of the day, a single over second.

But Northeast couldn't get any more runs until the seventh and eighth innings, and then not enough of them.

In the seventh, Canal, who had been inserted into the lineup one inning before, boomed a long double to left center scoring Hall and Darryl Barnes. And in the one-run eighth, McCullar, who had six hits during the series, tripled to the right centerfield wall and came home on Fields' third straight hit, an infield tap down the third base line that he beat out.

Bounds was the loser, giving up six hits and five runs in his one and two-thirds innings of work. Vining and Mike Tinnerello, who made an appearance every game, both looked sharp. Both gave up only three hits each.

Van Smith, a lefthander, worked five and two-thirds innings and picked up the victory for Houston.

Breaks Meet Mark

Randy Matson Fails To Set New Record

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Texas A&M's Randy Matson three 65-10¾ for a meet record but missed his own world's shot put record, New Mexico's Clarence Robinson smashed two meet marks and Bill Floerke of Kansas State set a meet javelin mark of 266-5½ in the 40th Kansas Relays Saturday.

These were the top efforts in a two-day harvest of eight records in the university-college class. Southern Illinois, led by Gary Carr's 46.3 anchor quarter mile, won the mile relay in a near record 3:09.2. Carr held off Nebraska's Dave Crook, who ran 45.5 from far back.

SUI's victory prevented a Big Eight slam in all five baton events Saturday. In all, the Big Eight won five of seven relays. Lamar Tech took the college mile relay in 3:09.5.

Robinson leaped 50-6½ in the triple jump for a meet record. He set a broad jump mark of 26-2½ Friday.

Missouir, with Robin Lingle running a 4:06.8 anchor leg, broke the distance medley record 9:47.3. Lingle took the baton 12 yards behind Herald Hadley of Kansas and won by 20 yards.

Oklahoma State ran a meet record 7:21.2 in the two-mile relay, just 2.2 seconds of the world record. John Perry ran a 1:48.7 second leg and his brother Dave, a 1:48.9 anchor half mile.

Nebraska, anchored by Charlie Greene, set a meet record for the 440 relay around two turns with 40.5. Oklahoma's Jim Jackson, winner of the 100-yard dash in 9.7, anchored the Sooner 880 relay team to victory in 1:23.5, one-tenth second off the meet record.

The meet's top individual—although not eligible for the most outstanding award—was Jim Ryun, senior at Wichita, Kan., East High. His blazing 1:47.7 anchor led East to a national prep record of 7:42.9 in the two-mile relay.

Ryun, a member of the U.S. Olympic team last year, set a prep relays mile record of 4:04.8 Friday, just off his national prep mark of 4:04.4. His career best is 3:59 in a non-high school meet.

Texas Western set a meet record of 23.8 in the college 880 relay and took the 440 relay in 40.8, just one-tenth of a second off the record. Eastern Michigan's 7:32.8 just missed the record in the two mile. Fort Hays, Kan., state took the college distance medley in 10 minutes flat.

Other individual winners were Bobby May, Rice, 14.2 in the high hurdles; Steve Herndon, Missouri, 6-8 high jump; Warren Brattlof, Rice, 15-6 pole vault; and Hylke Van Der Wal, a K-State graduate student, 9:21.6 in the 3,000-meter steeplechase. May and Van Der Wal were repeat champs.

Homers Boost Yanks Past A's

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle hit two-run homers Saturday night and the New York Yankees executed five double plays in a 5-2 victory over the Kansas City Athletics.

Maris broke up a scoreless pitchers' battle between the A's Orlando Pena and the Yankees' Al Downing when he hit a 440-foot smash with Bobby Richardson aboard in the sixth.

Maris' homer cleared both the inner fence in right field, plus an outer wall that sits atop a 40-foot embankment. Only seven balls have been hit over the outer wall.

Mantle added to the Yankee lead when he homered against John Wyatt with Maris aboard in the eighth. John Blanchard wrapped up the Yankee scoring with a solo homer in the ninth.

Downing, who gave up eight walks, worked into the seventh before his wildness finally caught up with him. He gave up walks to Wayne Causey and pinch hitter Ken Harrelson. Then Bert Campaneris singled Causey home. Pedro Ramos took over and closed out the inning.

Ramos gave up a homer to Jim Gentile in the eighth. It was only the second homer Ramos has yielded since joining the Yankees.

Pirates Edge Astros, 3-2, In 10 Innings

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Roberto Clemente singled home the winning run in the 10th inning, giving the Pittsburgh Pirates a 3-2 victory over the Houston Astros Saturday.

Elroy Face, the third Pittsburgh pitcher, was the winner. He relieved Al McBean in the 10th.

Houston had tied the score 2-2 in the eighth on a walk, a sacrifice and a single by Joe Morgan that sent home pinch-runner Al Spangler.

The Astros then loaded the bases with one out but McBean replaced Pittsburgh Starter Bob Veale and got Bob Aspromonte to hit into a double play.

Houston got a quick run in the first on a triple to deep right by Morgan and an infield single by Walter Bond.

The Pirates scored twice off Don Nottebart in the third on a single by Jim Pagliaroni, Veale's sacrifice bunt and back-to-back singles by Bill Virdon and Schofield.

Before getting into trouble in the eighth, Veale had let only one bastro reach second after the first inning.

Cardenal Hits Decisive Double In Angels Win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rookie Jose Cardenal hit a decisive two-run double in support of Fred Newman's six-hit pitching Saturday night as the Los Angeles Angels handed Detroit its first loss of the season, 3-1.

Newman, 1-1, didn't allow a runner past first base after the Tigers scored in the opening inning. The run came after Jerry Lumpe beat out a high bouncer for a single and took second on a wild pitch. He reached third on a passed ball and scored on Jim Northrup's single.

The Angels managed only six hits off Phil Regan and Joe Sparma, but bunched four of them in the first two innings to score all of their runs.

Northeast Gym Performers Get National Place

NASHVILLE, Tenn., (Special) — Three Northeast gymnasts placed in three events with Henry Magdeleno getting two places in the U. S. Gymnastic Federation National Championships here Saturday.

Magdeleno placed second in the free exercise behind Rusty Mitchell of Southern Illinois and outscored Mitchell on two options. Magdeleno also got 10th in the sidehorse.

Northeast's Tom Heineike got a third place tie in the long horse with Ken Black of Nashville and Dwight McLemore, in his second year of gymnastics, finished 14th in the sidehorse.

The meet here was the first for Northeast entries in national competition. The meet was held at David Lipscomb College.

Mulkey Takes 7th Decathlon Championship

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Phil Mulkey of Birmingham, Ala., won his seventh Kansas Relays decathlon championship in 11 appearances Saturday with 7,080 points for the 10-event grind.

In second place after Friday's first five events, Mulkey won the discus at 147-9, the 110-meter hurdles in 15.2, the pole vault at 13-9, was second in the javelin with 174-2, and was last in the 1,500 meters in 5:22.8.

Mulkey won the decathlon in 1962, 1961, 1960, 1959, 1958 and 1956. He set the meet record of 7,480 points in 1962.

Arvesta Kelly of Lincoln University of Missouri was third with 6,799. Oklahoma sophomore Don Ellis, the leader at the halfway point, was fourth at 6,481.

The last four competitors were far behind. John Wiversema of Lamar Tech of Texas had 5,540, Jim Ratzlaff of Wichita 5,432, Jim Webb of San Diego State 5,268, and Jack Nester of Marshal, Mo., 5,024.

Boston Outlasts Baltimore, 12-9, In Home Opener

BOSTON (AP) — Frank Malzone drove in four runs, including a deciding bases-loaded single off Steve Barber in the eighth inning, as Boston outlasted Baltimore 12-9 Saturday in the Red Sox home opener.

The touted Orioles' bullpen fell apart — Hank Bauer used eight pitchers — and Boston capitalized on wildness to nail down the verdict in the nationally televised marathon. Tony Conigliaro's sacrifice fly and Felix Mantilla's single wrapped it up after Malzone put Boston ahead and triggered a four-run eighth inning.

Stu Miller walked the only two men he faced starting the eighth. Barber walked Lenny Green, gave up a single to Malzone and walked in another run before Ken Rowe got the call.

Pinch hitter Charlie Lau ripped relief ace Dick Radatz's pitch for a 450-foot, eighth inning home run which pulled the Orioles into an 8-8 tie.

The Orioles had taken an early 6-2 lead with rookies Paul Blair and Curt Blefary joining Brooks Robinson in a homer barrage. Blefary hit a second homer in the ninth.

The Red Soc chipped away until the sixth when Malzone smashed a two-run single off rival third baseman Robinson's glove and Boston moved ahead 8-6. The hit, capping a three-run uprising, came off southpaw Harvey Haddix, fifth Oriole pitcher.

NBA Title Series To Get Underway

BOSTON (AP) — The old pro Boston Celtics turn their unsurpassed defensive talents on the Elgin Baylor-less Los Angeles Lakers today in quest of a seventh straight National Basketball Association title.

Oddsmakers list Boston a 2-to-1 pick to win the best-of- seven final series, which pits the two most successful clubs in league playoff history.

The second game is at Boston Garden Monday night before the rivals move to Laker territory for Wednesday and Friday dates.

Hauled back from the brink of disaster against Philadelphia by John Havlicek, the Celtics now have two problems—sensational Los Angeles guard Jerry West and a possible letdown.

K.C. Jones heads a three-man defensive shuttle service aimed at slowing the West trigger hand which averaged 46.5 points against Baltimore. Boston Coach Red Auerbach has assigned Havlicek and Larry Siegfried to share the job.

The Laker forecourt-men, especially center Leroy Ellis, must play over their heads to match Boston counterparts headed by five-time NBA-MVP Bill Russell.

"We're worried about a letdown" says Auerbach, whose team had a 7-3 edge over the Lakers with Baylor during the season. "The worst thing that could happen would be to get smug."

The Boston defense in the form of Havlicek's interception of a Philadelphia in-bounds pass wi'h five seconds left rescued a 110-109 victory Thursday night. Auerbach fretted whether his limp, relieved forces could get themselves worked to a high pitch by today's 2 p.m., EST, tapoff.

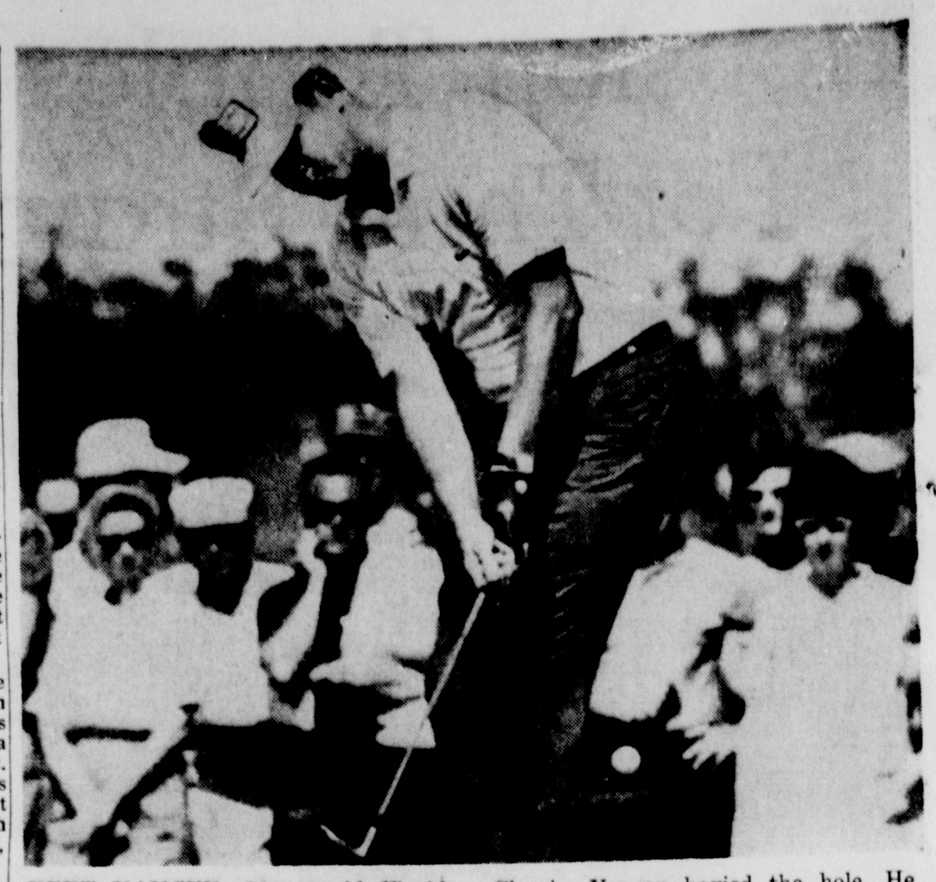

Philadelphia Coach Dolph Schayes predicts a Boston sweep in four. Hal Greer of the 76ers agrees, adding: "Nothing to it. We'd beat the Lakers if we were to meet them. The Eastern Division series was really the one for the championship."

"We'll show up," offered the Lakers' Fred Schaus. "We're ready for the Celtics. We already proved by beating Baltimore in six games how wrong people were who said we'd fall on our faces after losing Baylor."

Baylor was hurt in the Western Division playoff opener and underwent knee surgery.

hile Boston is seeking its eighth NBA crown in nine years, the Lakers, including their Minneapolis days, are league leaders in total playoff victories, 90, and games, 153.

In head-on playoff encounters Boston: posted the only four-game finals sweep on the books in 1959; became the only finals entry ever to rally from a 2-3 deficit and win in 1962; took the Lakers in six in 1963.

Nichols Pulls Into Tie At Houston Golf Meet

HOUSTON (AP) — Bobby Nichols, the 1964 PGA champion, birded three back nine holes Saturday for a third round four-under-par 67 and a tie with young Bert Yancey after 54 holes in the $55,000 Houston Golf Classic.

Yancey, who held or shared the lead through two rounds, dropped even with Nichols by going one over on the 17th green. Nichols missed taking the lead when birdie putts of 3 and 20 feet stopped short on the last two holes.

"It was the best round of golf I ever played from tee to green," Nichols said after posting a 10-under par 67-69-67—203 for the 7,233-yard, par 71 Sharpstown Country Club course.

Tied at 206 were Billy Martindale, who shared the 36-hole lead with Yancey, and Bruce Devlin, the Australian who set a record 63 for Sharpstown in a Wednesday pro-am preliminary.

Martindale held a one stroke lead over Nichols after nine holes Saturday but ran into three back nine bogeys for a par 71.

The third round lead changed five times before Yancey went on a back nine rampage that put him in front on No. 11 and kept him there until the bogey on No. 17 dropped him into the tie.

"I started making everything on the back nine," Yancey said. "But No. 17 killed me when I hit a trap. It was only the second green I missed and my 15-foot par putt was short."

Nichols, one stroke behind after 36-hole, birdied the first green with a 15-foot putt and got another at No. 5 with a three-footer. His lone bogey came on the ninth green when he hit a bunker and two-putted from 15 feet. His back nine birdies involved putts of 10, 15 and 1 feet.

The 67 by Nichols was matched only by Chris Blocker, who had a 77 Tuesday to qualify only as the last of five alternates for Thursday's starting field.

Blocker moved into the final round with a four-under-par 71-71-67—209.

10th Straight Win

Marichal 4-Hits Mets In 4-0 Win

NEW YORK (AP) — Right-hander Juan Marichal of the San Francisco Giants pitched a four-hitter for his 10th straight victory over the New York Mets Saturday 4-0.

A crowd of 34,945 at Shea Stadium saw the Giants pound out 12 hits against a parade of Mets pitchers—rookie Tom Parsons, who went six innings in losing; Larry Bearnarth, Dennis Ribiant and Jim Bethke.

Marichal struck out six men in subduing the National League tail-enders after the Mets got two hits in the first inning and one in the second. The fireballing Marichal did not allow another hit until Johnny Lewis singled with two out in the ninth.

The Giants ace has never lost to the Mets. He beat them three times last year in winning 21 games.

The only threat came in the first inning when Bobby Klaus and Johnny Lewis singled. But the Giants pitcher forced Joe Christopher to hit into a double play.

The Giants scored single runs in the third, sixth, seventh and ninth—the first one unearned.

Without one out in the third, Jose Pagan singled, went to third when second baseman Klaus bobbled Hal Lanier's infield dribbler and scored when Matty Alou caromed a shot off Klaus' knee that went for a single.

Single by Matty Alou, Willie Mays and Willie McCovey produced a second run in the sixth.

In the seventh, Larry Bearnarth, relieving Parsons, faced only two men. He walked Ed Bailey and threw wild to first when Pagan bounced a hit off the pitcher's glove. Ribant came to the mound and allowed Bailey to score on Marichal's long sacrifice fly.

The final Giant run came in the ninth off Bethke. Jesus Alou singled, stole second and scored on a single by Marichal.

Chicago Blasts Milwaukee, 9-4, Behind 16 Hits

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Rookie Glenn Beckert, George Altman and Doug Clemens each collected three hits in a 16-hit Chicago attack that carried the Cubs to a 9-4 victory over Milwaukee Saturday.

A crowd of only 3,362 was on hand in 38-degree weather. The game got underway after a bright sun melted an overnight snowfall which blanketed the field.

The numbing cold made fielding difficult and seven errors were committed, four by the Braves. In addition, there were two hit batsmen, a wild pitch and a passed ball.

Besides the heavy hitting by the Cubs' trio, Ron Santo contributed his third homer for Chicago in support or right-hander Cal Koonce. Loonce was tagged for a leadoff homer by Mack Jones, then allowed only one more hit until the eighth.

By that time the Cubs had built a 9-1 lead against five Milwaukee pitchers, starting with Tony Cloninger.

Koonce hit two batters — Mike de la Hox and Jones — in the eighth, walked a man and was touched for a run-scoring double by Eddie Mathews and Lee Maye's two-run single. Ted Abernarthy came in in relief to preserve the victory.

High Schooler Claims Record In Century Dash

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — William Hurd of Memphis Manassas High School claimed an unofficial national high school record for the 100-yard dash Friday with a clocking of 9.3 seconds.

Hurd's effort came in a triangular meet in the Memphis Negro Prep League, but will not affect the recognized national record of 9.4 set by four schoolboys, including Jesse Owens, since Hurd's mark was not set in a state elimination meet.

Prep Field To Astrodome

AFL Game Sites Continue Growth

NEW YORK (AP)) — From the ramshackle Polo Grounds to shiny Shea Stadium, from a high school field to the grandeur of the Astrodome, from a nomadic existence to the prospect of a permanent and spacious new home.

Those developments have helped brighten the image—and the future—of the American Football League.

Since the eight-team league started in 1960, only two clubs have stayed put. Two teams switched cities, one moved to a larger park, two have new stadiums and the other will move into a new home next year.

The Buffalo Bills and Denver Broncos have done business at the same stand all along, although the Bills' park has been enlarged for the coming season the same is contemplated for the Broncos.

Seating capacity at Buffalo's War Memorial Stadium has been increased 6,500 to 43,000. Bears Field in Denver now holds 34,500, but may be built up to 43,000.

New York's entry was the first to move into a brand new park. The club started as the Titans in 1960 and was a debt-ridden lot until they became the Jets—under new management—in 1963. They left the battered old Polo Grounds last year for Shea Stadium, played before amazing crowds, and future attendance prospects are juicy. Shea holds 60,000.

The Houston Oilers made their debut at Jeppesen Stadium, a high school field seating 35,500, and remained there for the League's first five seasons. This fall they'll be in the Astrodome, the luxurious $31.6 million playground with the plastic roof. Its football capacity is 52,000.

Oakland entered the AFL without a home, then played the first two years in San Francisco—at Kezar Stadium and Candlestick Park. The Raiders went to Oakland in 1962, to 24,700-seat Frank Youell Field. Next year they'll be in residence at the new Oakland-Alameda County Stadium, which seats 48,000.

The Boston Patriots used Boston University's stadium—old Braves Field—for three years, then shifted to Fenway Park, home of the Red Sox. Their seating potential went up 13,000 to 36,500.

The Chargers rattled around in the mammoth Coliseum when they were bases in Los Angeles in 1960. The following year they moved to San Diego, into 34,500-seat Balboa Stadium. A privately financed study is being completed on the prospects of a new park for the club.

The other franchise shift was Dallas to Kansas City, in 1963. As the Texans, they played in the Cotton Bowl. As the Chiefs, their home is Municipal Stadium, with a 40,000 capacity.

Flag Raiser Gets Upset Wood Victory

NEW YORK (AP) — Flag Raiser, a front-running colt owned by Isidor Bieber, tossed an unexpected road block in Bold Lad's path to the Kentucky Derby Saturday when he won the $91,900 Wood Memorial at Aqueduct.

Going to the front soon efter the start of the 1⅛-mile race, Flag Raiser opened up as much as four lengths over Bold Lad, the odds-on favorite from the Wheatley Stable, and held on in a furious homestretch drive for a neck decision over the fast-closing Hail to All, carrying the silks of Mrs. Ben Cohen.

Bold Lad, who looked as if he was ready to take the lead one-eighth of a mile from home, did not have enough to stave off Hail to All's great finish and wound up third, beaten one length for runner-up honors.

Dapper Dan, a stablemate of Bold Lad, was another one-half length back for fourth place in the field of 11.

Flag Raiser, who had won the Bay Shore end the Gotham in two previous starts, was zimed in 1:50 1-5 after running the first quarter mile in 33 seconds, the half in 45 4-5, the six furlongs in 1:09 3-5 and the mile in 1:36 under Bob Ussery.

Flag Raiser, a son of Rough 'n Tumble-Lark's War, ran coupled in the betting with Isle of Greece end Turn to Reason. The three - ply entry trained by Hirsch Jacobs paid $17.00, $6.60 and $2.40 to his backers in the crown of 55,189.

Hail to All, ridden by Johnny Sellers, and coming off a second place to Native Charger in the Florida Derby, returned $7.20 and $2.60. Bold Lad returned $2.10 to show.

Back of the first four horses in order came Louisiana Derby winner Dapper Delegate, Gallant Lad, Tam Lea, Seaman, Sum Up, Isle of Greece, and Turn to Reason. All except Tam Lea and Gallant Lad are eligible for the Kentucky Derby May 1.

If Bold Lad had any excuse, it was because of a light campaign and his first attempt around two turns and at a distance of more than one mile. In his only previous start this year he won at six furlongs after his 3-year-old debut had been delayed by popped splints in his front legs.

But there was no taking the glory from Flag Raiser, who ran his usual race and earned $55,189. Ussery took Flag Raiser away in front from the No. 1 post position and he never gave up the lead.

After one quarter mile he was three lengths in front and quickly increased it to four in the run down the backstretch, with Bold Lad in closest pursuit and Hail to All far, far back among the pack.

Rounding the final turn, Bold Lad started his challenge but was still a good two lengths off the pace with one-quartermile remaining. At that stage Hail to All was back in seventh position.

Ussery, speaking of Flag Raiser's victory, said "He broke good and I had a good hold on him around the turn and into the backstretch. At about the three eighths pole I gave him his head and let him go. At the sixteenth pole, when it seemed he was getting a little tired, I switched my whip from right to left and he started to go again."

Jacobs said "Well, I guess he's Kentucky bound," and added he didn't think either of his other two horses would go.

Manuel Ycaza, riding Bold Lad in place of the suspended Braulio Baeza, said the 1964 2-year-old champion had no excuse except that he got a little tired.

Callison's Hit Gives Phillies 3-2 Victory

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Johnny Callison's two-run inside-the-park homer in the sixth inning carried Philadelphia to a 3-2 victory over Los Angeles Saturday night and continued the Phillies jinx over Dodger right-hander Don Dyrsdale.

Left-hander Chris Short got the victory for a 2-0 record but needed relief help from Jack Baldschun in the ninth after the Dodgers put men on second and third with one out.

Baldschun walked Wally Moon, then got Dick Tracewski to tap back to the mound for a force at the plate. The ace reliever wrapped it up by getting Maury Wills to hit into a force out.

Drysdale, 1-1, departed for a pinch hitter in the seventh. He has lost his last eight games against Philadelphia. He last defeated the Phillies on June 1, 1962.

The first hit off Drysdale was Wes Covington's homer to left in the fourth that gave the Phillies a 1-0 edge. In the second inning, Drysdale had to strike out four Phillies to retire the side when leadoff batter Covington got to first on John Roseboro's passed ball on a third strike.

Tony Taylor opened the Phillies decisive sixth with a single past third and moved to second on Richie Allen's sacrifice and to third on Drysdale's wild pitch. Then came Callison's blast.

Official Entries For 500 Event Now Totals 68

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — The official entry list for the 49th Indianapolis 500-mile race on May 31 appeared complete Saturday at 68 cars.

More than half were of the smaller, rear-engine variety.

Another strong contender for the pole position during time trials to determine the 33-car field will be Scotland's Jimmy Clark, who set the one and four lap qualifying records a year ago.

William B. Ansted and Shirley Murphy of Indianapolis already had submitted two new rear-eninge cars for Foyt the two-time 500 winner from Houston, Tex. A late entry was a front-engine Offenhauser roadster, should Foyt be dissatisfied with his rear-engine equipment.

The last two entries announced came from Mickey Thompson of Long Beach, Calif., and Ted Halibrand of Torrance, Calif., but both were without drivers.

The sharp trend toward lightweight cars of rear-engine design is emphasized by the fact that 46 of this year's 68 entries are of that construction.

Last year's rookie contingent will be required to prove their ability again this year. The driver's test has been boosted to speeds of 145 miles per hour, while the top requirement for newcomers in 1964 was only 135 m.p.h.

Night Mat Show Set For Legion's Park Tuesday

The semi-main will be a tag team match sending Willie Garrett, the Scufflin' Hillbillie, and Alex Medina, the speedy Puerto Rican, against those rugged brawlers, Ted Naiphf and Kurt Steiger.

Two one-fall preliminaries open the show at 8:15 p.m.

Advanced ticket information is available by telephoning FA 2-3619 or making purchases at Roll-Arena on Walnut street, Marty's A&W on Natchitoches street in West Monroe, and at Hill's Barbecue, Texas avenue, in Monroe.

First Homer

BOSTON (AP) — Baltimore rookie Paul Blair, who was married Friday, hit his first major league home run in the opening inning off Boston's Bill Monbouquette Saturday.

Blair, 21, was so surprised he stopped at second base, thinking it was a ground rule double.

Racing Is Set At West Monroe

The third racing scheduled of the season gets underway at the West Monroe Speedway today with time trials at 1:30 p.m.

Trophy racing begins at 2 p.m. with several new cars and drivers added to the schedule.

Gun Control In Dodd Bill

With Sam Hanna

A Basic Freedom

If you believe like we do that the right to bear arms is a basic American freedom, then you'd better take an interest in legislation pending in Congress to control firearms.

Several bills have been introduced, but the bill receiving most attention, introduced by Sen. Thomas J. Dodd of Conn., also should be feared most.

Actually, Dodd has introduced two firearms bills in this session. In January he offered a measure to regulate mail-order gun business designed at eliminating sales to juveniles, criminals and persons who would be in violation of state or local law.

But Dodd came back on March 22nd with a second bill, this one recommended by the Johnson administration. It goes far beyond the first bill.

And it could be just a build-up to control ownership of firearms by every American citizen.

Dodd's latest bill does many things, all adding more restrictions and regulations for citizens who sell guns, as well as for citizens who purchase guns.

For example, if Dodd's bill passes, you won't be able to drive into Arkansas next duck season without first getting a permit from the federal government to take your gun across the state line.

Not only that, if you leave your gun behind, you can't pick up a new one at a store in Stuggart because Dodd's bill provides that a dealer cannot sell a firearm to a non-resident of his state.

Dodd is trying to cut back on the sale of firearms to criminals, nuts and juveniles, but instead he's proposing less freedom for the individual.

His bill would prohibit all mail order sales to individuals, and permit such sales only between licensed importers, manufacturers and dealers.

Thus, it would place unreasonable restrictions on the good citizens who wish to order sporting firearms by mail. There are some citizens who do not have convenient access to licensed dealers for over-the-counter sales.

But the Dodd bill is even worse.

For example, if you belonged to a gun club that re-loads ammunition for its members, your club would have to cough up $1,000 for a manufacturer's license. Anyone selling any rifle ammunition, even .22 caliber, would be required to have a $100 dealer's license. Think of the small stores that would quit selling ammunition.

And if you wished to return your gun to the factory for repairs, you could do so only under the regulations of the Secretary of the Treasury and then only for "authorized" service.

Among other things, the bill provides for (1) a notarized affidavit by the mail-order purchases of a firearm; (2) a notice by registered mail to the chief law enforcement officer of the place where the firearm is to be shipped; (3) a notification to the carrier that a firearm is being shipped; and (4) a requirement that no carrier may knowingly deliver a firearm to a person under 18 years of age.

The National Rifle Association is now voicing its opposition to the Dodd bill.

The NRA says it has "consistently maintained the point of view that the misuse of firearms was properly the object of legislation, not the firearm itself."

Severe punishment would be a better approach for unlawful citizens violating the law rather than restricting law abiding citizens.

Congressman Bob Casey of Texas proposes a bill providing for a 25-year prison sentence for persons "during the commission of any robbery, assault, murder, rape, burglary, kidnaping or homicide (other than involuntary manslaughter), uses or carries any firearm which has been transported across the boundary of a state, the District of Columbia, or a territory or possession of the United States."

Casey's bill advocates punishment for the violator — not restrictions for the law-abiding citizen.

Dodd's bill is a step away from complete government-control over firearms. Other nations who first deprived the citizen of his gun later went the way of the dictator.

Let's don't let that happen to us. Congressman Passman and Sen. Long and Sen. Ellender should know how you feel. If not, someone may convince them that Dodd is on the right track.

Funds For Jobs

When Hobson Norris of West Monroe went on the Wild Life and Fisheries Commission, Ray Whatley of Alexandria went off. His term expired.

But the commission retained Whatley as executive assistant to Director Joe Hair Jr., who now has two executive assistants. Coburn Hood also serves as executive assistant.

Joe told us on the phone this week that he is using Whatley primarily in connection with law enforcement while Hood works on the new in-service training program.

Joe also said he uses the executive assistants in whatever capacity he sees fit.

That's well in good, but at the same time the Wild Life and Fisheries Commission says it has been unable to fill a vacancy in a game warden's job for Ouachita Parish because of a shortage of funds.

The commission still hasn't filled the late William Oxley's slot, leaving Ouachita with agent Frank Swayze to go it alone. Frank has over 100,000 persons to watch over, plus duties on the Ouachita River.

So the question is this: If the commission has funds to have two executive assistants the director, why doesn't the commission have funds for two game wardens in Ouachita?

Why does the commission have enough funds for several game wardens in some parishes with far less population than Ouachita?

Joe Hair says the problem is money, but Sen. Jamar Adcock of Monroe is chairman of the budget committee. Come on, Jamar; let's have some results.

Little Man's Corner

Suddenly the trees turned green as spring arrived and the little men made news afield.

The turkey season ends today and in a few days we'll have the results of the final kill. It'll probably run in the neighborhood of 100 birds for Northeast Louisiana, including Georgia-Pacific and Chicago Mill.

Friday was a state holiday for commission personnel, so we don't have any up-to-then information on the gobblers. But a lot of hunters have had tough luck.

The weather hasn't been right, they say.

Speaking of the weather, a lot of people go by different beliefs. For instance, the old time fishermen say the fish won't bite when the east-wind is blowing.

Yet, the folks out on Black Bayou say the wind was blowing out of the east this week and the fishing was great for some.

Another example is the contention that if it thunders in February it'll frost in April. Remember it thundered a lot in February, especially around the tenth of the month.

Well, it didn't frost April 10th.

So much for the weathermen.

Black Bayou has been a hot spot for chinquapin fishing. John Greer and his brother Rodney landed 175. They fished with crayfish (spelled with a "w" in the Cajun country) and redworms.

In fact, redworms were being used for just about anything in Black Bayou.

Also at Black Bayou, Archie Parker and Mushy Downing got 139 chinks while James Stout and Jimmy Towery got 77. R. L. Fisher landed 48. H. Weller came out with 100.

Charley Marx of Monroe caught a healthy string of 65 bream, chinks and specs. C. F. Harrell of Monroe landed 10 chinks and 30 bream on crickets.

Also catching fish at Black Bayou were David Barlow and Steve Smith, 62 chinks, and Cleo Moore with 60. Wayne Hodge and Willie James landed 60 breams and chinks.

From Monroe, Mrs. Vera Martin landed the limit of bream in Lake St. John. And from Ferriday, Mrs. J. A. Walker, Mike Walker, Mike Browning and George Lee caught the limit of bream in St. John.

At Bayou Louie near Sicily Island, William McKay and James Kiper of Winnsboro landed 20 white perch. Correspondents Otis and Ouida Hassell of Winnsboro caught 100 chinquapins at Lake St. John with red worms.

Out at Cheniere Lake, Jesse Brantley, the lake supervisor, reminds the people that they must have life preservers in their boats before going out on the lake. That's everybody.

He also says the bream are biting crickets.

JIM RYUN, Wichita East, nears the tape to lead his high school to a new national record in the high school two mile relay at the 40th Annual Kansas Relays in Lawrence Saturday. Wichita East's time in the event was 7:42.9, seven seconds better than the old mark set by Roosevelt of Dayton, Ohio, in 1962. (AP Wirephoto)

Drag Racers Love Roar

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (AP) — The throaty roar of revving engines and the squeal of tires may be annoying noises to millions of Americans, but to millions of others they are music.

To those who love it, the rumble and screech are the melodies of drag racing.

Drag racing belongs to the young.

It was born on the West Coast in the World War II period and for years seemed to be the exclusive activity of kick-seeking kids who ran hot rods on public roads at 2 o'clock in the morning.

Its impact is felt today. Now as a spectator activity, it ranks high among sports activities. It drew 46 million paid admissions at tracks last year.

It was street racing that raised so much concern about dragging. Hot rod clubs arose in answer, to make it a legitimate and acceptable sport. But cars are built with power to make them move and men seem unable to resist making them move fast.

A few weeks ago Florida police arrested 103 persons drag racing on a Miami road at 1 a.m. It had been marked for a quarter-mile distance, the standard in drag racing. One night, on the busy Belt Parkway edging Brooklyn, 15 cars blocked traffic while a boy painted a green starting stripe across the three-lane road. There are stretches of road marked off in this way in many part of the country.

Spontaneous races generally blossom at the hangouts late Friday and Saturday nights. Typical of this was the scene after midnight on a recent Saturday at Richardson's Drive-in near Hagerstown. Teen-agers by the dozens entered the lot, driving through, revving engines, and talking back and forth.

"These are the people who are giving dragging a bad name," says Mrs. Connie Grimm, whose husband, Bobbie, operates the nearby Mason-Dixon Drag-O-Way on U.S. 40, six miles east of Hagerstown. "Because of them, people describe anybody interested in dragging as long-haired, leather-jacketed scum. Well, sir, you take a good look at those people who are serious about dragging — and by dragging, I do not mean people who go around racing on highways."

There were plenty of serious draggers on opening day of the Mason-Dixon Drag-O-Way. The Grimms had used some farmland along U.S. 40 to put down the racing strip, build a control tower and spectator stands.

The new season began at 3:20 p.m., March 28, a bright sunny day. Bobbi Grimm, who is a dairy farmer all year round, thought there might be 150 race contestants.

By that hour, there were 216 automobiles, dragsters, motor bikes, pickup trucks and oddballs classified and ready for time trials. All over the field, engines roared in a massive din. In dozens of places small groups huddled close to cars in deep concentration, able to distinguish one sound from another. They looked for all the world like doctors in consultation.

The hillside was filled with hundreds of other cars belonging to spectators or non-entrants who had come along to support friends or favorites. Most of the young people were conservatively dressed. The boys' hair styles now tend to favor long, well-combed hair, rather than crew cuts. They wear pipe-stem trousers, tab-shirts and polished rather pointed oxfords.

On the strip, two cars of the same class stood at the starting mark, engines racing. The idea in drag racing is to get moving quickly and shift gears fast. The race distance is short.

To speed shift, the accelerator is depressed until the tachometer shows 3,500 RPMs. The car is in first gear, the clutch pedal down. At the "go" signal, the clutch is released quickly and the car shifted into second, never letting up on the gas pedal. Shifting continues into fourth gear without ever letting the gas pedal off the floorboard.

As the cars take off there is an ear-tingling screech of tires. Someone figured that in a split second about 10 miles of tire wear occurs.

Finances play an enormous role in dragging. A boy may pick up a piece of junk for $15, but by the time he has it in racing shape it can involve $800 or more. The time that goes into it is measured in months.

It comes to a rather expensive hobby since true drag racing vehicles can be used only for racing. Standing side by side on the field were souped-up 1964 and 1965 Plymouth Belvederes representing total investments of more than $8,000 on the part of Allen "Buck" Phlilips and Ed Wagner, both of Baltimore.

They brought the cars to Hagerstown on trailers.

The most specialized vehicles at the strip are the dragsters. (A dragster is essentially an engine that is kept off the ground by a frame and four wheels. The two in front look like oversize bicycle wheels, the two in back are wide and large).

There is just enough room to ease the driver into position, which requires that he place his legs over the rear axle, with the rear end gears between his knees, his feet almost at shoulder level, one foot on the clutch, the other on the gas. It's like driving lying on your back.

Dragsters have hit more than 200 miles per hour in covering that quarter of a mile and have to be braked with a parachute.

Don Gunther of Hampstead, Md., who built a dragster with his brothers, David and Doug, was asked how he could see where he was going.

"I can't. I just aim it, count to ten and pull the chute," he says.

David Gunther says the brothers put $3,500 into their dragster as well as days and nights of work from October through May.

"My wife once said to me, 'I believe if it ever came to a choice, me or racing, you'd pick racing.'" says Dave, "and I said to her, 'Don't ever make me choose.'"

Riser Invitational

Biggest Junior High Carnival Set Monday

The winning mark in every event will be a record performance Monday afternoon as 11 teams compete for the team title in the first Riser Invitational Relays.

Schools entered in the meet, the only one of its kind in North Louisiana, are West Monroe, Sterlington, Pine Crest, Southside, Ouachita, Jesus the Good Shepherd, Bastrop, Woodlawn, Logtown, Lee and Riser.

Ouachita has beaten Lee by five points and Lee has edged Ouachita by three in earlier season outings.

Awards to be given include a team championship trophy, a team runner - up trophy, mile relay, 880-yard relay and 440-yard relay trophies to the winning teams in these events, and medals to individual winners.

The Riser Relay Court, reigning over the meet will be composed of Wanda Berry, Billie Lynn Corbin, Patricia Crowell, Linda Dodd, Nancy McCarty, Angela Signier, and Patricia Owens.

A list of some of the top performers expected in the meet include Melton Henry and Roy Cole, both of Lee, who have clocked 11.5 and 11.6, respectively, in the 100-yard dash. Ronnie Miletello, West Monroe, has also run a 11.6 and Frank Caw of Riser has an 11.5 to his credit.

In the 220-yard race Gary Crumpton, Ouachita, owns a 26.5 time, while Henry has a 26.2, and Sepulvado of Riser has a 26.5, as well as a 58.0 in the 440-yard dash.

Jim Rushing, Lee, has ran a 58.8 in the open quarter.

Al Robinson of Ouachita has been clocked in 1:38.1, while Bromley of West Monroe has stepped off a 1:38.5 in the 660-yard run.

Miletello looms as a favorite in the 70-yard low hurdles, as he has clocked a 9.8. Larry Phillips, Lee, has a 10.4 clocking. In the 120-yard low hurdles, Miletello has a 15.5 time and James Myers of Ouachita has a 16.3.

Lee's mile relay team owns a 3:59.1 time and a 1:43.2 in the 880-yard relay. Riser has clocked 1:46.0 in the 880-yard relay.

Night Game

Amateur League Opening In May

The American Legion Amateur League will open its third year of operation in the Twin Cities with a night game at the Legion Stadium Tuesday, May 11.

The announcement was made by league president Buddy Blair.

The 1964 champions, Falstaff will be pitted against Rivers Ford in the league opener.

Five teams from last year's league will be participating again this season. They are Falstaff, Ouachita National Bank, Rivers Ford, Piggly Wiggly Stores, and KTVE. Three new teams added this season are Dixie Sea Foods, Rack Service Co., and West Monroe Rebels.

Team rosters and managers are being selected and a lot of enthusiasm is being shown, according to Saul Adler, general manager of the league.

All teams have been strengthened by the addition of players from the Dixie Senior Leagues of Monroe and West Monroe. Each team has also signed several college stars for the season.

Schedules for the 84 game season are expected to be completed early this week.

Opening day and season tickets are also available. A feature savings plan has been adopted by league officials allowing fans to purchase season tickets for $5.00. Call or write Saul Adler Garage for opening day or season tickets.

Other officials of the league are Webb Nix, vice president, and R. D. Farr Jr., secretary.

Rookie Leads Chisox Past Senators, 2-1

CHICAGO (AP) — Rookie Ken Berry singled in Danny Cater with the winning run in the 10th inning Saturday as the Chicago White Sox edged Washington 2-1.

Cater singled to center with one out in the 10th and raced to third when Ron Hansen doubled down the right field line. Berry's line single brought him home.

Rookie Bruce Howard started for the White Sox and Phil Ortega for the Senators. The teams were tied 1-1 when both left in the ninth inning.

Howard, striking out 10, scattered seven hits while Ortega struck out 11 and limited the White Sox to eight hits. Howard came out for a pinch hitter in the ninth while Orgega was lifted after walking two men in the ninth.

The White Sox had tied the score 1-1 in the fourth after Pete Ward opened with the inning with a single. Tom McCraw then slammed an apparent triple to center. But the ball bounced into the bull pen for an automatic double and Ward, who had crossed the plate, was waved back to third.

Berry then drove the run across with a sacrifice fly.

Washington scored the game's first run in the third on Ed Brinkman's double, an infield out, end the first of Don Blasingame's three singles.

Jim Kaat Hurls 1st Twin Shutout Of Season, 3-0

ST. PAUL - MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Jim Kaat pitched a seven-hitter for the first Minnesota shutout of the season Saturday as the Twins blanked the Cleveland Indians 3-0.

The Indians threatened in both the second and fourth, when they touched Kaat for two hits, but he got the side out without damage each time.

Gallant Romeo Takes Victory In Ben Ali Event

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — J. Graham Brown's Gallant Romeo led from wire to wire Saturday to win the $23,000 Ben Ali Handicap at Keeneland.

Jockey Kenny Knapp sent Gallant Romeo into a two-length lead early in the 1 1-16 miles race and was never threatened. Ai Phabet, ridden by Willie Shoemaker, nipped Big Brigade for second in a photo finish. The 6-5 favorite, Choker, was fourth.

Gallant Romeo was timed in 1:42 4-5 and paid $8.20, $4 and $3.20, Alphabet returned $4.40 and $3.40 and Big Brigade paid $4.

The third victory in five starts this year by Gallant Romeo earned $14,950 for Brown and boosted the colt's 1965 bank roll to $35.765.

Cardinals Finally Win Contest, 8-0

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Big Bob Gibson, the St. Louis Cardinals' World Series pitching hero, hurled an eight-hit shutout Saturday night against Cincinnati as the Cards' posted their first 1965 baseball victory, 8-0.

The Cardinals, who lost three games and played a tie with Chicago took out their frustration on four Red pitchers. Ken Boyer, the National League's Most Valuable Player, drove in four runs with a double and two singles.

St. Louis got two runs in the first on a single by Lou Brock, a walk and a double by Bill White. In the second, they scored four on a triple by Julian Javier, singles by Gibson and Boyer, and three walks.

Gibson retired 10 straight Cincinnati batters from the third through the sixth innings. The Reds got men to third base with one out in the sixth and eighth, but both times Gibson got out of the inning.

Two Milwaukee Bowlers Are 1st To Reach 1,300

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Two Milwaukee bowlers became the first tandem in either the regular or classic divisions to reach the 1,300 mark Saturday in doubles competition of the annual American Bowling Congress Tournament.

Courtney Boslwer and Dan Slak came up with an even 1,300 total on games of 403, 453, and 444. Bosler rolled 222, 206 and 207 for a 635 series, while Slak had 181, 247 and 237 for 665.

This was the first time the pair had ever bowled as a doubles team and the first season they have been on the same team.

Edward Ellickson of Chicago, who Friday night rolled a 278 finale in the team event and finished with a 653 series, pulled into eighth place in regular all-events with an 1,867 total. Ellickson fired 601 in the doubles and 613 in singles.

George Rumentzas of Chicago had the benefit of a three-pin error caught by auditors on a spot check to pull into a tie for 10th place in all events. Rumentzas had 639 in the team event, 607 in doubles and 618 in singles for an 1,864 total.

There were no changes in the regular division singles, with Dick Ude of Lincoln, Neb., and Henry Yager of Aurora, Ill., continuing in the No. 1 spot with 689 each. Hank Raasch of Minneapolis held the regular all events lead with 1,908.

There was no competition in the classic division Saturday and there will be none until Tuesday.

Easter

The story of Easter, traditionally known as the most joyous of all Christian holidays, means hope and eternal life. Around this "Feast of Feasts" which commemorates the greatest of miracles, the resurrection of Christ, has evolved a number of traditions and legends in ritual, customs, and hymns manifested in everyday practices from the foods we eat to the clothes we wear. The egg is a symbol of new life and resurrection while new clothes worn on Easter Sunday symbolize a rebirth and baptism of faith.

Above: Symbolic of Easter is the dogwood tree, whose snowy blossoms bursting into bloom traditionally herald the arrival of spring. According to legend, wood of a dogwood tree formed the cross on which Christ was crucified and its blossoms now commemorate the resurrection. Miss Dee Chapman, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Marion D. Chapman, creates a pretty picture as she poses among the branches of a flowering dogwood at their home, 1313 N. Third.

MRS. GEORGE RICHARD PEPPERS

Jenny Lynn Williams, George Peppers Wed In Brienne le Chateau, France

Solemnized Saturday, April 17 in the United States Army Chapel, Brienne le Chateau, France was the candlelight ceremony which united in marriage Miss Jenny Lynn Williams and George Richard Peppers, both now residing in Brienne le Chateau.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Millard Horner Williams, 1620 Milton Street, Monroe and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Peppers of Visalia, California.

Chaplain John Favron performed the double ring vows at 7 p.m. following an organ prelude by Mrs. Junius L. Jones Jr., who also rendered traditional wedding marches. Arrangements of Easter lilies and asparagus fern were used on the altar which was banked with French Fougere. In front of the altar on either side of the chapel were seven branched candelabra holding lighted tapers.

The bride was escorted by Robert J. Flynn, who gave her in marriage. Her gown, designed by Anrose of Paris in white raw silk, featured a fitted bodice with three quarter cloche sleeves, edged with Bouton de Rose lace from the region of Aube, France. The long skirt, gently flared at the hem, was also embellished with the same lace. Her cathedral length veil of French illusion featured a second tier in fingertip length, enhanced with small rose appliques of the lace. The veil was held in place by a circlet of white raw silk, trimmed with lace roses. She carried a sheaf of Easter lilies.

Miss Deanna Davis, cousin of the bride, served as her maid of honor and only attendant. She wore an Empire style gown of pastel blue chiffon in floor length with a blue satin obi sash. A flat bow of matching blue formed her headdress and she wore wrist length white gloves and carried a single long stemmed vermillion rose.

Kent Harlow Butterfield attended Mr. Peppers as best man. Ushers included Jan Joseph Carscallen, Jerome L. Miller, Zeb Oxendine and William A. Sexton, all presently of Brienne le Chateau, France.

Mrs. Ida Craig Davis, aunt of the bride, now residing in Brienne le Chateau, wore for the occasion a beige raw silk jacket dress with petite beige flowered hat, beige accessories and white gloves. Her corsage was of vermillion roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the officer's club which was decorated throughout with French spring flowers. The entrance was banked with lilac and French Fougere with a large arrangement of Fougere forming a background for the receiving line. A massive spring arrangement of Marguerite, gladioli, roses, lilacs and jonquils formed the central decor for the bride's table with a tiny replica of the arrangement used on the table which held the bride's book.

Assisting with reception courtesies were Mrs. Robert J. Flynn, Mrs. Edmond K. Ball, Mrs. Charles F. Hudson Jr., Mrs. Donna LaPrade, Miss Adrienne Flynn and Miss Regina Flynn.

For going away the bride changed into a Chanel style suit of watermelon raw silk, complemented with light pink silk blouse, white kid gloves and black patent accessories. A single pink rose formed her corsage. The couple will travel through Luxembourg, Holland, Belgium and Paris for their wedding trip and will reside in Germany and France for a year before returning to the United States.

The bride is a graduate of Neville high school and Louisiana State University and is a member of Pi Beta Phi social sorority. Mr. Peppers was graduated from Redwood high school and attended the College of the Sequoias in Visalia, Calif.

Engagement Announced For Sue Shillard Brown

Mr. and Mrs. John Shillard Brown of Dallas, Texas, formerly of Monroe, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Sue Shillard Brown to Whit H. Clark, son of Mrs. William H. Clark Jr. of Dallas and the late Mr. Clark.

The wedding will be an event of June 23 in Perkins Chapel at Southern Methodist University.

A former Dallas debutante, Miss Brown was presented at the Idlewild Ball during the 1962-63 season. A graduate of Hockaday School in Dallas, she attended Sweet Briar College and was graduated from SMU, where her sorority was Kappa Alpha Theta. She is a member of the Slipper Club in Dallas.

Miss Brown is the granddaughter of Edgar William Brown Jr. and the late Gladys Slade Brown of Orange, Texas and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bullock of Dallas, formerly of Louisville, Ky.

A member of the Idlewild Club, the future bridegroom also belongs to the Terpsichorean Club, another Dallas bachelors' social organization. He was graduated from Highland Park high school in Dallas; the University of Texas and the University of Texas Law School. His fraternity is Phi Delta Theta.

MRS. WAYNE ANDREW TRESSNER

Suzanne Moseley Weds Wayne Andrew Tressner

Lilies and other seasonal white flowers, illuminated with white cathedral tapers, formed a setting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chuvy James Moseley, 1407 North Second, Monroe, for the wedding of their daughter, Miss Suzanne Moseley and Wayne Andrew Tressner, on Friday, April 16 at 7:30 p.m. He is the son of Mrs. Rose Tressner, 403 Haynes, West Monroe and Rudolph Tressner, Des Plains, Illinois.

Guests were greeted in the foyer of the home where an antique planter atop a tiered table held a potted Easter lily and a console table held an arrangement of stately Calla lilies. The stairway was garlanded with boxwood at the base of which a bouquet of Calla lilies was attached to the newel post.

The wedding party entered the formal living room where silk cord and smilax attached to posts formed a bridal aisle. The ceremony was performed before an improvised altar formed by a white arch, garlanded with boxwood. Atop the arch was a sunburst of mixed white flowers, including California stock, majestic daisies, pompon chrysanthemums and lilies. On either side of the arch were cathedral candelabra, garlanded with boxwood roping.

Rev. E. C. McKenzie performed the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Bill Ragland Jr., Lake Providence, cousin of the bride, played traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Miss Janet Noland.

Wearing a traditional gown of Chantilly lace and silk English net, the bride was given in marriage by her father. The fitted bodice was fashioned with low scalloped neckline, accented with appliques of seed pearls, and long sleeves tapered to petal points over her hands. The bouffant skirt was fashioned of tiered lace falling in graceful lines and terminating in a chapel train. Her bouffant veil of bridal illusion was held in place by a jeweled crown. She carried a bouquet of white bride's roses centered with a white Japhet orchid, in traditional design.

Miss Ann McElroy who served as maid of honor and only attendant for the bride, wore a formal length gown of jonquil yellow organza. The fitted bodice featured a low neckline and brief sleeves. The easy sheath skirt was accented in back with panels falling to the hemline. Matching shoes and hat completed her costume and she carried a bouquet of Golden Rapture roses in crescent design.

Serving as best man was Norman Tressner, brother of the groom.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Moseley wore a gown of aquamarine chiffon with matching accessories and an orchid cattleya orchid. Mrs. Tressner, mother of the groom, chose a pink taffeta dress with accessories to match and her corsage was also an orchid cattleya orchid.

A reception followed the ceremony. The refreshment table in the family room was covered with an heirloom cloth and centered with an antique silver and cut crystal epergne, which held a massive arrangement of white bridal flowers. The bride's table centered with the tiered wedding cake, was overlaid with an organdy and lace cloth and garlanded with boxwood roping.

Centering the patio was a large candle tree holding thirty green votive candles and an arrangement of magnolia foliage.

For travel when the couple left on a wedding trip to Hot Springs, Arkansas, the bride changed into a suit of pale gold with matching blouse and accessories. Her corsage was a white Japhet orchid. The couple will be at home in Monroe upon their return.

Mrs. Tressner was graduated from Neville high school, attended Abilene Christian College, Abilene, Texas and is presently attending Northeast Louisiana State College. She is a pledge of Zeta Delta Chapter of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority. A graduate of West Monroe high school, Mr. Tressner is also attending Northeast.

Mynelle Gardens Scene Of Club's Spring Tour

Annual Spring tour of Monroe Garden Club was an event of Monday, April 12 when members and guests traveled by chartered bus for an all day excursion to Mynelle Gardens in Jackson, Mississippi.

The gardens were designed by their owner, Mynelle Westbrook Hayward, only daughter of the old and distinguished Westbrook family of Jackson.

Located in the gardens are numerous azaleas and hemerocallis, various varieties of camellias, crab apples, flowering trees and shrubs, as well as many perennials and naturalized planting of bulbs. Also included in the gardens are bird sanctuaries, lovely lacework iron gazebos, arched bridges, as well as many spots to rest and view the colorful surroundings.

At noon the group was served a catered luncheon in the Hayward home followed by a tour of Jackson conducted by Mynelle.

Among the stops was a tour of the recently redecorated Governor's Mansion, which is the second oldest in the nation. The group also visited the contemporary Meyer Falk home and garden, several gift shops and an antique shop.

Members attending were Mrs. E. T. Heard Jr., Mrs. John Collins, Mrs. O. C. Jones, Mrs. Paul Ransom, Mrs. Burg Waddill, Mrs. Charles Bird, Mrs. Jack McBee, Mrs. DeWitt Milam, Mrs. Harold Woods, Mrs. Ralph Marionneaux, Mrs. W. L. Dean Jr., Mrs. W. A. Rebecca Brevard Myers To Wed Stephen Henry

Engagement of Miss Rebecca Brevard Myers and Stephen Mosely Henry of this city, was revealed at an announcement party given Saturday, April 17 in the Greensboro, North Carolina home of the parents of the bride-elect, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Franklin Myers. Mr. Henry is the son of Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Henry, 2301 Jasmine St., Monroe.

The wedding is planned for September 4 to be solemnized in the First Presbyterian Church at Greensboro.

Miss Myers graduated from Chatham Hall School, Chatham, Virginia, and will graduate in June from Hollins College at Hollins College, Virginia. A member of Junior Spinsters Club, she made her debut in Greensboro and Charlotte in 1962.

Grandparents of the bride-elect are Mrs. Thomas Hassel Wright of Charlotte and the late Dr. Wright and the late Dr. and Mrs. Charles Franklin Myers Sr. Dr. Myers was pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Greensboro.

Mr. Henry is the grandson of Mrs. Edward Alexander Walters of Monroe and the late Bernard Henry Scheen of Bienville, La., and of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Wood Henry of Searcy, Arkansas.

The prospective bridegroom was graduated from Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Virginia, where he is now attending Law School. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity and Liberty Hall Society.

Soft Shoes Afoot In '65

Joe Gandolfo, designer of young shoes, finds neither Beatles nor jeans a threat to his "softer, prettier look afoot" for spring. The wide sling, with a Chanel tip in a contrasting leather, gives the teen-ager the openness of current shoe styling, with the closed feeling that she wants because she is really a fashion conservative, he reports.

MRS. ROY G. LITTLE

Miss Mary Ellen Francis, Roy G. Little Are Wed

In a double ring ceremony Friday, April 16 at 3 p.m. in Lakeshore Baptist Church, Miss Mary Ellen Francis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Francis of Monroe, became the bride of Roy G. Little, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy R. Little, also of this city.

Rev. Vester R. Headrick performed the ceremony as the couple knelt on a satin covered prie dieu before the altar which was decorated with smilax and pedestal baskets of white gladioli against a background of fern.

A prenuptial concert was rendered by Miss Becky Wood and Walter G. Mangham Jr., soloist.

Escorted by her father, who gave her in marriage, the bride wore a two piece suit of imported white Italian silk, white lizard shoes and white kid gloves. Her headdress was a small pillbox covered in matching silk which held a brief veil of illusion. She carried a bouquet of white roses and stephanotis, tied with white satin streamers. Her only adornment was a single strand of pearls.

Miss Sheila Culp of Tyler, Texas was maid of honor and only attendant for the bride. She wore a pale pink two piece silk suit with matching pillbox hat and shoes. Wearing white kid gloves, she carried a bouquet of pink chrysanthemums, net and pink satin streamers.

Mr. Little attended his son as best man and ushers were Jimmy Shepherd, Barry Mullins, Thad Mullins and Ralph Francis, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Francis, mother of the bride, was wearing for the occasion a two piece dress of pink silk with elbow sleeves and Chelsea collar. Pink shoes and hat and white gloves completed her costume. Mrs. Little wore a three piece beige lace ensemble with matching hat and shoes and white gloves. Both mothers wore corsages of cymbidium orchids.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the church social hall. Guests were greeted by Mrs. F. L. Harmon. Miss Sharon Little, sister of the groom, presided at the guest book which was placed on a round table, covered with a fringe - bordered cloth, centered with a silver candelabra and white taper, at the base of which the bride's bouquet was displayed.

Miss Judy Joiner and Mrs. Gary W. Carter served the tiered wedding cake which was decorated with white roses and crested with double wedding bells and lily of the valley. Presiding at the crystal punch bowl were Miss Eleanor Harman and Mrs. Robert Baxter. Tea girls were Miss Carolyn Paul, Miss Carol Stone, Miss Jerry Piatt and Miss Becky Wood. Others assisting with courtesies were Mrs. J. B. Mullins, Mrs. Daniel E. Dupree, Mrs. Claude O. Price, Mrs. H. P. Monzingo, Mrs. R. W. Wood, Mrs. B. B. Seale and Mrs. Louis Auttonberry.

Rice bags were presented the guests by Miss Debbie Little, sister of the groom and Brian Francis, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Little is a graduate of Neville high school and will graduate in August from Northwestern State College in Natchitoches with a B. A. degree in elementary education. She is a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma social sorority and Kappa Delta Pi National Honorary Education fraternity. Mr. Little was graduated from Ouachita Parish high school and attended Northeast Louisiana State College. He is presently serving with the United States Army, stationed at Fort Benning, Georgia.

Stretch Meets Roadblock

Stretch fabrics have moved so fast that the clothing makers can't keep up in ability to use them. As a result, stretch has met a roadblock in general ready-to-wear.

A resounding success in sportswear and children's wear, stretch can't seem to break into dresses, suits and coats. High-fashion designers, except for stretch's inventor, Emilio Pucci, ignore stretch fabrics.

Stores and consumers, too, lag in their knowledge of stretch. It will be years before all segments of fashion catch up with stretch.

MR. AND MRS. SAMUEL RAYBURN FLOYD

Wilda Lenard Is Bride Of Samuel Rayburn Floyd

Trinity Baptist Church was scene of the ceremony on Friday, April 3 which united in marriage Miss Wilda Lenard, 1309 McGuire, Monroe, and Samuel Rayburn Floyd, West Monroe. The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Dentis P. Lenard of Columbia and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl McMills of West Monroe.

Rev. James B. White performed the double ring ceremony at 6:30 p.m. before an arch of greenery flanked by lighted white tapers and baskets of giant white chrysanthemums. Traditional wedding music was presented by Mrs. Bill Turpin, pianist and Jimmy Tucker, soloist.

The bride was escorted by her brother, Harold D. Lenard, who gave her in marriage. Her gown of white satin featured a bodice of Chantilly lace reembroidered with seed pearls, styled with scalloped neckline and long sleeves tapered to points over the hands. A tiara of seed pearls held her veil of illusion and she carried a bouquet of yellow rosebuds with yellow streamers.

Attending the bride were Miss Jeanette Lenard, her sister, as maid of honor and Mrs. Betty MaGouirk, matron of honor. They wore identical gowns of peacock blue satin, styled with fitted bodice, scoop neckline, belled skirts. Their bouquets were of white chrysanthemums tied with white streamers.

Marvin F. Head served as best man for Mr. Floyd and ushers were Huey Lenard, a cousin of the bride, and Alfred Lenard, her brother. Candles were lighted by Dennis Wayne Lenard and John Edward Lenard, nephews of the bride.

For the occasion the bridegroom's mother was wearing a green linen dress with matching accessories and a corsage of white chrysanthemums.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the home of Marvin F. Head. Centerpiece for the bride's table was an arrangement of pink roses in a gold epergne with the tiered wedding cake and crystal bowl of punch at either end. Miss Sue Lenard served pink punch to approximately 80 guests.

For travel when the couple left on a wedding trip to New Mexico, and Colorado, the bride was wearing a pink linen suit with matching accessories, and the corsage from her bouquet. Upon their return they will be at home in Monroe where both are employed.

The bride is a graduate of Grayson high school and Bish Mathis Institute, Monroe. Mr. Floyd was also graduated from Grayson high school and attended Louisiana State University.

Hemerocallis Society Rules Topic Of Talk

W. E. Monroe of Baton Rouge was guest speaker for the Twin City Hemerocallis Club when it met Monday night, April 12 in the Agriculture Building. Hosts for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Pittard, Mrs. Fred Hayton and Mrs. Oma Slaughter.

Mr. Pittard, president, conducted the business session and following reports by various chairmen, Mrs. Pittard introduced the speaker. Mr. Monroe talked extensively on the new rules and regulations which govern the Hemerocallis Society internationally.

Refreshments were served at close of the evening to Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Moore, Mrs. James F. Monroe, Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Mangham, Mrs. Jewell Earl, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Turner, Mrs. E. F. Kenny, Mrs. Patti Carr, Mrs. Oma Slaughter, Mrs. Fred Hayton, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Bates, Mr. and Mrs. Pittard, C. M. Eaker, Mrs. D. E. Bivens Jr., Mrs. Julius Irving and Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Cobb.

MRS. JAMES ELLIS DAVISON

Davison-Odom Vows Read In Candlelight Setting

Tall standards of Easter lilies, stock and emerald fern flanked by branched candelabra holding slender white tapers formed a setting in Hodge Baptist Church for the wedding of Miss Martha Dianne Odom and James Ellis Davison. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Everett D. Odom of Hodge and Mr. and Mrs. Paul M. Davison of Ruston.

Rev. J. D. Wagnon performed the ceremony at 7 p.m., Saturday, April 10 following a program of nuptial music by Mrs. Travis N. Hall, organist and Mrs. Tom Britton of Baton Rouge, soloist.

Candles were lighted by Tommie Lou Elkins of Lewisville, Ark., and Gary Elkins of Winnsboro.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of imported pure silk peau combined with Alencon lace and embroidery. The moulded bodice was styled with long sleeves and a modified scoop neckline, embellished with re-embroidered appliques of iridescent sequins and seed pearls. Lace medallions cascaded down front of the dome shaped skirt, which swept to the back in a chapel train. Her bouffant veil of silk illusion was held in place by a queen's crown of pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of Easter lilies with white satin streamers.

Miss Dolora Odom, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor and wore a floor length gown of rose peau de soie, with scoop neckline, short sleeves and belled skirt. She carried a single pink sensation rose. Bridesmaids, Miss Jean Francis, Houston, Texas; Miss Sandra Ellis, Fordyce, Ark., and Miss Joyce Murphee, Luling, Ark., wore gowns of pale pink peau de soie, styled identical to that of the honor attendant. They carried single happiness roses. Flower girl was Miss Melissa Shell.

Mr. Davison attended his son as best man. Groomsmen-ushers were Johnny Maxwell, Tracy Colvin, Ruston; Jerry Odom, New Orleans; Jimmy Walpole, Hodge; Doug Davison, Bastrop, Bill Smith, Baton Rouge and J. N. Walpole, Ruston. Mike Shell acted as ring bearer.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a pink imported silk linen dress and the bridegroom's mother was wearing a pale aqua raw silk model. Both wore orchid corsages.

The bride's bouquet and a candelabra formed the central decor for the bride's table, presided over by Mrs. C. H. Elkins, Mrs. O. W. Ferguson and Mrs. B. F. Shell. Tea girls were Susan Odom, Becky Odom and Gayle Harper. Distributing rice bags were Suzanne Wagnon, Sharon Shell and Cindy Elkins. Jimmy Walpole provided background music throughout the reception.

Homes Tour Planned In Crossett

The homes featured in the tour will demonstrate various architectural styles and furnishings, including the Colonial style home of the C. L. Poseys at 1201 Cypress. Dr. C. B. Ripley's residence at 1313 Elm is modern in architecture and furnishings and the home of Mr. and Mrs. David McCurtis, 1315 Elm and the Robert Hudgens, 1100 Elm, are Early American with many antiques found in the Hudgens home.

The final visit will be to the Robert Fisher home, 1003 Elm, where a poolside tea will be served.

Members of Crossett's Chapter One of the Arkansas Arts Center will display paintings of local arts on the white fence surrounding the pool and landscaped garden.

Mrs. Allen Cameron, chairman of the tour, will be assisted by committee members, Mrs. Don Henry, Mrs. Odell Elliott, Mrs. Benny Pierce, Mrs. Bob Fisher, Mrs. Lane Miller, Mrs. John P. Scott and Mrs. H. L. Abbott.

Parliamentary Law Discussed At WIC Meet

J. T. Spencer, assistant district attorney of the Third Judicial District Court, was guest speaker for the monthly meeting of Women in Construction of Monroe, held Monday night April 12 at the Holiday Inn.

Dinner preceded the meeting which was presided over by Mrs. Jean Elmore, vice-president.

Mr. Spencer, who is active in Boy Scouts, Lions club, Girl Scouts, Methodist church and a former Parent-Teacher Association president, was introduced by Mrs. Louise James. He gave an educational talk on Parliamentary Law in which he pointed out that Roberts Rules of Order, published in 1876, is the oldest and most frequently adopted standard of parliamentary authority. Mr. Spencer also offered suggestions and corrections of the meeting which followed his talk.

Members chosen to serve on the nominating committee include Lucy Hickey, Elizabeth Pickens, Katie White, Effie Rynbrand and Louise James, who will select candidates for election of new officers. Eton Weir, Louise James, Jean Elmore and Elizabeth Shaughnessy plan to attend a forum in Baton Rouge.

A letter from the Jackson chapter of WIC was read asking the local chapter's support of Laura Bates for national first vice-president.

Members present were Jean Elmore, Effie Rynbrand, Lucy Hickey, Eton Weir, Zell Walling, Frances Case, Louise James and Elizabeth Pickens. Guests were Miss Orene Borren, Mrs. Faye Walker and Mr. Spencer.

Safety Pants New For Tots

NEW YORK (UPI) — Safety pants are the newest "seatbelt" for children. They are attached to the car seat and a child placed in them can stand or sit.

They were invented by a Netherlands safety expert. A report in "Medical World News" noted that the pants appear more efficient than a seat-belt.

MRS. WILLIAM RAYFORD McCULLOUGH

Wedding Of Carol Decell Solemnized In Buras

Of interest here is the marriage of Miss Carol Yvonne Decell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Decell of Buras, formerly of Monroe, and William Rayford McCullough, son of Mr. and Mrs. Pervis McCullough of Jackson, Miss.

The wedding was solemnized at 2 p.m. on April 3 in the Riverview Baptist Church of Buras.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Perkins and Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Decell, all of Monroe.

Vows were exchanged before the altar which was banked with baskets of white gladioli and greenery against a background of branched candelabra holding slender white tapers. Rev. Nolan Houston officiated at the ceremony, assisted by Rev. Fred Wilson.

Mrs. Fred Wilson, organist, presented a program of nuptial music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Robert Earl Thompson. Candles were lighted by Jeffrey Janies and John Reddick.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a floor length gown of Chantilly lace with fitted bodice and long sleeves tapering to points over the hands. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and stephanotis with white satin streamers.

Miss Cory Crow, maid of honor, wore a short gown of cherry pink and carried a bouquet of pink carnations to match her gown.

Serving as best man was Ronnie Decell and ushers were Jeffery Janies and John Reddick.

Fellowship hall of the church, decorated with white gladioli and greenery, was scene of the reception which followed the ceremony. Miss Patricia Houston served the tiered wedding cake and presiding at the punch bowl at a lace-covered table, centered with white gladioli, was Miss Carrol O'Neal, assisted by Mrs. Arnold Janies.

After a short wedding trip the couple will be at home in New Orleans.

Make Rainy Day Home Fun Day

NEW YORK (UPI) — When the children run out of entertaining things to do at home on rainy days, help them make a simple table playhouse.

A card or kitchen table works as the frame. With inexpensive lintex vinyl, cut the roof to fit the top of the table with about an inch overhang. Then sew the "walls" of the same material to the overhang so that the inside of the table is enclosed snugly. Slit one side to make a flap door for crawling in and out.

New Officers Elected By Trenton Society

New officers for 1965-66 were elected by the Trenton Society at its April meeting Monday night in the home of Mrs. Jennings Wilkins, in West Monroe. Mrs. Fred Crenshaw was co-hostess.

The slate presented by the nominating committee and approved by the club includes Mrs. Robert Kennedy, president; Mrs. John McKee, vice-president; Mrs. Edward Long, secretary; Mrs. George Sartor, treasurer; Mrs. Gene Dupuy Jr., parliamentarian and historian and Mrs. Bill Norris III, reporter.

James S. Rutledge was guest speaker for the evening and gave a report on activities and schooling provided for the children at Cooley community of Ouachita Parish. He told of plans to have a day camp type of program for the summer vacation instead of regular classroom sessions. A question and answer period followed.

At conclusion of the evening refreshments were served by the hostesses from the dining room table which was covered with a red cloth and centered with a formal arrangement of pink dogwood, azaleas and red camellias.

Members present were Mrs. Dewey Albritton, Mrs. John McKee Jr., Mrs. Bennie Andrews, Mrs. Jerry Mingledorff, Mrs. Fred Bennett, Mrs. Bill Norris III, Mrs. Russell Bourland, Mrs. Mack Owens, Mrs. Jim Campbell, Mrs. T. A. Sanders Jr., Mrs. Gene Dupuy Jr., Mrs. George Sartor, Mrs. Robert Kennedy, Mrs. Danny Sullivan, Mrs. Edward Long, Mrs. Jack White.

Coat-Dress Costume Gains In Popularity

Enjoying a big success in spring fashions are the coordinated coats and dresses, complete costumes created for each other, both almost always in a slender, gently fitted shape.

An example is a white linen double-breasted coat, just short enough to show the hemline of a pleated black linen dress. Printed shantung also makes a robe.

lovely afternoon coat and dress, or a navy officer's style coat is a good team mate paired with a sleeveless white fitted shift.

This kind of coordinated look isn't difficult for even the average woman to duplicate, if she chooses her clothes with a sense of how they will look together. True fashion is a matter of being well put together.

A good coat plus a few dresses that all truly go with it is the way a woman with limited budget should think of her clothes. Often a coat of this type though purchased with its dress mate, will go equally well with other dresses in the wearer's wardrobe.

Candlelight Vows Unite Area Couple

The wedding of Miss Jean Rosser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Rosser of Tallulah to Larry Gene Foster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvis Foster of Sondheimer, was solemnized at the First Baptist Church in Tallulah on Sunday, April 4 at 3 p.m. the Rev. John S. Hurt was the officiating minister.

Mrs. J. E. Courtney presented nuptial music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Merle Gustafson.

Vows were exchanged in a setting of white cathedral candles, and baskets of white gladioli flanking an ivy entwined arch.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of white peau de soie satin featuring fitted bodice, scoop neckline and brief sleeves. A lace panel extended down the front of the skirt which terminated in a chapel train. An inverted crown of seed pearls and sequins held her veil of illusion and she carried a bouquet of pink glamellias.

Miss Elizabeth Ball, maid of honor, wore a floor length gown of blue peau de soie with matching headdress and short veil. She also carried pink glamellias.

Garry Givens attended Mr. Foster as best man and ushers were Duane Foster, Al Watts and Peter Peterson.

Mrs. Rosser chose for her daughter's wedding an aqua print jersey with white accessories and a white glamellia corsage. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Foster, wore pink chambray, white accessories and an orchid color corsage.

A reception followed the ceremony in the social hall of the church. The table which held the punch service and wedding cake was centered with an arrangement of pink gladioli and white roses. Miss Carolyn Kirkpatrick and Miss Linda Anderson presided at the table and Miss Betty Gilbreath had charge of the guest book.

After a short wedding trip the couple will be at home near Sondheimer. For travel the bride wore a blue designer burlap dress with white trim and a white corsage.

Forestry Film Shown Chief Tusquahoma DAR

A film entitled "Decision," was shown by McDavid Hughes of Olin Forestry Division to Chief Tusquahoma Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution when it met Saturday, April 10 at the West Monroe Branch of the Ouachita Parish Public Library.

Mrs. Lester Corley introduced Mr. Hughes, who explained the purpose of the film is to show why 30 pulp and paper mills which moved South after World War II made the decision to locate in neighboring states, the decision by business and civic leaders of Louisiana to restore the forests of the state and the progress which has been made since that time. The 14-minute documentary film was produced by the Louisiana Forestry Association, photographed in Louisiana using local people. Conservation is listed under Patriotic Endeaver, one of the three - fold objectives of the D.A.R. The D.A.R. Conservation program authorized in 1909, stresses preservation of natural resources as an economic safeguard.

Mrs. Herman M. McGuire, regent, presiding over the meeting, welcomed as a new member, Mrs. Solon King, who was presented with the DAR handbook, membership card and a pamphlet, "What the Daughters Do."

After the ritual, a special tribute by Mrs. Kate Stewart, was made to the late Mrs. Sherod W. McLean, national chairman for the South Central region of C.A.R. - D.A.R. The chapter made a cash donation to the Lt. Joseph Bowmar Society, CAR, for the National CAR Endowment Fund in memory of Mrs. McLean who served as past state and senior president of the Society.

Mrs. Joseph B. Landreaux read the President General's message for April which stated the 75th Diamond Jubilee Book published by the National Society which includes works of all states in the nation, would be released by press this month. Mrs. James L. McGuire was named as chairman to display books at meetings and take orders, which included three price ranges.

The National Defense topic "Trade With Communists" by Senator Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, was given by the chairman, Mrs. J. E. Dupuy, Jr. A letter to the chapter from Major Arch Roberts, USAR, was read by the secretary, Mrs. F. J. Ortis, which gave information on how the chapter and individuals can fight communism by forming letter - writing groups and arranging public speaking and help by attending such meetings.

Mrs. Landreaux announced that the tentative by-laws which are being studied by members would be voted on at the May meeting.

The regent, Mrs. McGuire, will represent the chapter at the 74th Continental Congress in Washington, D. C. on April 19-23, leaving with the Louisiana Daughters on annual bus tour April 16 and arriving back on April 26.

It was announced that the regent, Mrs. McGuire, regent-elect, Mrs. Landreaux, and Mrs. James L. McGuire, press relations chairman, would attend the Louisiana Board of Management meeting of LSDAR in Alexandria in early May, at which time the local scrapbook will be presented for judging.

Mrs. J. A. Rainbolt reported that boxes of used clothing are ready for shipment to the DAR Schools and that this would be her last shipment as her chairmanship expires, but the new chairman will continue.

Preceeding the meeting, the hostesses, Mrs. De Witt Smith, Mrs. J. L. Norris, Mrs. C. G. Wall, Jr., Mrs. E. G. Davidson, Mrs. O. N. Reynolds, Miss Jorinda Reynolds, and Mrs. Jeff Caldwell, served refreshments from the tea table which was draped with an imported lace cloth and held a traditional spring arrangement in white milk glass compote. A similar arrangement was placed on the regent's table.

Members present were Mrs. J. M. Bell, Mrs. H. M. McGuire, Mrs. Kate F. Stewart, Mrs. Lester Corley, Mrs. J. E. Dupuy, Jr., Mrs. Joseph B. Landreaux, Mrs. J. A. Rainbolt, Mrs. J. O. Miller, Mrs. Doris Carmichael, Mrs. D. C. Golson, Mrs. Francis Ortis, Mrs. W. B. McGee, Miss Mary Louise Ellis, Mrs. Solon King, Mrs. M. C. Williams, Mrs. J. L. McGuire, Mrs. H. C. Ervin and guest, Mr. Hughes.

MISS AUDREY MAE WRIGHT

MISS DEL ANISE MAYO

Audrey Wright, Kansas Man Plan Nuptials

Announcement is made today of the forthcoming marriage of Miss Audrey Mae Wright, Bossier City, daughter of Mrs. Pauline Wright of Gilbert to Orval Frank Herrman, Salina, Kans. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Reinhold Herrman of Antonio, Kans.

The wedding will take place April 24 at 3 p.m. in Christ the King Church at Bossier City.

Mrs. Carolyn Banderia will attend Miss Wright as matron of honor and Everett Wischmeyer will act as best man.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Gilbert high school and Mr. Herrman was graduated from St. Joseph's Military Academy. Following their marriage the couple will be at home in Salina, Kans., where Mr. Herrman is employed.

Blossoms Star In Costumes

Blossoms are a timeless symbol of the fairest season. Legend says that the Goddess of Spring was hatched from a heaven-sent dove's egg, wearing vines in her hair and spreading flowers over the earth. Modern-day Goddesses can blossom this season with flowers in the continental manner, a specialty of FTD florists.

In Europe corsages are informal designs, suited to a day at the office, as well as a night on the town. For prints and stripes, try a single large blossom, surrounded by a circle of dark waxy leaves. With one-color costumes try a trio of perky daisies, and pin them at the waistline, or tuck the front and center on your collar, bright blossoms in a tiny pocket.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Respect Of Privacy Important As Sharing

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: What do you think about a husband who carries on a correspondence with a college friend even though he knows his wife does not approve of it?

Edwin and I were married a few weeks ago. He never spoke much about Nanette except to say she was fun and had a terrific sense of humor. They used to work together on the college yearbook but so far as I know it was just pal stuff.

Three days ago Edwin received a letter from Nanette. I opened it by accident. The letter was full of tired jokes and references to people I don't know. I answered it from both Edwin and me, saying "I'd love to meet you sometime."

I handed Edwin the open letter and told him I had opened it by mistake. I also told him I had answered it because from now on we would be doing everything as a couple.

He said I had humiliated him and that I had no business responding to a letter addressed to him. I say there should be no secrets between a man and his wife. You always emphasize in your column that the more things a couple can share, the stronger the marriage will be. Please comment. — WILTED ROSES

Dear Wilted: It is possible to open a letter by accident, but you can only answer a letter on purpose. This was out of line and I don't blame Edwin for blowing his top.

Sharing is important but it's equally important to respect one another's privacy. To be "one," yet to remain separate and distinct entities may seem a contradiction but it is the secret of a good marriage.

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is for teen-age boys because they are mainly to blame for the misery of teen-age girls.

At every party, whether at school or in somebody's house, you always see clumps of girls, sticking together, laughing and talking. They appear to be having a blast, but the truth is, they are having a perfectly lousy time and they wish they had stayed home.

Why do you fellows run after two or three of the best looking girls in the crowd? Always it's the same girls who get the big rush. The plainer ones (like me) never get a tumble and it's just rotten.

So what if a girl is a little too thin, or too heavy? What if she isn't the greatest dancer in the world? I'll bet she'd appreciate you more than the doll who is zeroed in on by every guy in the room.

The next time you go to a party or to a dance, fellas, ask a plain gal to dance or join you at the refreshment table. You may discover she is great company and that you've been missing something. — BITTER 16

Dear 16: Thank you for an excellent letter. I'd like to add this: The boy or girl who is quick to judge a book by its cover often cheats himself out of some fascinating and worthwhile reading.

Del Anise Mayo, Fiance Plan April 30 Vows

April 30 is the date chosen for their wedding by Miss Del Anise Mayo, 120 Shanks Lane, West Monroe, and Hiram E. Young, also of West Monroe. Vows will be exchanged at 6 p. m. in Bawcom Apostolic church, West Monroe with Rev. Wes Busby, Meridian, Mississippi, performing the ceremony.

The bride-elect is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. David C. Mayo of Bastrop and parents of the future bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Young, 1510 Evergreen, West Monroe.

Miss Anna Gayle Hemphill will attend Miss Mayo as maid of honor and chosen as bridesmaids are Miss Judy Young, Miss Pat Ray and Mrs. Linda Chapman. Miss Freida Young will be junior bridesmaid

Serving as best man will be Jerry Hicks and groomsmen - ushers will include Robert Young, David Hemphill, Charles Strange, Burlon Wilks and Ronnie Conville with Sonny Young as junior groomsman.

Miss Mayo is the granddaughter of Mrs. B. W. Mitchell of Jena and Rev. and Mrs. J. T. Mayo of Harrisonburg. She is a graduate of LaSalle high school at Olla and Spencer-Draughon Business College, Shreveport.

Mr. Young was graduated from West Monroe high school and is employed in West Monroe where the couple will be at home.

Newborn Infant Sees At Birth

NEW YORK (UPI) — The normal newborn infant sees from the moment of birth, according to studies conducted at Harvard University and Boston Lying-In Hospital.

Dr. T. Berry Brazelton and associates said an appropriate stimulus produces a whole complex of visual behavior. Also, response to a visual stimulus was found predictive of sound central nervous system function. Their subjects were 86 full-term and 10 premature infants up to one week of age.

THREE-IN-ONE

A three-in-one dispenser that holds rolls of wax paper, aluminum foil and paper toweling is designed to end paper fallout. A special feature prevents that old problem of tugging quickly and ending up with reams of paper. A kind of lock system lets just eniugh paper out at a time.

Louisiana Tech Seniors Plan June Wedding

The engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Martha Evelyn Tatum and Henry Glenn Jordan is announced today by her parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Eskel L. Tatum of Jonesboro. Parents of the prospective bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Jordan of Jonesboro.

Vows will be exchanged on June 4 at 6 p.m. in Jonesboro Methodist church with the bride's father officiating at the ceremony assisted by Rev. Terral T. Lowe.

Miss Tatum has chosen Miss Martha Louise Sneed as her maid of honor. Bridesmaids will be Miss Carol Frances Butler, Jonesboro; Mrs. Joseph Bales of Ruston and junior bridesmaid will be Miss Sandra Tatum, sister of the bride-elect.

William Tatum, brother of the bride-elect, will serve as best man and chosen as groomsmen-ushers are Randy Ewing, Bueford Hathaway Jr. and Gary Black, all of Jonesboro.

Following their marriage the couple will be at home in Ruston where both are seniors at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute.

by Marillyn Taylor

With school out and gardens at the height of their loveliness, the Easter weekend presents a beautiful time for visitors to be in Monroe. A number of out of towners have been here, and several lovely parties have been planned in their honor.

Guests of GLORIA and DAVIS BINGHAM are ANN and JOHN SHELTON of Cape Girardeau, Missouri, who arrived on Thursday to be here until tomorrow. The couples met when Davis and John were graduate students at Peabody. The hosts planned an informal buffet supper at their home on Friday evening honoring these visitors.

Gloria centered her table with a large Easter basket overflowing with pink azaleas. The menu included barbecued ham, pickled beans, congealed Mandarin orange salad, Spanish rice, and apricot tarts. Ten friends were invited to meet the Sheltons.

Here from New Orleans this week were CONNIE FAUST and PATTY ROY. They were guests of Connie's grandparents, LOUISE and TOM LEIGH on South Grand street. Among the affairs which honored these girls was a party given by VEE MARSHALL on Thursday afternoon. The brick - walled patio of the Marshall home on Island Drive, framed in blooming azaleas, formed the setting for the party. Two wrought iron tables were covered with pink striped cloths. Bottled soft drinks were served from a large brass sugar kettle.

Centering the second table were red tulips in a brass bucket. Goodies set out here included black olive sandwiches, cheese straws, cinnamon sticks, almond cookies, and Brownies. Fifty girls of the junior high set were invited for a visit with Connie and Patty. . . On Friday afternoon, LOU LEMERT invited a few intimates for a picture show treat with these visitors.

It's always a pleasure to have former Monroyans CINDY and BENTON WAKEFIELD in town. With their children, WAKE and WALTON, the Wakefields have been here since Thursday, dividing their time between friends. Earlier in the week, they visited in Jackson, Mississippi with their parents and grandparents. The Wakefields now live in Munster, Indiana.

One of the gayest parties of the season was that which honored ADELE DIXON on her ninth birthday last Friday afternoon. Invitations, mailed to thirty little girls the previous week, were postcards written in crayon. Each contained an original poem bidding the recipient arrive dressed as her favorite Easter animal. The yard at 2205 Pargoud boulevard was alive with white rabbits, chickens, ducklings. The birthday girl herself was a chicken, in a yellow costume sewn with yellow feathers.

Winning first prize as best dressed was ASHLEY EASTERLING as an Easter basket: a very large square basket woven of wide bands of pink, green, and yellow crepe paper, with handle circling over her head. King - size "eggs" nestled in green grass. Her prize was a live duckling.

Second prize, a baby chick, went to CAROLYN MINTZ, who was a Mama Rabbit. She wore a blue polka dot dress with ruffled pantaloons, and a large ruffled hat with ears sticking through. She carried a basket with a live white rabbit — her birthday gift for Adele . . . . . Special prize for most original went to MOLLY McDONALD as the Ugly Duckling. She was all in black: feathered hat, make - up, leotards, feather duster tail, with orange felt beak and web feet. Her prize was a panorama egg.

The group searched for Easter eggs around the yard, with DENISE DOWNING winning the prize for most eggs found; Kay Loflin for finding the golden rabbit.

Two refreshment tables were set up. Cake was served from a pink - covered table on the patio. Centerpiece was the sheet cake itself: iced with yellow and ornamented with eggs, chickens, rabbits, and a large Easter basket. Flanking the cake were egg - shaped containers filled with ivy. A hanging basket of ivy and white sweet peas hung above the table.

On the carport was a second table, covered with an Easter cloth, and centered with a bunny pulling a cart filled with eggs. Marching down the table were the small baskets filled with jelly bean eggs which were given as favors.

Our own BERNICE WOODS was an honor initiate of Kappa Delta sorority last Saturday. She was initiated by Alpha Chi chapter at Louisiana Tech. Others in the group were MARY DEE BAUGHMAN of Farmerville and her daughter LYNN BAUGHMAN.

The CLIFFORD STRAUSSES left last weekend for a trip to the Mediterranean. They flew over; are to return aboard the Queen Mary in late May after visiting Italy, Greece, Israel, and other interesting places of the ancient world. They were accompanied by the ERVIN SCHLENKERS of Houston.

When she was in town last weekend, MAXINE GUELZOW brought us word of her daughter GRETCHEN GUELZOW. Following her graduation from Southern Methodist university last summer, Gretchen joined the Peace Corps, and is now in Santiago, Chile. She was seventy miles from the center of the recent earthquake there, and reports feeling the tremor and all the excitement in the city.

From New Orleans comes word that JILL MARX has been named to the Freshman Beauty Court at Newcomb college. Jill is the daughter of CAROL and SACKMAN MARX of Monroe.

Forty - five members of Monroe Garden club made a trip to Jackson, Miss., for garden-gazing on Monday. The chartered bus left Bayou DeSiard country club at 7:30 a.m., bringing the group to Mynelle Gardens for two hours of inspection before lunch. Interesting planting and curving walks create an effect of many acres on a long, narrow plot. A stream descends the length of the garden, with eleven pools at successive levels. Summer houses and gazebos are placed at strategic intervals, each commanding a beautiful vista through the flowers. Bridges with railings woven with wisteria and jasmine arch the stream.

A catered luncheon was served to the ladies in the home at the gardens. The buffet table in the dining room was centered with a cupid epergne holding white and yellow spring flowers. The menu included chicken tetrazini, English peas with water chestnuts, marinated beans, fresh fruit with poppy seed dressing, and for dessert, lemon-orange tarts the size of a silver dollar. After serving themselves, the ladies were seated at individual tables set up in the panelled living room, glazed porch, or New Orleans style patio.

Following lunch, garden club members boarded the bus for a tour of Jackson, driving through residential areas for a peek at lovely gardens. They visited the home of the MEYER FALKS. This, a very modern house of brick, glass, and heavy beams, nestles on a hillside which slopes abruptly to a stream encircling the lot on two sides. . . The ladies toured the Mississippi Governor's Mansion and visited several antique shops. . . . After stopping for supper in Vicksburg, the group was back in Monroe by 8 p.m., after a very, very full day.

Our Job Is 'Never Finished'

Colorful sailing ships of the tiny U. S. Navy defended our infant nation heroically in the War for Independence. But, they're no match for the mighty fleets today. No doubt, critics said the "job is done" when the Navy insisted upon a strong defense after the Revolution. If the people had listened, our Navy would still be sailing around in pretty wooden ships in this atomic age.

So it is with rural electrification. Critics of member-owned Electric Co-ops say our job is done. It has hardly begun. Rural power consumption is doubling every seven years. Our lines must be constantly "heavied-up" or rebuilt; and, self-generation is a MUST if rural Louisiana is to grow. It is not enough to merely keep pace with progress. We must have low-cost power and modern facilities on hand to ENCOURAGE economic development. That, we are doing!

Serving rural people nobody else cared to serve, Electric Co-ops and the solid rural citizens who own and govern them have but one goal: the Best of electric service at cost.

Think what that ideal means to both town and country progress.

There's A Church Home For You in the Twin Cities...

Anyone desiring to know the location of a church of any denomination in the Twin Cities and the time of its Sunday services may call The Morning World at 323-2070, FA 3-3660, FA 3-0501 and ask for the church service directory. We'll be glad to supply you the information.

In Twin Cities Churches

Services Commemorate Resurrection Of Christ

The happy greeting, "He is risen," will be heard in many churches in the Twin Cities area today, in Easter services and programs observing the resurrection of Christ from the tomb.

The major community sunrise service here today was scheduled at 5:36 a.m. at the Monroe Memorial Park Cemetery off of Highway 80 east, under the sponsorship of the Pilot Club of Monroe, with E. C. McKenzie, minister of Jackson Street Church of Christ, as speaker. Also featured were West Monroe High School Choir and Neville High School Brass Band.

CANTATA

A cantata, "The Glory of Easter," by John Peterson, will be presented at 7 p.m. today by the West Monroe First Methodist Church, 101 North 2nd St. Director is Henry Camp, and soloists are Mrs. Earl Cox, Mrs. George Hayes, Mrs. Roy Brooks, Tommy Spurlock, Kenneth Adams, and Jon Hattaway. Accompanists will be Mrs. Tommy Spurlock at the organ, and Mrs. Jack Willis at the piano. Narration will be by Bennie Andrews. Setting will be arranged by Mrs. George Hayes.

The Choir of Emmanuel Baptist Church of Monroe will present an Easter cantata at the 7 p.m. service today. Entitled, "No Greater Love," the cantata written by John Peterson is a story of the life of Christ from the prophecy of his birth to the resurrection from the grave. The church is located at North 5th and Breard streets.

CHOIR DIRECTOR

The choir is under the direction of Howard Jackson, the church music director. Mrs. Marie Moncrief will be accompanist. Solo parts will be sung by Mrs. Jeanette Walker, Mrs. Faye West, James Finch, and Howard Jackson.

The pastor, the Rev. Fred Doolittle, will serve as the narrator. The program is open to the public. The sanctuary is air conditioned and nursery facilities are available for children.

Some churches are concluding revivals today which started during the early part of Holy Week, and others are launching revivals. Communion services will be held by a number of churches. Some scheduled early morning youth breakfasts, and several egg hunts were planned for children.

THIS SYMBOLISM of Easter was drawn by 16-year-old Clifton Dopson, art major at West Monroe High School, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil C. Dopson, 1713 Wellerman Road, West Monroe. He is vice president of the Monroe Methodist Youth Fellowship, the school Art Club, Student Council, candidate for Boys' State, attends First Methodist Church of West Monroe, is art editor of the Rebelaire, and a member of the Boy Scouts Order of the Arrow.

REV. EVERETT H. PHILLIPS

Guest Minister At First Church Is Rev. Phillips

The associate pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Lake Charles, the Rev. Everett H. Phillips, will be guest speaker at today's 11 a.m. services at First Presbyterian Church of Monroe.

A native of Huntsville, Ala., he received a bachelor of arts degree from King College, Bristol, Tenn.; bachelor of divinity degree from Columbia Theological Seminary, Decatur, Georgia, and did some graduate work at Columbia Seminary.

He held pastorates in Mississippi and Alabama prior to coming to Louisiana. He is married and has a son and a daughter.

First United New Building Work Starts

The First United Pentecostal Church of Monroe is engaged in building a beautifully designed modern sanctuary and educational building at Parkview and South 10th St.

In commenting on the project, the pastor, the Rev. G. E. Chance, said, "The membership has far outgrown the present facilities at 1600 South 2nd St., which have been in use for more than 12 years after extensive remodeling from time to time."

The church was founded in 1949 with the Rev. E. W. Caughron as pastor. Since then three ministers have served in the pastorate. The present pastor who assumed his duties in 1958, said, "Since this time the church has seen a tremendous growth with the blessings of the Lord upon the ministry."

FILLED TO CAPACITY

After the additions made in 1960 were filled to capacity with attendance, the membership decided to buy 13 lots located on Parkview Drive on which to build the structure.

The new building will have a seating capacity of approximately 600 in the sanctuary proper, with 40 available Sunday school rooms. Also included will be a complete evangelistic department along with a large social and dining hall.

Heating and air conditioning facilities also will be provided. Plans call for extensive use of brick masonry with exposed beams inside. August has been set as the tentative time for completion of construction.

Mission Series Opening Today At St. Mark's

The New Life Mission series will start at St. Mark's Methodist Church on Lincoln Road today and continue through Sunday, April 25.

The Rev. William J. Peckham will serve as evangelist at services 7:30 p.m. daily. He is staff evangelist with the Department of Evangelism of the Methodist Church, Nashville, Tenn.

REV. AMOS PRICE

Rev. Price Is Speaker At Church

The Rev. Amos Price, a ministerial student at Southern Methodist College, Orangeburg, South Carolina, will preach the Easter morning service at the First Southern Methodist Church of Monroe.

Today will also mark the observance of the first anniversary of the church's founding here.

In connection with this the Board of Stewards of the church has issued an invitation to members and their friends to a fellowship following tonight's worship services.

On April 24, 1964, the Rev. Lynn Corbett, president of the Southern Methodist Church, preached the sermon and the church had its launching with the reception of 13 members. Since this time, the church has grown to a membership of 60.

Home Children Attend 5 Local Baptist Churches

Residents of the Louisiana Baptist Children's Home in Monroe now attend five Baptist churches in the Twin Cities, according to Wade B. East, superintendent.

Prior to this month the children were attending College Place, Parkview, and First Baptist churches in Monroe and the First Baptist Church in West Monroe. Now residents of a cottage for boys and a cottage for girls attend each of these four churches and residents of a cottage for boys attend Lakeshore Baptist church in Monroe.

Children of a wide age range live in each cottage. They are well distributed throughout the Sunday Schools and Training Unions of the churches they attend, East said.

Prayer, Hard Work

Trappist Monks In Strict Routine

MONCKS CORNER, S.C. (AP) — The Trappist monks of Mepkin Abbey lead silent lives of prayer and hard work, and it seems to uplift them physically and spiritually.

Overlooking flooded rice fields of the Cooper River, the abbey's small graveyard contains only two tombstones. Beneath these lie the bodies of the mother and daughter of Clare Boothe Luce.

None of the monks has died since 1949 when Mrs. Luce and her husband, publisher Henry Luce, gave the silent brothers 3,000 acres of what had been a rich man's plantation.

"You would think we were under an obedience not to die," said the Rt. Rev. Dom M. Anthony Chassagne, 53, the abbot who has directed the abbey's intense devotional life and its considerable business enterprises since it was founded.

"We live too long," he added with a smile. "The active orders die sooner."

PRAYER ROUTINE

But nobody is more aware of death than Trappist monks. That is why they took a vow of silence and retired from the world—to pray for it and the souls of men who inhabit it.

Also aware of it is Mrs. Luce, actress, author, playwright and Roman Catholic convert. Between the graves of her mother and her daughter, killed in separate automobile accidents, is a space where Mrs. Luce has directed that she be buried.

The Trappist monks, known formally as Cistercians of the Strict Observance, reserve their spoken words for God. They do not speak even to each other except when absolutely necessary, and then usually by sign language.

They arise from hard cots in cell-like cubicles at 2:15 a.m. for a day that begins with prayer and finds them working at manual labor by 6:15 a.m. They retire at 7 p.m. without even the brief period of conversation allowed in most monastic orders.

They earn their income by selling eggs, camellias, azaleas and lumber. By concentrating on these enterprises, and buying their simple food instead of growing it themselves, Mepkin Abbey is self-sufficient but little money is left over for improvements.

The 45 monks at Mepkin range in age from the early 20s to 78. Many of them are veterans of World War II or Korea who joined the order to pray for the world after experiencing the horrors of war.

Although silent, they are not dour. They pedal about their retreat on bicycles, the hoods on their brown coverall-type work habits often thrown back and replaced by a white sun helmet or floppy straw hat.

A walk around the grounds with Father Anthony dispels any idea that a Trappist abbot is without humor.

"Those are our lay sisters," Father Anthony said, pointing to some of the 20,000 white leghorn hens. Then, hastily disclaiming credit for the quip, he added: "A Benedictine pulled that on me once."

Mepkin Abbey is in the South Carolina "low country," about 25 miles north of Charleston. The town was named after Gen. William Monck, a lord proprietor of the Colony of South Carolina and a follower of England's Charles II.

VEGETABLE DIET

A vegetable diet keeps them healthy and the Mepkin-baked whole wheat bread is one of the wonders of the low country.

Father Anthony foresees no need to expand. He predicts Trappist membership has about leveled off at approximately 1,000 monks in 11 monasteries in the United States, plus two Trappestine nunneries.

After five years' trial, if the order accepts them, the monks take vows to remain until death.

There are no radios, television or newspapers, but Father Anthony once a week posts clippings of world events on a bulletin board for all to read.

"The community should be informed of what is going on," Father Anthony explained. "There is a definite danger in the cloistered life of becoming self-centered. And, of course, we are supposed to be living for the world."

REV. B. K. MILLER

New Chapel Hill Revival Speaker Is Rev. Miller

Revival services will get under way at New Chapel Hill Baptist Church on Arkansas Road near West Monroe, it was announced by the Rev. James A. Smith, pastor. The revival will continue through Sunday, April 25.

Evangelist for the services which will be held 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. on Sundays, and 9:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. on weekdays, will be the Rev. B. K. Miller, pastor of Bethel Baptist Church, West Monroe.

Rev. Miller has conducted many revivals in the Twin Cities area. He is a graduate of Louisiana Tech and New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary.

A. E. Chapman, music director of the church, will lead the singing at the beginning of each service. Rev. Smith will direct the revival.

Noel Bell Choir Will Appear At Music Meeting

The Noel Bell Choir of the First Methodist Church of Monroe has been invited to conduct a guest performance at the annual Church Music Conference sponsored by the Louisiana Chapter of the National Fellowship of Methodist Musicians, which will be held Friday and Saturday at First Methodist Church in Lake Charles.

The Rev. Franklin P. Poole, minister of music at the First Methodist Church, Alexandria, is chairman of the Louisiana chapter and will serve as registrar for the conference.

The conference is open to all interested persons. There will be sessions on all the various phases of a church music program.

REV. BILL ROARK, pastor, will serve as evangelist for a series of revival meetings starting Monday and continuing through Sunday, April 25 at Free Methodist Church, corner Lincoln and McGuire streets, West Monroe. Rev. Jimmie Pyles of Shreveport will serve as music director. Services will start at 7:30 p.m. daily during the week, and at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. on the concluding Sunday. Nursery facilities will be open during all services.

REV. EARL MOORE of Monroe will be evangelist for a week of special revival services at the Cypress Street Church of God, 1401 Cypress St., West Monroe, [illegible] daily today through Sunday, April 25. Rev. T. E. Miller, pastor of the church, said the evangelist's "messages touch the need of men in our troubled world today."

Revival Opens At Claiborne Assembly Today

Revival services will open today and continue through Sunday, April 25, at the Claiborne Assembly of God, West Monroe. Featured speaker will be the Rev. Eugene Brown of West Monroe.

Rev. Brown has served as the West Monroe — Ruston Sectional Christ Amassadors representative for the past four years during which time he has held revival services in several area churches. Services will be each night except Saturday and will begin at 7:30.

In West Monroe

Expansion Of Facilities First Pilgrim Church Goal

The First Pilgrim Church, corner of Otis and Flanagan, West Monroe, was formerly located in the south end of town, but was displaced by I-20 Highway.

A buff brick building was constructed and placed in use at the present location around 1961, according to the Rev. E. E. Crowder, pastor, who came here July 15, 1964.

In addition to the brick sanctuary, the church has a Sunday School annex which formerly was a frame dwelling.

The pastor said there are plans for expansion of church facilities when funds are available.

On the matter of future activities of the church, Rev. Crowder said he hopes to conduct a revival there in June.

IMPORTANT WORK

Visitation is considered an important activity by the pastor, who reported that he has made calls to "hundreds and hundreds of homes since coming here."

The schedule of services includes, Sunday, Bible school, 10 a.m.; morning worship 11 a.m.; evening service, 7 p.m. Prayer services are held Wednesday at 7 p.m. Sunday school superintendent is William Fleming.

Rev. Crowder, a native of Indiana, served as a pastor in that state for 36 years, and in evangelism for five years. He came to West Monroe from Bicknell, Ind., where he has a home. He is married, has 10 children, seven daughters and three sons, living. One son, David, 26, resides with his parents in the parsonage at 505 Flanagan. Another son is pastoring in the Birmingham, Alabama, Pilgrim Church, and the youngest son is attending Central Pilgrim College at Bartlesville, Okla., studying for the ministry. Two of the daughters are wives of ministers, and another daughter who is a school teacher in Indianapolis, is an ordained minister.

AFFILIATION

The church is affiliated with the Pilgrim Holiness Church denomination which is headquartered in Indianapolis, Indiana.

The pastor explained that the church is Wesleyan in doctrine, and "is a branch off of the Methodist Church. We believe that the Lord will come before the reign of Christ on earth begins."

The denomination came into being as a result of a revival which swept across the United States following the Civil War, with particular emphasis upon the doctrine and experience of christian holiness, said Rev. Crowder.

The denomination has ministers serving in 36 states and 28 countries, has 15 colleges and Bible institutes, eight hospitals and dispensaries, 19 publications which are mailed to 25 countries, and 2,000 churches, missions and gospel stations.

Briefly, the doctrine of the church is summed up in an eight-point statement of faith:

"1. We believe in one God, eternally existent in three persons: Father, Son and Holy Ghost. (This is a truth of revelation, not of discovery.

"2. We believe the Bible to be inspired, the only infallible Word of God, and contains all the truth necessary to Christian living. (By this we mean, of course, that the Bible is inspired in a sense in which no other great literature is inspired.)

"3. We believe that the Lord Jesus Christ was different in His essential nature from any man before Him, and that there shall never be another One like Him. We therefore believe in His virgin birth, in His sinless life, in His miracles, in His atoning death, in His bodily resurrection, in His ascension to Heaven, and in His personal return to earth in power and glory.

"4. We believe that man by nature is sinful and wicked and that the regeneration of the Holy Spirit is therefore necessary. (By this we mean any man may start to build a new life by free grace and through the Spirit.)

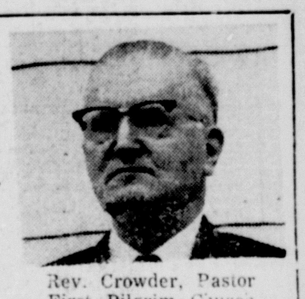

"5. We believe that God wills the deliverance of His children from all inner and outer sin and that, accordingly, they may be sanctified wholly following their regeneration through faith in Jesus Christ and by the ministry of the Holy Spirit.

"6. We believe in the New Testament doctrine of separation from this evil world to serve the true and living God.

"7. We believe in the resurrection of both the saved and the lost; they that are saved unto the resurection of life and they that are lost unto the resurrection of damnation.

"8. We believe in the spiritual unity of the Body of Christ."

"OR HE IS RISEN AS HE SAID
— Matthews 28:1, 5, 6

"In the end of the Sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre. And the angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified. He is not here: for He is risen as He said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay."

This day marked the end of the Jewish, and the beginning of the Christian Sabbath, or Sunday. The change may have not have been complete until the Day of Pentecost, but it was the beginning of the end.

The change had been foreshadowed for many centuries. God made the sun, the moon, the stars ending with the creation of man on the sixth day; the seventh day God rested. But God's seventh day as recorded in the scripture was man's first day; man began by resting on the first day of his sojourn on earth. Later God gave the Israelites the seventh day as a day of rest, but it was a Jewish ordinance for that particular dispensation and ended with the beginning of the church age, the time in which we now live. During their dispensation God gave them evidence of the coming change, though they didn't seem to understand it. The Jews would sometimes have a number of Sabbaths in the same week. It seems that in the seventh month (Lev. 23) they had five sabbaths in a period of 10 days.

ATONEMENT DAY

The Atonement Day was a first day Sabbath; it was on the first day of the week that the high-priest went into the Holy of Holies and offered sacrifices in atonement for sins, first for himself, then for the sins of all the people. This pointed forward to the resurrection of the Son of God and the doing away of the old Jewish Sabbath, for it was on the first day of the week that Jesus rose from the dead.

Likewise, Pentecost was a first day sabbath; they had two sabbaths right together, one following the other. So you may dismiss any question-marks you may have as to whether we are keeping the right day. The scriptures suggest it was the day the Apostles and the early church observed, and they had been chosen of God and entrusted with the founding of the New Testament church and God put His seal upon their labors.

There are some precious memories connected with the first day of the week that we will do well to always keep in mind.

First, it is commonly called a Day of Rest. But it was not intended to be a day for loafing, nor for pleasure seeking, nor a holiday. Rather, it is a day to be devoted especially to the service of God, a day to look away from the things of earth and look unto the Creator. We should always keep fresh in memory that this is the Lord's Day. Phillip Henry used to call the Lord's day the Queen of Days, the pearl of the week. Every Sunday morning he would greet his family or friends with the salutation of the early church, "The Lord is risen. He is risen indeed." Sometimes he would say, "Every Lord's day is a true Christian's Easter Day."

RESURRECTION DAY

We should remember that Sunday is Resurrection Day. It was on this day that Jesus rose from the dead. . It is the day of new beginnings. On this day we should forget the toils, the trials, burdens and disappointments of the past week, and like Adam in the Garden, rest from all our labors and take a fresh start in the new week. I am afraid that too often, we forget that the Lord's day is resurection day. I wonder if we would keep that thought in mind, if we would not live a more holy life, a life more radiant and victorious.

It is the memorial of the giving of the Holy Spirit. It was on the first day of the week, that the New Testament church was born. There in the Upper Room 120 people had met to worship and wait for the fullfilment of God's promise, "Tarry ye in the city of Jerusalem until ye be endued with power from on high." And on the First Day of the week, 50 days after the crucifixion, the Holy Ghost came upon them with the sound of a mighty, rushing wind and filled each one with the Spirit. That was the beginning of the Holy Ghost Dispensation and the beginning of the time when every child of God can have the constant, abiding presence of the Holy Spirit. Jesus said, "If I go away, I will send the Comforter and He shall abide with you forever." The next time you are tempted to stay away from church on the Lord's Day and use it for your own purpose or pleasure, remember it is a Holy day. It commemorates the giving of the Holy Spirit.

HOLY ANTICIPATION

It is a day of holy anticipation. Memory can be a blessed thing. Most of us have pleasant, or sacred memories, things we look back to, and they may help to comfort or encourage us, or inspire us; but what would we do without hope? Sunday testifies to us continually of God's love and care. It reminds us that "God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." It enables us to look forward with the assurance, "That He that spared not His own Son, but freely delivered Him up for us all, how shall He not with Him, freely give us all things." We have the assurance that He is making all things work for our good.

It also points beyond this present world with its sorrow, heart-break and dark clouds, to the light of heaven and eternal day. We look forward to a day without clouds, fears or sorrow.

Noted Singer Readies For Final Concert

NEW YORK (AP) — Singer Marian Anderson went into seclusion Saturday in a small mid-Manhattan studio apartment, practicing for what she considers one of the most important engagements of her long career.

Marian Anderson, the first Negro singer ever to perform on the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House, will present her farewell Carnegie Hall concert Sunday.

"She's very excited about this concert," said Orpheus Fisher, the singer's husband of 27 years. "To her it is one of the most important engagements of her life."

"This is billed as her farewell concert. I don't know her immediate plans, but let us pray this is not her last engagement."

The world-famed concret and opera singer, now nearing 60, has sung in most of the nation's great concert and opera halls and has performed before royalty and heads of state here and abroad.

It was on another Easter Sunday, in 1939, that she presented an important performance — on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial in Washington and at the personal request of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The Daughters of the American Revolution has refused to let her sing in Constitution Hall and Roosevelt asked her to perform on the memorial steps to the delight of some 75,000 persons.

"She is spending the day practicing — practicing hard for tomorrow's concert," Fisher said from the couple's farm near Danbury, Conn. "She said she didn't want to be disturbed. She just wants to concentrate on her practicing."

Fisher said he would be among the sell-out crowd expected to hear her today.

"Oh, you bet I'll be there to hear her," he said. "She's still enthusiastic about her singing and so aim I."

He said his wife hoped to devote considerable time in the future "to children and to the cause of peace."

She will sing two groups of Negro spirituals, some German lieder and tunes by a group of contemporary composers.

Sponsored by funds raised by her church, Marian rose from a child singer in Philadelphia to the top of her profession at a time when Negro performers were not invited to many famed entertainment halls.

She said recently she hopes to continue active in many fields.

Rare Cranes Seen

GREENSBURG, Kan. (AP)— Two rare whooping cranes were reported in Kansas this weekend.

The birds, two of only 42 known to exist, were seen resting in a marshy field a mile south of here.

Military Officialdom Meets To Study Strategy In Pacific

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top echelon U.S. military officials arrive in Hawaii today for a huddle on strategy in the far-western Pacific, with Viet Nam getting primary attention.

Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, plans to fly from Washington to meet Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in South Viet Nam, and Adm. Ulysses S. G. Sharp, commander in chief for the Pacific.

A Pentagon spokesman said the session does not reflect any new emergency; that Wheeler had been trying for more than a month to fit the conference into his schedule.

Nevertheless, the meeting comes within a few days after a report that reconnaissance has shown construction near the North Viet Nam capital of Hanoi of what could be a site for modern antiaircraft missiles from the Soviet Union.

It comes also as the United States applies more and more pressure on the Viet Cong guerrillas in South Viet Nam and on the routes over which the Red government of the north sends in manpower and munitions.

The photographs so far were reported to show only an area being cleared away, presumably for installation of weapons. The missiles and accompanying radar equipment apparently had not been installed as yet.

The assumption is that Soviet radar-guided surface-to-air missiles are to go onto the site. These surface-to-air weapons are like those sent into Cuba by the Russians, one of which knocked down a high-flying U2 reconnaissance plane of the United States.

Two questions about the missiles were presented:

1. How is the materiel being sent? By Soviet ships or overland by rail or truck, assuming that Red China has ceased holding up Soviet shipments through her territory?

2. If missiles do appear on the site, who will operate them? North Vietnamese or Chinese Communists would have little experience or training in the guidance and firing of the highly technical missiles. This leads to the presumption that Soviet crews would man the system.

Along with the increased tempo of bombing strikes against North Viet Nam targets by U.S. planes is an acceleration of both aid and ground action against the Viet Cong in the South.

Both are part of the over-all plan to tighten pressure on Hanoi and induce that government to agree on halting the war.

The conference in Hawaii could consider whether more air and sea power is needed in the western Pacific, to compensate for that now concentrated in and around Viet Nam. The major part of the 7th Fleet is patrolling in the South China Sea, off Viet Nam, or in the East China Sea directly above that area.

Three attack carriers are kept in the South China Sea, launching aircraft to work with land-based planes on strikes against North Viet Nam. The carriers are rotated, with replacements brought out periodically from the U. S. West Coast or Pearl Harbor. This places a heavy requirement on the Pacific Fleet, which also is responsible for patrol of the whole Pacific Ocean region.

Leaders Say

Legislature Needs To Keep List Tight

BATON ROUGE (AP)— One of Gov. John McKeithen's legislative leaders said Saturday a clampdown on questionable bills is the only solution to a logjam of general legislation in the 30-day fiscal session.

"We should hold it to fiscal matters," Sen. Jamar Adcock of Monroe said in a telephone interview.

The session opens May 10. Its main job is to act on a $1 billion state budget.

There are reports of many bills of general mature being restricted to money matters.

It is not unusual for fiscal sessions to act on nonfiscal bills, or to make easy rules for putting on a fiscal label.

The 1963 fiscal legislature allowed 354 bills to be introduced and passed 159 of them.

Anything of questionable fiscal nature must get a three-fourths vote of approval before being introduced.

Adcock is chairman of the Legislative Budget Committee, which returns Monday to finish work on the budget. The committee will take a final look at estimates of revenue for next fiscal year, trim spending requests to fit, and ready the budget for the printers and its trip to legislators and the governor.

He said McKeithen has passed the word there will be no deficit spending. Adcock said the committee "will be inclined toward conservative estimates of revenues, so we can have a safety factor."

A major fight appears to be looming over the governor's proposals to raise $100 million in bonds to build highways and $25 million in bonds for capital construction.

Sen. Harold Montgomery of Doyline has attacked the program in a series of speeches over the state. He seeks instead a "pay - as-you-go" plan. He wants a one-cent raise in the state's two-cent sales tax. He also has pegged this to helping with a teacher pay raise.

Rash Of Thefts, Burglaries Hits In Twin Cities

Two radios, two television sets and a late model car were stolen from a used car lot late Friday or early Saturday, according to Sidney G. Martin, assistant chief of police. The theft was reported to Monroe police at 8 a.m. Saturday by Marvin Terry.

Police said that investigation showed entry had been first gained to an office on the lot where the radios and television sets were housed and then to a garage containing the car that was stolen.

An auto parts store at 1203 DeSiard St. was burglarized between 9 p.m. Friday and 7 a.m. Saturday police said. The incident was reported by Winn Shaw of 1717 Hollywood Dr., Monroe. Shaw told police that a side door had been torn off and a soft drink machine had been opened and $5 in nickles removed. No other loss was discovered.

A. S. Cannon of 303 McGuire St. reported to police that a lawn mower had been stolen from his carport sometime Friday night. Also reported stolen to Monroe police was a tire from an auto belonging to Darrell Webb of 201 Filhiol St.

An attempted burglary occuring at 411 S. 10th St. was reported to police Saturday morning. C. E. Newman told police that an attempt was made to gain entry to the property by a side door that was nailed shut. Upon investigation, police found a witness that saw two men at the door at about 2 a.m. Saturday. The witness was quoted as saying that she yelled at the pair and the fled.

Booked by Monroe police for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages were Louis Calvin Chandler, 41, of 717 Miller St., Monroe, and Jeff Horn, 46, of 803 S. 15th St. Monroe.

Booked by West Monroe police Saturday for reckless driving were Donald D. Henry, 43, of Lafayette, and am McLaurin, 51, of 114 Herman St., West Monroe. Booked for speeding were William L. Cole, 19, of Rt. 2, Box 484, West Monroe, and Roy D. Mullican, 29, of 112 Lacy Dr., West Monroe.

Also booked by Monroe police was Ezell Birden, 25, of 1107½ So. McGuire St., Monroe. He was charged with theft.

W. L. Fox Dies Saturday Night

W. L. Fox, 72 of 608 Hilton St., Monroe, died Saturday night.

A retired employe of Ritchie Grocer Co., he was a deacon of the Emmanuel Baptist Church and a member of the church choir.

Funeral services will be at 11 a.m. Monday from Emmanuel, with the Rev. Fred Doolittle, pastor, officiating.

Burial will be in Memorial Park under the direction of Hixson Brothers.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. W. L. Fox of Monroe; one son, Harry D. Fox of Bastrop; two daughters, Mrs. B. E. Frisch of Valley Forge, Pa. and Mrs. D. E. Schleusener of Painesville, Ohio; one brother, Howard Fox of Lake Charles; three sisters, Mrs. Martha Harroul of Lake Charles, Mrs. Mae Smith of West Monroe and Mrs. Zelma Hansell of Belpre, Ohio; and seven grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be Charles Dean, Carl McBeth, Hughey Jinks, Jim Smith, O. C. Watson, Alvin Thames. Deacons of the Emmanuel Baptist Church will serve as honorary pallbearers.

Auto-Ambulance Crash Injures 3 Local People

Three persons were injured Saturday afternoon in an auto-ambulance accident at the intersection of South Second and Plum Streets at 4:45 p.m.

Injured were Lawrence L. Harper, 50, of 1103 S. 3rd St., Monroe; Edward Price, 33, of 216 S. 18th St., Monroe; and Harold L. Boughton, 18, of 3814 Cooper St., Monroe. Boughton was a passenger in the ambulance driven by Price. Harper was the driver of the auto.

Officials at St. Francis Hospital where Boughton and Price were taken by Mulhearn ambulance after the wreck said that the two were admitted for observation. Local hospitals showed no record of treatment of Harper.

According to police reports, the ambulance was heading south on South Second and was hit by the auto driven by Harper, going west on Plum Street, as the two met at the intersection. Price said that he was operating the siren and red light on his ambulance at the time of the wreck.

Townsmen See Purple Squirrel

No fooling. A little boy saw him first. Police officer Robert W. Haller saw him next.

Saturday, Asst. Atty. Gen. Reno Harp saw the purple squirrel and so did a busload of sight-seeing high school students from Sanford, N.C., who said they took color photographs of the squirrel. They promised to send officer Haller a print.

It can't arrive too soon for Haller. People still are asking him if he sees pink elephants, too. He's taken to carrying a bag of peanuts — not for the pink elephants, see, but to lure this squirrel.

Monroe Day May 7

Local Residents Endorse Seminar

Several prominent Monroe residents have endorsed the National Security Seminar at Shreveport and have registered to attend Monroe Day on May 7.

The seminar, conducted by the Industrial College of the Armed Forces, will begin May 3 and continue through May 14 at the new Shreveport Convention Hall in the Civic Center.

"All people who are concerned with the total position of our defense will certainly be better informed by attending the seminar," according to James B. Scruggs Jr., local commander of the Military Order of the World Wars. "There are so many areas affecting national security that most of us tend to fall behind in our study and our understanding. We highly recommend this seminars to all who can possibly attend."

Robert F. Bealle, assistant manager of the Monroe Chamber of Commerce, said area persons interested in attending the National Security Seminar may contact the Chamber to make reservations. The registration fee is $2.

Special seats will be reserved for the Monroe delegation on May 7.

The seminar is a factual and analytical discussion of topics and problems which have a direct bearing on our survival as a nation. It is presented in a series of 32 lecture-type presentations, of about one hour each, supplemented by visual aids and selected films. The program is scheduled over two 5-day weeks.

N. W. de Berardinis, director of public relations for the Shreveport Times is serving as general chairman for the seminar in that city.

Lt. Col. Kelly Womack, USAF, military administrator for the lecture series, said a large number of participants are expected from Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas. He said the Industrial College of the Armed Forces will send six high ranking officers to conduct the two-week session in Shreveport.

Monroe residents who have already made reservations to attend the event, include Lt. Col. James L. Roberts, commander of the local National Guard; Milton Ford and Bert Root of the American Legion; James B. Scruggs Jr., commander of the Military Order of the World Wars; and school teachers, hospital staff members and attorneys.

Prominent persons interested in the Shreveport seminar were interviewed to determine their feelings about the event. Their comments are as follows:

Milton Ford, commander of L. B. Faulk Post of the American Legion — "We have always felt that it is the duty and the responsibility of every citizen to keep informed on matters pertaining to national defense. This National Security Seminar offers a real opportunity to the responsible citizen. I hope there will be many from Monroe who will join us at Shreveport."

James W. Parkerson, president of Northeast Louisiana Chapter of the Air Force Association — "In this complex society those who would seek to lead must keep abreast of developments in many fields. These briefings offer us the opportunity to be better informed in matters pertaining to the defense of our country. To this end, we have urged the members of the Air Force Reserve to take part in the Shreveport meeting, if possible."

Howard Griffin, president of the Monroe Chamber of Commerce — "I understand these programs are highly informative and beneficial to anyone interested in education as well as our national defense. I am happy to join with the other veterans and civic organizations in urging our people to participate in this worthwhile conclave. It would be good for our community to be well-represented on Monroe Day for a better understanding of our problems and to show that we are vitally interested in the nation's security."

Negro General Takes Command Of Korean Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air Force Maj. Gen. Benjamin O. Davis is expected to arrive in Korea about the middle of next month to become chief of staff of the United Nations Command, under Gen. Hamilton Howze.

Davis, who is the highest ranking Negro in the American armed forces, has been nominated by President Johnson for promotion to lieutenant general.

In his new assignment he will also be chief of staff of the United States Forces in Korea.

In addition to Howze, those outranking Davis are Army Gen. Theodore J. Conway, deputy chief of staff of the U.S. 8th Army in Korea, who was promoted to three-star rank two years ago, and Lt. Gen. Edgar C. Doleman, commander of First Corps, who was promoted to three-star rank last month.

In announcing Davis' assignment Friday the White House said he would be outranked only Howze.

Chinese Envoys Sent From Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Brazil expelled Saturday nine Red China envoys who came here a year ago on a cultural mission and were later convicted of espionage and subversion.

Arrested shortly after the downfall of the Joao Goulart government, which had invited them here, the Red Chinese were tried and sentenced to 10 years in prison.

The question of expelling them was blocked temporarily when a military tribunal insisted on a parole, but President Humberto Castello Branco decreed their expulsion. About $52,000 taken from the Chinese upon their arrest was returned to them before their departure.

Homecoming Is Set At Church

BERNICE (Special) — Homecoming services will be held Sunday, April 25, at Pine Grove Church, three and one-half miles southeast of here, according to the Rev. T. J. Lann, pastor.

Brush and Palette

by Jan Bank

TODAY, EASTER SUNDAY, perhaps more than all other days of Spring, we sense an awareness of the miracles of nature. Despite the emphasis on our apparel, we mortals are poor competition for the surrounding countryside. It is pure coincidence that the featured exhibits at the Masur Museum of Art 1400 South Grand also affirm our environment visually as opposed to purely emotional techniques. Sharing equal billing with the one man show of watercolor paintings by well known artist, Jake Lee, is a photography exhibit by Bruce C. Vaughn Jr. of Springdale, Ark. and Lee Estes of Monroe, La.

Both are amateur photographers, national exhibitors and prize winners. Lee Estes, program chairman of the Northeast Louisiana Camera Club, says of Mr. Vaughan "His works show uncanny ability to recreate unusual scenes. He is able to take simple things and turn photographs into artistic masterpieces." Mr. Estes also has this marvelous ability. It is difficult to choose one you like better than another. "Backing a Bearing" does not display much of the aesthete in its title but it is the sensitive study of a mans hand, showing every-line, that is unlike any other mans, almost caressing, a blob of opaque grease, as he no doubt performs the job which carves which his own particular place in this universe for he and his family. "Exercise in Composition" is another arresting work by Mr. Estes that captures your eye as you enter the upstairs gallery. Scenes that could only be photographed in the South seem to bring forth the very best from Estes highly trained eye and camera.

ON DISPLAY

The photographs of Bruce Vaughan are on display in one of the downstairs gallery. The photographer from the Ozarks ranks high in the Photographic Society of America's "Top 100" exhibitors. Included in the exhibit are prints showing Vaughans skill in selective tone techniques. Through these processes he creates realistic three - dimensional effects. Just to mention at random, a composition of onions is a fascinating work and another "Melissa Contemplating" conveys all that is necessary as a little girl surveys a work of sculpture. You only see Melissas back but the expression on her face is surely evident. "Alley Cat" combines exceptional technical skill with the cracked siding wall in the photo to capture the artistic fancy of viewers.

THESE WORKS

In another gallery is the work of members of "The Art Center Inc." There are works that have not been on display at the Museum before.

So you can see that this is an exciting exhibit of great variety, Photography, oils and watercolors, plus the Archeological attractions on the balcony. The museum will be open today from 2 to 5 p.m. I repeat this is an unexpected special exhibit adults and children will enjoy, do not miss it. In fact the viewers who have seen the show have been so enthusiastic that arrangements are in process of being made for an entire exhibit by our exceptionally talented local photographers.

AUXILIARY MEMOS

Hostesses this week will be: Sunday, April 18, Mrs. John Thornhill and Mrs. Robert Layton. Tuesday, April 20, Mrs. David Masur and Mrs. Frank Bonner. HERE AND THERE

A Louisiana artist's work is among 15 works chosen from 807 entries to be included in a national exhibition which will tour the country through the fall of 1966 under the sponsorship of the Drawing Society and the American Federation of Arts. Whit Connah of New Orleans will have his work hung this summer in the Federations New York exhibition and then included in the tour. The work will hang in the first Southeastern Regional Drawing Exhibition at the Atlanta Art Association through May 9. A total of 72 drawings were chosen for the show in Atlanta.

THE SECOND ANNUAL ALABAMA Open Art Show, open to all artists in all media, will be held in Mobile May 9 through June 6. Entry cards are due May 5 and work is due May 7. Write: Roger Hammer, 408 Syracuse St., Mobile, Alabama for cards. There will be a jury and prizes. Fee is $2 per work.

THE MISSISSIPPI ART COLONY at Stafford Springs will conduct a Spring workshop April 22 through May 1. A juried exhibition at the close of the show colony will offer a $150 purchase prize. Teachers will be Charles Allland drawing at Memphis, and drawing at Memohis, State Univ., April 22-24; Alvin Sella, professor of painting at the University of Alabama, April 26 - May 1, and Malcom Norwood, professor of Art at Delta State College, April 29 - May 1. Write for reservations and information to the colony at Stafford Springs Motor Lodge, Heidelberg, Miss.

COOKING APPLES

Apples have a high natural water content. They should be cooked with only enough water to prevent sticking or scorching. Otherwise, they will lose their form and become too soft.

COLORED EYELASHES

'65 Corvair Corsa Sport Coupe now you can put up to 180 hp behind you

If you've been sitting tight waiting for just your kind of car, with just your kind of power, at just your kind of price—wait no longer!

Chevrolet. It's a bigger, more beautiful car this year. Which is why that handsome silhouette could be mistaken for cars costing a thousand—even two thousand—dollars more. And when you slip inside and see its fine interiors, it's easy to make the same mistake twice.

Chevelle. This one's got lively looks, spirited power, a softer ride—and a remarkable amount of room atop a highly maneuverable wheelbase. Beginning to see why it's today's favorite mid-size car? A visit to your Chevrolet dealer's will show you conclusively.

Chevy II. No car so trim looking has a right to be so thrifty. But saving money is its specialty. So you get things like an exhaust system that keeps lasting and lasting. A Delcotron generator that helps keep the battery young. And brakes that keep adjusting themselves.

Corvair. It's the reason drivers who always ducked twisting roads and roller-coaster hills now seek them out. Ask any '65 Corvair owner how it feels to drive a car with such easy steering, tenacious traction and responsive rear-engine power. And be ready to do lots of listening.

It's Time NOW!

To Improve Your Home and Garden

Before Hot Weather Comes

● Expert advice and help on making improvements around and in your home are as close as your telephone — call on the personnel of our local department stores, furniture stores, building supply stores, appliance dealers, financial institutions, etc. These neighbors are experts in their fields and are interested in helping you. Their advice can aid you in cutting costs and in obtaining more satisfying results with your home improvement projects inside and outside.

Spruce Up House, Garden This Spring

BEAUTIFY AND MODERNIZE YOUR HOME with a handsome new brick-like fiberglas wall covering material that has the color, pattern and even the texture of masonry. And the big advantage in using this authentic brick-like material is that it will add luxury to any room without breaking the budget. Decorators suggest using it in living rooms, kitchens, halls and even bathrooms.

In Spring we're fired with fresh enthusiasm to spruce up the house and garden. Before that enthusiasm wanes, dive into the projects you've planned to ready the house for the active days ahead — the backyard barbecues and visits from vacationing relatives, etc.

While the man of the house is wielding a paint brush and roller, gather up all the washable curtains, draperies, slipcovers, and bedspreads that have become dull and dingy during the winter months. They'll look even drabber against freshly painted walls unless you restore them to their original sparkling colors.

STAINS

When handling stains, caution is still the watchword. Different spots take different treatment. Candy removal, for example, is simple: it can be removed by sponging with clear, cool water. With lipstick or rouge, work petroleum jelly or lard into the stain and then launder with a detergent. Should your spring redecorating plans include refinishing wood floors or furniture, try this easy way to bleach darkened wood: after removing the old finish, apply a solution of one cup bleach per gallon of warm water. Keep the wood damp with this solution for 15 minutes. Rinse, allow the wood to dry, and wax it.

An intriguing tip for home gardeners is a way to utilize the empty plastic bottles in which liquid bleaches are packaged. By cutting the top off one of the bottles, you will have an excellent planter in which to start spring seedlings. The top with its built-in handle, need not go to waste, either. When the sides are sliced away, with a razor or sharp knife it makes a dandy funnel for pouring gasoline into power mowers, or pouring insecticides into spray gun tanks.

Two Types Of Beauty In Cultivation

If you're a lady garden enthusiast, you'll be glad to know that you can also cultivate beauty while you're cultivating those azaleas! With a little planning, the hours spent in your garden can be a beauty treatment, too.

Start your beauty - growing routine by having a beauty basket handy where you store your garden supplies. It should contain a pair of heavy-duty rubber gloves, face cream, a rich hand cream, a small box of tissues, skin freshener, sunglasses and a head scarf or straw sun hat.

Before going out, apply face cream in smooth upward strokes, removing excess with tissues, leaving a light film on your face. The warmth of the sun helps the cream penetrate deep into your skin as you garden.

BEAUTY HAS A GREEN THUMB — Make time spent in the garden pay a beauty bonus. Outfit a garden basket with lubricating creams, skin freshener and space-saver tissues.

Three Styles Cited

Some House Designs Easy To Modernize

Although it is possible to enlarge most homes, certain designs lend themselves especially well to modernization.

Three such styles are the rambler, the split-level, and the two-story, all popular homes today.

For those who now own one of these designs and find themselves out-growing what originally seemed a spacious home, it's reassuring to know that the addition of extra rooms to their home is relatively simple.

Chances are that the owners of a soundly constructed rambler house can add a room to provide desirable living space and increase the value of their property by as much as, or more than, the cost of the remodeling project involved.

PLAN FLEXIBILITY

The design of the typical rambler home provides flexibility in floor plan and the simplicity of its rectangular shape permits a variety of exterior alterations.

For instance, the rectangle can easily become an L-shape with the addition of a room to the back or front of the house.

The structural shell of the one-story rambler involves relatively simple carpentry and alterations can be accomplished with equally straight - forward and inexpensive building methods.

Split-level homes present a few more problems than the rambler or bungalow style residence in remodeling but the possibilities of adding space are just as great, and the design potential may be even greater.

A good rule to follow is to keep the addition at grade level for an obvious reason: it costs less to build on the ground than it does to build on a platform.

However, if a post-supported second level room is added, there is the possibility of creating a carport and sheltered patio under it.

If all three are desirable, then it would be best to build high instead of low.

TRAFFIC PATTERNS

The first consideration should be traffic patterns in your home; a split-level house usually has a more sophisticated traffic flow than other homes, and care should be taken to maintain the traffic pattern.

Whatever you do, plan carefully to get the most room for your budget, selecting building ideas that keep costs of the structural shell as low as possible.

Two - story homes can often benefit from added space, too. Usually a new room in a two-story house is intended to function as a family room, or as a master bedroom that will free an upstairs bedroom for use as a playroom or recreation area for children.

The two-story home has some built-in structural advantages but can pose some knotty design problems. Structurally, the two-story house can take a new room with a minimum of complicated carpentry.

Whatever style of home you have, the advice and assistance of a qualified home modernizer is invaluable. Many modernizers offer design assistance as part of their service, and some of them have licensed staff architects or experienced designers on their staff.

ADDING ROOM

When adding a room to your home, try to pick a location where an existing window or door can be used as a connecting passageway. By doing so, costs are reduced because the existing opening already will have a functioning header.

Three Simple Steps Apply In Antiquing

Instead of discarding the old but still-useful pieces, new and fashionable tones and hues with an antique finish can be applied to give them up-to-the-minute decorator smartness.

According to experts, paint and hard coatings manufacturers, the antiquing process has been reduced to three very simple steps.

First — sand the old surfaces lightly to remove dirt, grease, wax and loose paint. Use a fine grade "wet or dry" sandpaper moistened with water for a smooth, fine finish. Use a tack cloth to pick up the sanding residue.

After the preparation, apply the base coat. Popular antiquing trends favor tones a bit deeper than blonde tones.

TO ANTIQUE: Apply a very thin coating of color grain over the base coat, then wipe it. Allow some to remain on the surface and recesses of the wood for a dual tone. Since the color grain sets slowly, there's ample time to achieve interesting effects. Lint-free cheesecloth, herringbone, paper towels or tissues may be used for wiping and to give texture.

Pins, nails and other sharp points may be used for "distress" marks to pick up the color grain during wiping and show as dark specks.

Swivel Aerator Solves Problem Around Sinks

If you're tired of being constantly doused with water and even soap, at your sink, you should invest in a swivel aerator.

A swivel aerator is designed to eliminate sink-splashing by introducing air bubbles to water at the outlet of the tap.

But it does far more than that. By means of an attractive "satellite" ring surrounding the aerator, you can direct the stream of aerated water anywhere in the sink — and without getting hands wet or fingers burned when hot water is being used.

The ladies find it most convenient for washing unused salad makings, vegetables, dog food or other food waste into the disposer without having to wipe down the sink by hand or with a paper towel.

First Step

Financing Vital Project Element

Need a new family room or kitchen? And, shelving and storage cabinets . . . have you enough of these?

How about that second bath the family needs. Where's the workshop you want?

Let's assume that your number one project is a family room. You have the space for it (basement, attic or garage) and also you know how you want it to look, and how much it will probably cost.

ALSO AVAILABLE

The first step is, line up your financing. There are several ways to do it, by savings and loan companies or commercial banks.

Also available are two types of FHA Loans: Title I, which allows you up to $3500 and five years to pay; and Title II 203(k), which allows up to $10,000 and ten years to pay.

Where to go for advice? Your local building materials dealer is a good starter. He can suggest available financing plans that will fit your needs and provide you with helpful literature and decorating schemes. He can also give you free estimates.

He can also handle the contracting — or get in touch with a reliable firm for you.

Another starting point is your local remodeling contractor or home improvement specialist. Check your Yellow Pages and local newspapers for other leads.

Get at least two or three bids on your job before you sign any contract. Like anything else these days, before you buy, shop around.

Lowest bids are not always best bets. That low bidder may be basing his price on cheaper and inferior materials and hurry-up-and-get done workmanship, both of which you can do without.

NO INSIDE COLUMNS IN THIS HOME. The variety and versatility of modern steels are solving home design problems, so this house could be erected on a narrow, deep lot. The steel frame is composed of star columns consisting of four steel angles spaced two inches apart. Beams are built-up tubes of steel plates with continuous bar separators. Tubes are placed between angle columns, forming a frame, which permits complete freedom of planning within the house, since there are no inside columns.

Steel Used For Unusual House Styles

The variety and versatility of modern steels have made it possible to solve many home-design problems relating to the use of land, foundations, beams, studs, joists and plumbing fixtures.

Thanks to the new steels and the ingenuity of bridge-builders, homes are now being built on steeply sloped lots that were once called impossible. These sites are especially desirable because of their lower price and their beautiful views. Using steel framing, these houses cantilever out over the slopes, neatly solving a problem conventional construction cannot economically handle.

In conventional construction, too, steel is making important contributions. For instance, home building was once seasonal. But now there is an all-weather, lightweight steel foundation system requiring very little excavation, thereby making it possible for builders to continue construction during winter months.

TOPS IN HOME improvement for real summer pleasure is an economical aluminum cover for your patio. It not only provides a breezeway sun shade but also makes the inside of the house cooler during hot weather. A wide number of styles are available or they can be made to fit any area.

"Where the Charm of Yesterday Is the Style of Today"

Sorting Baskets Speed Dull Chore Of Doing Wash

To speed the dull chore of doing the wash, an expert advises at least three sorting baskets — for whites, colored items and "special." If space allows, add baskets for wash - and - wear, washable wool and decorator or brightly colored items.

An excellent arrangement is to have six plastic clothes baskets lined up on shelves, three on top and three on bottom. For a deluxe custom installation, you might consider installing built-in bins beneath a counter.

Another idea offered is to use a set of bins or drawers to sort clean clothes after laundering. Just mark the bins with the names of family members — "Dad," "Mom," "Sis," etc. You might label one bin "Kitchen," to use when sorting out dish towels, table linens and aprons.

Then, make each member of your family responsible for getting his own clean clothes back to his room. Share the work!

Laundry really isn't a hobby as yet, but you'll find it can be less work if you let the other members of the family help organize it.

ROSES WITH EYE-LEVEL BEAUTY — Here's a close-up of a Grandiflora that's popularly grown as a tree rose. Many gardeners alternate colors to add emphasis to this proud beauty in the yard.

Growing Tips For Raising Rose Beauties

Have you ever marveled how your next door neighbor's roses do so well? Here are some planting and growing tips that will help you create a beautiful garden this year.

Select, a well - drained site, one which receives full sun all or most of the day. Near coastal areas or where high velocity winds are common, select sheltered locations.

Soil should be prepared several months in advance, using well - aged manure. Do not attempt fertilizing prior to planting time. Using 25 per cent peat moss to 75 per cent soil ratio, mix this combination into the planting site.

After plant has been seated, work loose top soil under and over the roots so there will be no air pockets. Then, add additional soil around the plant until hole is three-fourths full. Allow water to run slowly into the hole until the soil is thoroughly seated.

WASH PAIR

Wash two pillows at a time—place one at each side of the agitator. Set the washer for regular cycle, warm wash and rinse gentle action. Add a regular amount of detergent recommended for normal soil.

Wood Built-Ins Add Decorative Bathroom Touch

In addition to a wide range of warm colors in tiles and waterproof wall coverings, soft floor coverings and other more decorative touches, rich, warm wood paneling and wood built-ins add new charm to bathrooms.

Wood panelling such as pine, for example, offers beauty of grain, texture and finish.

Thanks to treatment with modern sealers and finishes, these woods will withstand the humidity and common abuses that prevail in a bathroom.

Built-in vanities with generous counters and storage space, linen cabinets, laundry bins — even your washer and dryer can be built into your bathroom as space permits.

Home Improvement Boom Is On

Housing economists maintain that the amount of money spent to improve older homes will equal, and surely exceed, the amount of money spent on new housing within five years. A few think that point already has been reached.

There are solid economic reasons for the increasing interest in remodeling. In the first place, it's good business for homeowners.

Money spent on home improvement provides an investment that will grow in value.

EXPANSION

Another reason for the remodeling boom is that many home-owners are finding they can expand their existing homes for less money than it would cost to move into new quarters.

New home construction throughout the country averages about $15 per square foot; it would be difficult to buy a comparable new house for less than $18,000.

In addition, moving to a new home usually entails a number of "unproductive" costs, such as the cost of moving, title clearance, and real estate commission.

EXPENSES

These can "add up" to a considerable expense. There are also added costs in new landscaping and frequently in new draperies and rugs.

For these and other reasons it is often worthwhile to increase the value of your present home.

Barbecuers For Indoor, Outdoor Use

The latest in new compact barbecuers is an indoor-outdoor grill that measures only 18 inches and is designed to meet the needs of the apartment dweller with a balcony and-or fireplace. It comes complete with a convenient steel hood and will accommodate a 15 pound turkey.

An innovation in smoker boxes is also being offered. It is constructed of expanded metal and permits ashes to fall through into an ash drawer. It features additional heat controls with baffel plate, adjustable air vent and nickel - clad and glass-hinged front door with large square thermostat.

18-INCH MOTORIZED TABLE TOP GRILL is designed to meet the year 'round needs of apartment-house dwellers with balconies and/or fireplaces. It has a hammered rust-resistant steel hood with charcoal-colored painted top and will accommodate a 20-pound roast or a 15-pound turkey. Its compact size fits easily in a fireplace or on a table top. The crank-controlled chrome-plated grid has convenient handles for lifting whenever desired.

Many Colors Can Be Used In Concrete

When it comes to concrete, it's not always easy to "live with" the one color — gray.

Now, you can "warm up" the bland, cold appearance of interior or exterior concrete and masonry by applying a durable stain in other colors.

Choose any of the 10 additional tones, which range in shade from flamingo to chartreuse to beige.

The stains will not chip, peel, flake or lift.

APPLY STAINS

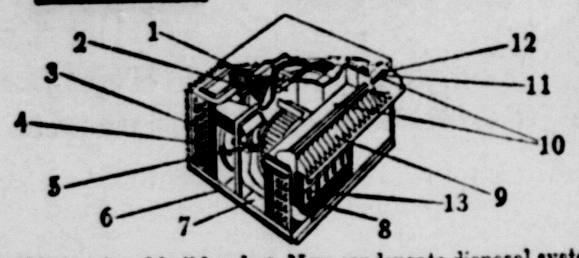

To apply color stains, you can use a roller, a large paint brush, a push broom, or an old mop. After the first coat has been applied, it will take about six hours before the stain dries completely into its true color.

If you want a more intense color, apply a second coat. Where can you use concrete stains? On patios, drives, steps, garage floors, basement walls, and floors, concrete block walls, breezeways — you name it.

The "earth" shades, such as beige, clay, brown or green, are particularly compatible with porous stone, including flagstone and sandstone. You can use these colors to blend yard walkways or garden stepping.

Use New Techniques

Outdoor Lighting Systems Highlight Lovely Gardens

In a few weeks your garden will be at its loveliest . . .enjoy it to the fullest by using the latest outdoor lighting techniques. Not only will lighting give you many more hours of viewing pleasure, it will also allow you to dine and entertain outdoors in the evening.

Attractive lighting is possible for any garden, regardless of its size or the size of one's budget, it is pointed out.

Installations can be temporary or permanent, making it possible for those who rent their homes to enjoy the advantages of a beautifully-lit garden.

When lighting, avoid "white washing" the entire garden in imitation of daylight; contrasts of lights and shadow, highlights and silhouette effects create the best effect. Place lights to illumine a flower bed or other point of interest.

HIDDEN BULBS

Conceal light sources by hiding bulbs in shrubbery and place bulbs and fixtures so that light is confined to your own premises. Shielding reflectors can be used to keep light source out of viewer's eyes.

As to color, it is best to use white light or blue-white projector bulbs on flowers. Colored lights can be used sparingly on white statuary, walls and trellises and are most effective in pools and fountains.

Those wishing to landscape with light on a temporary basis can use outdoor-type extension cords and plug in on existing circuits in the house or garage. Avoid overloading any one household circuit. Care should be taken to protect cords against damage from closing doors and windows. Tape all plug connections outdoors to keep moisture out and keep connections above puddle level. Permanently installed lighting systems should be handled by an electrical contractor.

Whether you're renting or owning, you'll get more pleasure out of your garden by lighting it up!

KIT IDEAL

One such kit is ideal for lighting walks, garden paths or steps. But by slipping off its shade and tilting its lamp, the unit becomes a flood lamp. Or, using a combination bracket and base included in the kit, the fixture can be hung on a wall and swiveled in any direction. Mounted on a wall or post with its bulb pointed directly up and its shade snapped on, the unit becomes an attractive fixture for entrances, or lighting outside areas. Or, placed upright on a table, the unit becomes an attractive waterproof table lamp.

A unique kit is also available for bringing out the beauty of shrubbery and flowers at night. This kit utilizes a special blue-white floodlight bulb that makes plants and leaves take on new nighttime beauty which is impossible to achieve with ordinary lighting.

A new dusk-to-dawn lighting kit will be of interest to homeowners who want nighttime safety but don't wish to be bothered with switching lights off and on. This kit contains an electric eye switching - control adapter unit and a weatherduty 150-watt floodlight bulb. The light turns on automatically at dusk and off at dawn. The electric eye unit screws into any regular socket, converting any outdoor lighting fixture into an automatic dusk-to-dawn lighting unit.

MANY USES

Trust pencils to make their mark. A pencil may seem like an ordinary everyday thing, but there are hundreds of different pencils available — many which can help you with your household and gardening chores.

Liquid Sanding Eases Drudgery

Sandpapering before painting is dusty drudgery, but a good deal of it can be avoided with a new improved "liquid sandpaper."

The product was formulated to simplify the preparation of enameled or varnished surfaces that are to be refinished.

The product is an ideal surface conditioner for furniture to be antiqued with glaze. Antiquing old furniture . . . some of it covered with dust and grime from attics and garages. . . is today's most popular do- it - yourself refinishing trend.

The product can also be used to clean wax, grease, polish, tar, dirt, scuff marks and smudges from wood and linoleum; it's also an effective brush cleaner.

ROSE GARDEN

California is the "nation's rose garden," growing more than one-third of the more than 40,000,000 plants sold annually in the United States.

BUILT-IN BEAUTY FOR BATHROOMS was styled in rough-textured wood from pines. The twin sinks have been enclosed and a handsome chest of drawers built-in for extra storage space. More and more woods are now being used to create handsome bathrooms.

Mosaic Wall Paneling Is Self Adhering

The American home - maker, spurred by an inner urge for individual self - expression will once again spend billions on do-it-yourself home improvements.

A product headliner that she will find practical and colorful, inexpensive and versatile and one to give her home the spruced-up look is the new, self-adhering mosaic wall paneling. Ideal for such splash areas as the kitchen and bathroom, it also has a multitude of other uses: in closets, cabinets, play rooms, on bar-tops, serving trays, planters, etc.

This title appeals to almost every taste and is suitable for practically every interior decor. It comes in fifteen decorator-approved colors and in three design patterns.

Installed in a matter of minutes, it requires no special tools or skills. Just peel off the protective backing and press on the wall. It's so simple to apply and so easy to handle that in less than a half hour the average homemaker can tile the entire wall surfaces behind her kitchen sink and kitchen counters.

SOUND DEADENING BOARD, a new product economically helps solve noise problems in the home. Available in 4'x8' and 4'x9' sheets, ½" thick, the insulation board product is nailed directly to studs. Laminating compound is applied to the sound deadening board and the gypsum wallboard is applied so that joints are staggered. Finally, the wall perimeter is sealed and joints are taped and finished in the conventional manner.

REMOVE GUM

Stuck with gum on a dry-cleanable item? Put the garment into a plastic bag and store in your freezer unit for several hours. Then the hardened gum will come off easily.

LENDING PLANS

Remodeling contractors are familiar with most lending plans. Your bank or savings and loan office can be of great assistance as can the office of your local FHA.

Many Possibilities

Home Slide Show Can Be Attraction

Now you can present home shows with a running commentary and sound accompaniment, with you at your entertaining best!

Your home slide show of vacation scenes or family activities can become a polished theatrical event by combining the newest in tape recording techniques with modern remote control slide projector.

Tape recorders may now be used to play descriptive commentary and background music and at the same time advance the slides on your automatic projector in synchronization with the "sound track".

NEW ACCESSORY

This technique is made possible by a new accessory offered for use with its home recorders.

The slide projector actuator, when connected to any popular model remote controlled slide projector the recorder and actuator offer an easy, convenient means of adding sound and automatic changing to your slide presentation.

When you are ready for the next slide, add the change signal by turning a control knob and it is automatically programmed in the tape.

To record your "sound track" it is a simple matter to work from a rough script or encourage members of your family to "ad lib" their remarks as you record, later editing out or recording sections.

IMAGINATION

For unusual events which occur during a family vacation it is effective to have the children describe what happened in their own words.

The combination of effects possible is limited only by the imagination, and tapes may be erased and re-recorded repeatedly to assure a smooth presentation.

With these ingredients a slide presentation on your patio or in your living room can become the high point of the evening.

And with your tape recorder changing the slides, furnishing the narration and playing the music, your guests will know exactly how long the show will last, and you, as producer can relax and watch the show too.

New Eye Level Beauty Seen In Basket Plants

Easy - to - make, fashionable hanging baskets for your plants can create new eye-level beauty in both indoor and outdoor living. Anyone who enjoys living plants in the house or on the porch or patio will be particularly pleased with the interesting trailing kinds, so perfectly suited for display in hanging baskets. There are many varieties of attractive trailing ivies, philodendrons and vines to select, as well as flowering plants like fuchsia and lantana.

All these plants are readily available in their clay pots and a homemade basket or rolled saucers and will fit nicely into clover-cut aluminum.

To make this metal basket, roll a 6" by 17½" strip of clover-cut-out aluminum around a large jar to get a smooth curve, and form into a cylinder by overlapping the ends 1½". Fit snugly below lip of clay flower pot. Make 1½" deep cuts along bottom and bend back strips formed between each cut and lace together with wire.

Kitchen Area Good Locale For Carpeting

Carpet fibers for soft floor-coverings are more and more taking on wonderful no - care, no-worry characteristics that make them as simple to care for as conventional hardcover surfaces but with thrice the look of luxury and beauty.

So now even your kitchen can be beautifully - carpeted from wall to wall, say factory advisors who are introducing some just - right - for - the - kitchen carpeting in their new styles for spring home improvement.

FILAMENT

Made of continuous filament nylon, bonded to a natural sponge rubber backing which serves as a pad, the carpeting is desistant to staining; most spilled food and beverages can easily be removed with a wet sponge immediately after the stain occurs.

THE CARPETED KITCHEN is a new decor treatment for most homes. A special nylon carpeting bonded on natural sponge rubber backing comes in multi-hued tweedy mixtures that pick up colors used on hardwood wall paneling, wood or metal cabinets and other contemporary kitchen finishes and equipment. Specially treated for stain resistance, the carpets can be easily sponged off to remove most spilled food and beverages.

Fix Bedroom For Teenager In Den Styling

Make that teenster feel he "belongs; let him, or her, help you fix-up the bedroom like a den. With this in mind, this future citizen most likely will do better in school, not to mention socially with his own crowd.

Especially suited for a teenage room because of its ruggedness as well as fashion possibilities is a textured paneling with a rough sawn appearance. It has the rustic appearance that appeals to a "teener" plus the stamina to take rough treatment.

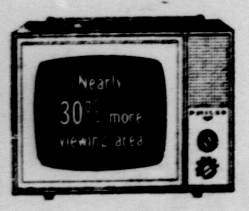

Used as a wainscot, the material can be painted or stained to suit the youngster's tastes.

Another factor, the teen who participates in the improvement of a room of his or her own will get a "kick" out of the project, plus a real sense of accomplishment.

Folding Doors Hide Some Items

A washer and dryer alcove in the kitchen or service room can take on glamour with a folding door alcove enclosure, suggest the designers of folding doors.

In areas such as the laundry space, the appliances can be completely out of view when not in use, yet when opened, the doors lie flat against adjoining walls.

FULL VIEW

The machines are then in full view, easily accessible and offer plenty of room to work in unimpeded.

Best of all, the doors can be completely installed within ten minutes by any handyman with common hand tools. They're prehung — which means that they are complete on their own frames.

The entire folding door unit slips into the alcove opening and nails in place through predrilled holes in the frame. All hardware is in place. The job is completed by clipping plastic molding trim onto hooks built into the frame.

There are no floor tracks to catch dirt since all - control hardware is built in.

HANDSOME FINISH

Durable polymer, (the same material used for making telephone) is the handsome finish used on these doors. In matte finish, oyster white, they need no other paint, or can be painted to match or contrast existing colors.

Patterns, in these ultra-modern doors, range from traditional stylings to contemporary.

Return Cycle

Fine Woods Line Walls Of Homes

Not too many years ago, home - owners were stripping beautiful woods from walls for the then - new painted background. Now, wall fashions like clothing fashions, round out their periodic cycle and return again to walls panelled with fine woods.

New or old, large or small, almost any room becomes a more valuable and attractive part of a home when it is panelled with solid lumber.

The natural grain and texture, the depth and versatility of solid wood make it an asset in any room. Easy to work with, readily available, more economical, both in terms of purchase price and upkeep — solid lumber comes into its own again.

Wood also adapts to a wide range of color and finish effects — from clear lacquer to deep-hued paint as well as traditional lacquer and stain finishes.

Solid lumber panelling's strength lies in its versatility of installation; for when solid wood panelling is installed, shadow-lines appear between the panels. The depth of these shadow-lines depends upon the intricacy of the edge pattern of the panels.

SHADOW LINES

Shadow-lines can decoratively alter the appearance of size of a room. Horizontally-installed panelling can make a room look lower and longer while vertical installation gives a low-ceilinged room height and can lead the eye to a focal point in the room or create unity of decor between two adjoining rooms.

Panelling may also be installed diagonally or in combination — vertical below, horizontal above — two different diagonals produce a herringbone design — horizontal and verticals of diminishing lengths produce a handsome squared radial for a feature wall.

Add 'Oomph' To Those Pillows

Have you ever seen anything more pitiful looking than a feather pillow that's lost its "pouff and plumpness"? What to do about restoring that old fluff to those feathers can be a ticklish question.

Not so, say the experts, you can give the new "oomph" with practically no time and effort on your part.

Use your automatic washer and dryer and follow a few simple suggestions.

Make sure that all rips and tears are mended. If the ticking is torn or worn, place the pillow in an old pillow case and baste the open end closed.

Wash two pillows at a time; place one at each side of the agitator. Set the washer for regular cycle, warm wash and rinse, gentle action. Add a regular amount of detergent recommended for normal soil.

Richest Wood Beauty Easy To Obtain

Everybody loves a wood finish and its beauty. So much is it in demand that we find it printed on wall paper, lithographed and veneered on wall panels and imitated in every other conceivable way.

Yet the genuine, the richest wood beauty of all is no farther away than your favorite retail lumber yard. That's your source of solid lumber paneling — solid wood clear through.

The charm and warmth of its natural grains, fine textures and orderly knot arrangement go far more than "skin" deep and show in delicately moulded edge patterns, or in the solid wood of exposed edge grains.

Just knowing lumber paneling is so "deep" in this rich beauty — being solid boards — gives you a lift, a sense of genuine luxury and security that enhances your enjoyment of a room.

Its nice to have such a room waiting whenever you want to use it. No other modern wall covering material is easier to handle and install; it can be applied in so many different and many colors and so easily maintained.

Wood can be used to create so many theme or visual effects. It can harmonize so well with every decorative plan.

Wood proves its popularity by coming in "something for everybody" sizes . . . in all popular widths: 6, 8, 10 and 12 inches. Choose your favorite paneling pattern for individuality without limit . . . each one can be used in any room of your home, for any style of furnishing, and for every installation design. Most retail lumber yards carry several patterns in stock.

Place New Wall Over Old One

An easy way to modernize is with a new wall placed right over the old. This dramatic change is made possible with the latest idea in wall decor—bookmatched "planks" available nationwide this spring.

This remodeling job is done with elm plywood. A new series of inlaid hardwood panels combining complementary wood species, and a new walnut plywood grooved every four inches for the appearance of real walnut lumber, make their debut this spring, too.

Prevent Rust Of Yard Tools Though Care

It's a long way from the stone trowel to the rotary mower. But all implements, especially those used outdoors, require a great deal more care than those of the past. To insure longer life and better service from your outdoor equipment, we suggest the following "green thumb" hints:

1. Annoying rust won't form on garden tools coated with petroleum jelly. Hoes, rakes and spades not made of stainless steel should be rinsed and dried after each use, then treated to a fresh coat of petroleum jelly.

2. Keep pruning and cutting shears in condition to clip neatly along by lubricating them often with petroleum jelly.

OTHER POINTS

3. Check and repair rubber or plastic handles on mowers, wheelbarrows and cutting implements before initial use; loose grips are harder to use, may be dangerous.

4. Sprinklers or watering cans may rust if not thoroughly dried after each session. For added protection, coat the sprinkler with petroleum jelly.

5. Tools with blades should be sharpened not only at the first of the season, but as often as needed for maximum efficiency.

6. To eliminate misplacing or careless handling of small tools, hang them from a rack. The simplest rack can be made from peg board and a few dimestore hooks.

7. Even glove - wearing won't always protect the most basic tools — your hands — against chapping and roughness. Before beginning any outdoor work, treat them to a soothing film of petroleum jelly. Rub a little extra around cuticles and beneath nails to discourage hard-to-remove dirt deposits.

MANY USES

Petroleum jelly can be a great aid with many items around the house which are exposed to the elements, for example.

8. To silence squeaky chains on garden swings, dab petroleum jelly at top where chain is fastened and at bottom where it joins seat.

9. Outdoor light bulbs won't rust if the threads are lightly coated with petroleum jelly.

If you putter around the garden, you'll be happy to know that a special moisture-resistant pencil can spare you the headache of trying to identify vegetable and flower beds with the seed packet. Just attach a tag marked with this pencil. It won't wash out, fade or rub off.

Watch Safety Factors In Household

To avoid falls, don't leave toys and other clutter on floors and stairs; wipe up water or grease as soon as its spilled; make sure your stairs are in good repair, and tack down nonskid treads on painted stairs; make sure stair rails can hold a falling person's weight; keep your outside walks clear; avoid small scatter rugs; remember that the more you polish a waxed floor, the harder, dryer and safer it becomes.

PREVENTION

Prevent fires by keeping your basement, attic, and other storage areas free from waste paper, old rags, and other combustibles; keep a fire extinguisher in the house; when cooking with grease, keep a pan cover handy to smother flaming fats.

Remember that small doses of familiar household substances can be poisonous; read the label twice before taking medicine; store poisons and medicine out of reach of children; read and follow the manufacturer's recommendations on storing pesticides; if someone does swallow a poison, dilute it by making the victim drink water — then, unless the substance is a petroleum product or a corrosive such as lye, make him vomit, and call the doctor as soon as possible.

PERILS

Never keep a loaded gun in the house; keep a gun hidden and locked up; store the ammunition separately from the weapon; if someone is shot, don't try to give extensive first aid — call a doctor instead; while you're awaiting medical aid, cover the wound with a sterile bandage, and treat for shock — have the victim lie down and keep him warm.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:
Most of our beloved indoor plants, ivy, philodendron and other non-flowering house plants, benefit from an occasional shower. This removes the accumulated dust from the leaves and thoroughly wets the support pole on which the plant grows.

I water my plants in our bathtub under a gentle shower of cool water. (If the potted plant is real small, I sometimes use the spray hose in the kitchen sink.) But there is a catch to watering and washing the leaves of a plant like this . . . . overflowing and overwatering could result.

I first place the flower pot in a big piece of soft plastic (which I have saved from the dry cleaners) and draw the plastic up and around the pot, covering the soil to keep it from washing away while under the shower. Then I pull it tight around the stems of the plant, tying it with string, and shower away!

Du Tracie

DEAR LADIES:
I tried this for two months with my beautiful philodendrons, some of which were about three feet tall. Nothing like it! The water from the shower thoroughly wet the pole, and the plants shot up as if they'd had a vitamin injection.

I removed the plastic and let the plants drain while they were still in the tub. (I also found that foil could be used in place of plastic.)

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE: :
When you pin flowers on, push a small eraser (cut from a pencil) onto the end of the pin. The pin won't stick you, and the corsage will stay firmly in place.

Mrs. D. Vigo

• • •

Why don't florists enclose a similar device when they deliver corsages? Your idea is wonderful.

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
For those who hang wash on a line:

Use a towel to make a pocket across the top of an apron. Sew a seam down the towel near one side, making one large and one small pocket.

Put your clothespins in the larger pocket, and as you find a broken pin, put it in the smaller pocket.

When you have time later, you can make whole clothespins from the broken ones by cementing them together. And it saves the time and trouble of fighting the broken pins when your hands are full of wet laundry.

Ann Richard

DEAR HELOISE:
I prevent my woolen blankets from shrinking after washing by putting them on my curtain stretchers to dry. The blankets come out in their original shape. Gently brush the pin holes which are left along the sides, and the holes will disappear immediately.

Mother

DEAR HELOISE:
I carry two small plastic bags and a couple of rubber bands in my purse and I find them very useful when caught in a rainstorm.

I pull one bag over each shoe and fasten them with the rubber bands. The plastic covers protect the shoes and ankles. Thus no ruined shoes or wet feet.

Eleanor Hookey

BIGGER BURGERS

DEAR HELOISE:
The recipe you gave for taking a thawed (room temperature) piece of bacon and dipping it in flour before frying it to produce bulk is great, but are you aware that this same idea can be used for sausage and hamburgers?

It sure can!

Mrs. R. O'Brien

• • •

It's terrific for hamburgers! I found that if they are frozen hamburger patties and have a little bit of frost on them, the flour absorbs it and gives the hamburger body! Furthermore, it prevents spattering of the grease.

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
When I cut a piece of waxed paper to line a cake pan, I don't throw away the outer ring of paper. I put the leftover ring on the cake plate and set the cake in it before I start frosting.

After the frosting is firm and has stopped dribbling down the sides of the cake, I tear one side of the waxed paper and remove the paper from the plate.

Barbara

DEAR HELOISE:
Here's another use for your nylon net:

For those gals who still have children who play with tub toys, make net bags the needed size for all the toys, using pre-shrunk, bias-seamed tape.

Drawstring the top with the tape and also make a loop to hang the bag on the faucet.

Mrs. Lester Swanson

DEAR HELOISE:
To keep my baby's knitted hat and sweater together, I simply sew them together like a hooded sweater.

This way I wash them together. Saves time looking for both articles, too.

Elsie Williams

TRAVELING CATSUP

DEAR HELOISE:
Those empty headache-tablet bottles with plastic caps, when washed and the label removed, are great to use in lunch boxes for catsup or mustard.

Mrs. Alice Brown

DEAR HELOISE:
If you would like to stack your drinking glasses without their sticking together . . . . place a fluted cupcake liner inside each glass, and stack away!

I never have trouble with glasses sticking, and I use the liners over and over. The white ones look the nicest.

A. DeRosa

This feature is written for you . . . the housewife and homemaker. If you have a hint, problem or suggestion you'd like to share . . . write to Heloise today in care of this newspaper. 4-18
